The FCC has sent a second letter to an energy provider warning it to clean up interference to a ham or face punitive action. The notice was sent directly to Wayne H. Brunetti who is Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of Xcel Energy based I n Minneapolis, Minnesota.

In his letter the FCC tells Brunetti that the agency notified him back in December of 2003 that it has received complaints of harmful radio interference possibly caused by equipment operated by Xcel Energy. That this interference has been reported by a ham living in Wellington, Colorado and that Xcel had been given 60 days to let the FCC and the ham know what steps were being taken to resolve the problem.

The FCC says that while Xcel did comply with its directive to respond, but as of the date of the latest letter the harmful interference reported to its office still remains unresolved. So the FCC told Brunetti that the company had 30 days to let the regulatory agency know what action Xcel has taken, or intends to take, in order to identify and correct the source of these radio emissions if they are being caused by its equipment. If Xcel fails to comply it could face enforcement action.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting.

As we go to air there is no word if Xcel's Burnetti has responded to the FCC. (FCC, RAIN)

THE BPL FIGHT: OPPOSITION GOES PUBLIC IN SOUTH AFRICA

BPL is also a big concern in South Africa and that nations national ham radio society has voiced its concern to the public about the introduction of Broadband over Powerline Communications in that nation. SARL -- the South African Radio League did this during the program "Technologic" which aired on Africa's D-S-T-V Business Channel.

Society president Graham Harlett, ZS6GJH, was interviewed at the National Amateur Radio Center. He said that the SARL is opposed to Power Line Communication because of its inherent interference to High Frequency radio communication. He noted that the interference is not limited only to frequencies used by Radio Amateurs. That it includes the military, civil emergency agencies and some broadcasting stations as well.

Harlett, says that extensive tests carried out in Europe, the USA and Japan has clearly shown this. A transmission line that carries power will become like an antenna at higher frequencies and render the high frequency spectrum unusable.

Harlett, who is a managing director of a South African consulting company voiced another concern as well. One that has not really been talked about in the United States. That of ingress to Broadband over Powerline systems from other radio spectrum users including hams. Harlett says that radio transmitters in close proximity to users of BPL are likely to cause interference to them because of the antenna effect of the long, unshielded powerlines.

Technologic was broadcast on Monday March 29th and has been repeated twice since its initial airdate. (Q-News)

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: SOLVING HAM-SAT INTERFERENCE

Meantime, the subject of interference to ham radio satellite was one of the topics at the recent meeting of the IARU Region One VHF Managers held in Vienna. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, reports:

As a result of research performed by OZ1MY, it now been shown that QRM that is occurring to ham radio satellites. Its primarily but not exclusively to 145 MHz satellite uplinks and mainly occurs when the birds are flying over Africa and the Middle East.

According to AMSAT, IARU Region 1 has a Monitoring Service which has been active for some years but which has, up to now, concentrated on frequencies below 30 MHz. In view of the wide area of QRM that can be caused by satellites and their ability to relay signals across international borders, the monitoring team has now agreed to scrutinize the satellite subbands as well.

Right now, what is needed are regular reports detailing instances of interference to the ham-sats along with audio files to back up each claim. The audio files will enable more precise identification of accents and dialects of those heard interfering. Hopefully, this will be a first step in getting those causing the interference off the satellites and off the ham bands as well.

The IARU Region One Monitoring Service team is said to have good contacts which are used daily to remove intruders from the High Frequency bands. Hopefully they will be able to do the same on VHF and UHF as well. (AMSAT, Others)

CB NEWS: VK CB TELNET NODES ON THE AIR

Some interesting news about C-B -- Citizens Band radio -- down-under. Unlike the United States where C-B operation is hap-hazard with no structure, Australia has a CB Packet Radio System that rivals anything that ham radio has ever set up. And now, it is being linked over the Internet to C-B operations in other nations including many Europe. This is making it possible for Australian C-B'ers to connect with numerous other C-B stations throughout the world using radio and Telnet. Q-News Graham Kemp, VK4BB, has the nodes and the frequencies:

AUS002 Warren reports in Australia there are so far several CB Packet Radio Nodes and BBS's. These are AU4BNE Node 27.225 Usb Brisbane Q'ld, AUS011 BBS 27.225 Usb Brisbane, AU6PER Node 476.950 Fm Perth W.A and AU6BBS BBS 476.950 Fm Perth.

RADIO LAW: CABLE MAKES DECENCY OFFER

The cable television industry says that it will provide free equipment to allow subscribers to block unwanted channels. This in reaction to efforts on Capitol Hill to curb indecent programming.

Robert Sachs, president of the National Cable and Telecommunications Association, announced the plan at a recent gathering of cable industry executives. The offer is directed to about half the nation's 70.5 million cable subscribers who don't have cable boxes that can be programmed to block certain channels or programs.

The companies agreeing to the plan include the 10 largest in the country and reach 85 percent of all cable subscribers. (Published reports)

RADIO ON THE MOVE: WWVA MAY LEAVE WEST VA

Famed AM broadcast station WWVA in Wheeling, West Virginia may soon be heading to a new QTH. This, as Clear Channel Communications confirms that the company has filed an application with the FCC to move long-time 1170 KHz Wheeling radio station out of the state of West Virginia.

According to a report in the Wheeling News-Register, Clear Channel Communications Wheeling Vice President Scott Miller said the company has submitted an application to move the radio station to Stow, Ohio. This is a town located just north of Akron. Miller said it has not been determined whether WWVA will actually be leaving Wheeling, and noted that approval of such applications are extensive.

Broadcast pioneer John Stroebel brought WWVA on the air on December 13th, 1926 using home built 50 watt transmitter set up in the basement of his Wheeling home. By 1929 WWVA had increased power to 5000 watts and became one of the most listened to stations in the East. And, for many years before Clear Channel Communications bought it, WWVA held the honor of being one of the last clear channel coast to coast broadcasters left in the United States. It also helped to make the city of Wheeling famous, worldwide. (Listener reports confirmed by NRCDXAS)

HAMFESTS AND CONVENTIONS: VISALIA INTERNATIONAL DX CONVENTION

On the convention circuit, the 55th Annual International DX Convention sponsored this year by the Southern California DX Club will be held April 23 to the 25th. This is the worlds premiere gathering of hams interested in DX and DXing on any band from DC to light. A show that attracts attendees from Asia, Europe, Africa and Oceania as well as from across the United States.

Scheduled events include a contest forum, antenna forum, DX forum along with seminars for everyone from the newcomer to DXing to the seasoned pro. The top of the line manufacturers will be there on their own display midway where you can talk to the people who design and use the best of DX equipment made.

As in previous years, the venue is the Holiday Inn in the city of Visalia, California. For full details visit www.scdxc.org/visalia/ on the World Wide

THAT FINAL ITEM: HAM RADIO AND THE AMBER ALERTS REVISITED

And finally, an update to our story two weeks ago about AMBER Alerts. We mentioned that for the most part ham radio seemed to have little interest in this important public notification system designed to help find the victims of kidnappings. Now we learn of at least one Amateur Radio club that's at work preparing to handle AMBER Alerts. It's located in Eastern Pennsylvania where our own Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, is based:

Mel Salzman, W-3-M-E-L is the force behind the Dauberville DX Association in Reading, Pennsylvania, getting connected to the AMBER Alert system.

Salzman, Dauberville's president, says he first became interested in AMBER Alert about a year ago and began searching the Internet for information. The system enables law enforcement to issue bulletins to the public about missing or abducted children.

In some states, messages are transmitted by commercial radio stations similar to an Emergency Broadcast System message. AMBER Alert also relies on highway message boards and cable-television systems to get out information.

Its goal: To enlist thousands of pairs of eyes - whether they be motorists or truckers or neighborhood and community residents - to be on the lookout for the kidnapper of a child.

Salzman says he convinced the Dauberville group to put up a "ticker" or scrolling message on the club's website - D-D-X-A dot o-r-g, to display AMBER Alert information.

Salzman also says he has his home computer hooked up to receive instant AMBER Alert notifications, paying particular attention to Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Salzman says his next step in connecting the Amateur Radio service to this effort was getting clearance from the club and the blessing of the FCC to transmit AMBER Alert information as a Q-S-T over the Dauberville group's repeaters.
"We have three repeaters," Salzman explains. "We can link all three repeaters if necessary and actually read the description, license plate number, whose been taken, what the guy looks like, whatever information comes through on my e-mail. That's what I'll put out on the air."

Salzman says the instructions are clear to any ham operator receiving the information and making a possible sighting.

"Call your local police, call 9-1-1 and give them the information," Salzman says. "If you happen to see that car or whatever description is out there, the car, what the driver looks like, call the police immediately."

Salzman says the Dauberville club has a modest, active membership, but many others in the region as well as those passing through the area use its repeaters and are supportive.

"We do have an active membership of, I would say, 20-25, and then people that they talk to," Salzman says. "You know how that could just snowballs. Like I said, the more people hear it, the more people are going to be looking, too."

Salzman says he hasn't publicized the Dauberville club's involvement with AMBER Alert. But Salzman says he's now preparing to reach out to other local clubs in the region as well as the Berks County ARES/RACES unit.

Salzman says he's also working to contact local law enforcement officials in greater Reading area to let them know ham operators are prepared to help by relaying AMBER Alert information.

So far, he says, the AMBER Alert system hasn't been activated much in this region. Salzman says that's a good thing. But, he says, the hams are ready if needed. Salzman says February's abduction and murder of 11-year-old Carlie Brucia in Sarasota, Florida affected him and others. Auto mechanic Joseph Smith is awaiting trial in connection with her death.

"I'd just like to really see this get going because it is extremely important. It just tears your heart out when you see these kids being abducted, especially with Carlie (Brucia), like when you find them and they're gone already. So, the more people involved, the better the results are going to be."

AMBER Alert was created seven years ago in memory of Amber Hagerman of Arlington, Texas. The 9-year-old was kidnapped while riding her bicycle near her home and later found murdered.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

If you want to know more about how you can involve the Amateur Radio service in your area in America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response - what AMBER stands for - take your web browser to www.missingkids.com. Then click on the words AMBER Plan. Getting a ham-radio assisted AMBER Alert plan started in your town could eventually save a child's life. (ARNewsline(tm))

Yep, one of the best series ever produced. Wife gave me the DVD box set last summer as a gift. Must have watched them half-a-dozen times.

We do know that George Busch WA3MOJ was looking for some batteries though:

http://www.google.com/groups?q=author:wa3moj%40aol.com&start=40&hl=en&lr=&ie =UTF-8&oe=UTF-8&selm=20011023161351.17382.00001281%40mb-fo.aol.com&rnum=46

Then of course who can forget when he made the same slip that Lee did with the sig file:

http://www.google.com/groups?q=+%22wa3moj%22&start=600&hl=en&lr=&ie=UTF-8&oe

Finally Dick McCollum put into retrospect:

x-no-archive is in the body of the document; at least in Outlook Express.
I don't see the headers. My contention is that if you have something to say, just say it. Finding a way to make sure Google does not pick it up 7 years from now is not something I care about. If you decide you didn't like what you had to say, name-shift. But leave your comments out there for

I have fucked real women that were not nearly as good looking as the two that I got wrong. This is a strange world we live in.

Had it not been for incest and transsexuals, Jerry Springer would be President of the United States by now.

I have never said that I didn't drink (past tense). I said I don't drink (present tense). I stopped drinking and drugging in April 1986. Never looked back.

Steve knows I don't use x-no-archive. We do not have to agree on everything. That is not the foundation of friendship, DoW. I have clearly given reason why I do not use x-no-archive; and anyone that wants to use it is welcome to. I also refuse to vote, but 50% of Americans do.
I hate hockey, but not everyone agrees with that either. And lastly, I am extremely anti-Islam.

Given the dressings I have gotten from him about hanging out on CB in virtually identical language, I strongly suspect friend George WA3MOJ is also Aaron Voobner as well as middlefinger4. Several other wierd coincidences lead to this suspicion. No big deal, one more for Bozo*Flush. His reaction to Chris passing the Extra was to my mind incompatible with being a human being let alone an OT extra licensed nearly as long as I have.

At best. At worst, he drinks them and drives his clown car afterwards.
A lot of elephants and trapeze artists have lost their lives at the hands of these drunk clowns. In fact, here is a shot of DoW in action:

CB NEWS: VK CB TELNET NODES ON THE AIR

Some interesting news about C-B -- Citizens Band radio -- down-under. Unlike the United States where C-B operation is hap-hazard with no structure, Australia has a CB Packet Radio System that rivals anything that ham radio has ever set up. And now, it is being linked over the Internet to C-B operations in other nations including many Europe. This is making it possible for Australian C-B'ers to connect with numerous other C-B stations throughout the world using radio and Telnet. Q-News Graham Kemp, VK4BB, has the nodes and the frequencies:

AUS002 Warren reports in Australia there are so far several CB Packet Radio
Nodes and BBS's. These are AU4BNE Node 27.225 Usb Brisbane Q'ld, AUS011 BBS
27.225 Usb Brisbane, AU6PER Node 476.950 Fm Perth W.A and AU6BBS BBS 476.950
Fm Perth.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, In Graham Kemp, VK4BB, of Q-News Australia.

So if you are scanning the 11 meter Citizens Band and hear digital signals, now you know exactly what they are. (Q-News)

I'm gonna go on record and say there is not enough info to be absolutely sure. Friggin google - that was so long ago that the original format is missing the x-trace and the NNTP posting host (IP addy of Landshark at the time). Nowadays, Landshark is using SBC Global, which is owned by Prodigy. Back then, the poster used Mindspring. That having been said, from a "trend" standpoint, lndshark@ix.netcom.com used to post to "rec.radio.cb" and also had Mindspring. Since it does not show the NNTP posting host; I cannot be sure that Mindspring actually owned the IP addresses at the time; but I also do not think Landshark knows how to falsify headers; so I am going to go on record as saying the Transsexual post and CB posts in 1999/2000 were done by the same person. I would say I am 99% sure.

Some folks think transsexuals are hot, and certainly there is a ton of shemale pornography on the internet and on the peer-to-peer groups; so Landshark is not the only one that is a proponent of folks with gender issues. And I think I mentioned a while back that my wife's brother was gay and died of AIDS. Homosexuality is an issue in many families. But, my wife and I have 5 kids, so I guess we make up for Kelly having been light in the loafers.

And to Landshark - seek help dood. Those kinds of people have all kinds of issues - not just with regard to the gender crisis. They are lost souls.
Leave them alone. You don't need the kind of trouble they will bring to your life.

That one was not Mindspring in the headers, so it's a little different.
But I want you to know I am not judging. I like the monster sized tits on Lotta Topp, and perhaps you prefer some of the Brazilian Shemales that are all over the porn sites these days. Who cares. To each their own. Just be careful dood. AIDS and STD's is just the tip of the iceberg - most folks in the gay subculture in America have serious issues in their lives.

Again, good advice. My friends & family know who did those posts, but I really don't care anymore, so I shunt

2706. Powering Condenser Mic with Capacitor

I have a Uniden Pro510XL that uses a condenser mic element powered off the radio. It sounds great but is prone to squealing if there is any power. I saw somewhere that a guy used a capacitor to power the mic element. This will probably fix it. Can anyone tell me or point me to a link on how to do this.

You might look up the old K40 line of mics. They had one that was a processor/amp, that used a cap to supply power. Of course, to supply power to a transistor as opposed to an IC, this might not really be a workable scenario.

Before the travel date, hook the radio to the lighter plug and check, with the motor running, that you are free of engine/alternator noise on the radio. Some will work fine and others will need filtering via the battery. You don't want surprises on your first trip. If you feel the need to go via the battery youcan find red and black zip cord at most auto sound sotres, fuse the wires on both positive and negative, but if you must, then positive only. Consider Anderson Power connectors because they are easy to install and becoming more standard.

I actually think Deja-News sold it's data to Google. I used to have a Deja-News account. It was a much better product than google, IMHO.
Nothing against google - I use it all the time - but Deja-News would let you search, then it would break up what it found by search engine category (websites, usenet, blog's, etc.).

Every time some stupid company finds out that we like something, they remove it. I suspect Russia. They try to demoralize us by making sure our day to day life never runs perfectly. And then they train American wives to implement the dastardly sneak attack.

When you say prone to squealing if there is any power I dont know what you mean. If you mean you are using an amp then you should know those radios are not designed for that. RF will get into the unsheilded areas esp. the eletret mike. The capacitor is already there in the citcuit you dont need another one, just dont run power and youll have no problem.

Zilch. Auctions ratted, intensified FCC activity as a result of AKC handing them the research on a platter, websites yanked away by ISP's when amp makers are revealed as Federal criminals, plus many many hoots and howls from the ham community over keyclownism in general, not to mention copious emails from hams who offer everything from web addresses we mighta missed to a few bucks to help maintain the effort.

You do not bother the AKC. Your actions prove our ownership of your souls.

There's nothing you can do that will cause the AKC to stop. You are powerless, and you will be ratted out when found out. It won't ever stop and that is what makes you keyclowns mad. Tough stuff, deal with it. You just need to learn to accept that you sissies are our tin cans on the fence, and we are the guys with the bb guns practicing. PING! yer off the fence and on your keyclown ass, wondering what hit you. Utter and complete powerlessness must suck, and we understand why you keyfags think you are getting somewhere. It is a mass delusion to cope with the fact of our total dominance over keyclownism. The facts are too hard for you to face, they are too traumatic for you. You have to deny reality in order to cope with life under the rule of the AKC.

Yes, we are harsh Masters, but you are slowly being brought to heel. We like it when you squeal and call names and otherwise attempt to cope with your Lords and owners. It shows the impact we make on you. It is also a product of your mentally deranged minds, in that reality IS, and your perception of it IS NOT.

You must lash out, you must deny, you must insult, you must do whatever your pathetic little selves think you can get away with to rail against your Masters. We understand. You must also do these things because you fear them being done to you, and so judge, in your massive stupidity, that others will fear them. Your mentality is so low that you don't know how low it is, in that you have never had a glimmering of anything higher.

We stand again on one statement. You can do nothing. Nothing at all. You have no power whatsoever to stop the AKC. Your actions over the years have resulted in absolutely nothing changing but MORE keyclowns getting in trouble.

We, however, have the power to get you in a lot of trouble with the FCC. When possible we have. We will do it more. We will gather even more proofs where needed and present them to the authorities for action. We will post more web pages of happy gloating. We will amuse ourselves anytime we want at your expense, both emotionally and financially.

Enjoy it all as much as you can for now. It is slowly ending, 1 keyclown at a time.

AKC owns you, sissies.

OLDSMAR, FL -- It was the hottest dick in CB history. A $755,000 fee paid to radio giant, N8WWM, by twistedhed for the privilege of sucking out his manly cum.

This week, Randy Chapman The crack head, the keyclown who does prick licking to obtain drugs, admitted that he actually paid hams 500 bucks each time he drank their sperm. In a faxed statement, Shane Youhouse, faggotboy and top ranked cum eater in Texas said that Chapwoman had only paid him 20 bucks and he was pissed off.

"Queer Channel radio stations twistedhed, dim-dweebo, and landqueer have extended their contractual relationship with the AKC Radio Network, which provides the N8 the Love Sponge Show. We recognize the importance of understanding and airing content that is consistent with the standards and sensibilities of the faggot keyclown communities we serve. After conducting a review of the N8 the Love Sponge Show, we concluded the show will be carried in our markets forever. Queer Channel Radio CEO Cranus the Anus supports the decisions of our local queerboys in Florida."

Today Last Coast News sat down with the sawed off faggot twistedhed, whose concern for penises led to a three year battle resulting in the FCC fine for excessive queerboyness. They were greatly amused when he begged for dick in his mouth.

Twistedhed is a gay slut by profession, and a sick-ass who's top priority is molesting his dogs. Three years ago, he listened to Queer Channel's 'Off The Planet Radio' in Oldsmar, in the middle of a "N8 the Love Sponge" show featuring a porn-star who went on to give listeners the web address of her personal site.

"The more I listened, the less gay sex content I heard," said Twistedhed. "I just felt this sense of purpose when I first heard that radio broadcast. I thought, 'somebody ought to do something, like getting on the radio to offer blowjobs to truckers...Why not me'."

So twistedhed recorded several 'N8' shows, and joined forces with a faggotboy named Chuck Adkins in Lincoln Park, MI, and filed a complaint with the FCC, eventually resulting in the $755,000 fine for not being gay enough.

For twistedhed, news of N8's heterosexuality is seen as depressing.

"I've been complaining about N8 for a long time," said twathed. "I'm really bummed to be able to say I can't suck his manly dick."

And though he admits he's received several obscene and angry calls from supporters of the radio personality, he urges all gayboy punks like him to get involved.

"Parents pay attention to what's going on in the media. And step in and get involved like I've done when your gayness is threatened by things like this." FUGGLY would NEVER have respected me if I hadn't stood in the gap.

The N8 the Love Sponge" show is broadcast live each morning Monday through Friday from the Toledo Studios of N8WWM, carried by all hams on 6 meters.

You guessed it right. Just a small amp. I know the Pro510XL has problems because power is supplied to the mic by the radio. If it were powered by a battery, it would be fine. There is, however, an alternate method in which the power is supplied to the mic element by a capacitor. It is charged during receive and then switched over to power the electret element during transmit. I just don't remember the details. BTW, it's nice to see some people willing to discuss radios and help rather than trashing the NG. Thanks and 73's.

You might be thinking of an rf bypass capcitor. in any case it doesnt matter how the mike element is powered it matters how the RF is getting in to it. anything could carry rf, the mike cable, the ground line, the ptt line. as I said the cb is not designed for more than 4w so they get away with cheap design in that area. If you want to persue troubleshooting it try Frank G or one of the hams in this group

Just because you say it doesn't make it true. Providing proof is your responsibility.

Yeah, it is. And an unnamed source gave me info that there is going to be a release of new episode of the AKC Diaries. Rumor has it that they are looking for a narrator, and are in negotiations with George Clooney for the spot. Should be good one kiddos. Stay tuned.

The person who posts as moparholic@hotmail.com put up a link to pics of Dougs house doug confirms he was harased at his door by someone calling himslef peepeeholic. The plate on the car was the same one seen on the secruity vid at Lelands house. Plate traces to Peebles so moparholic = peebles and if not then peebles will lead to the ID of moparholic LOL either way hes screwed blued and tatoed.

I could be wrong, but last I checked his name was Steve, not Roy. Most folks do not randomly name a company after someone else.

I do not think gender issues has anything to do with the ability to win a fight. In fact, outside of my two instructors, the highest ranked black belt in my Taekwando school is 17 years old and probably weighs 150 lbs. wet. And during the 5 years I took Ishinru, the baddest person in our class (sparring, power)was a girl named Barbara. BTW, she was kinda hot (IMHO, of course). Thinking back, she kinda reminds me of Lisa from Six Feet Under.

2776. Hammarlund CB-23: need crystals

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb

I'm almost finished restoring a 1960s Hammarlund CB-23 base station. The date code on some of the parts indicates the set was built in 1963 (or at least those parts were made in '63). I need 3 crystals to complete the electrical restoration:

Y106 = 25.335 MHz
Y109 = 25.375 MHz
Y110 = 25.385 MHz

I'll buy a whole parts rig if I have to, but I'd prefer to buy just those crystals.

And yes, I'm aware of the multitude of crystal houses out there, and I've done business with most of them over the years. I'm trying to keep the cost down. If I buy them new, those three little rocks will cost me $45 to $60!

I have a whole load of CB crystals that came from Sonar. They are in

Has anyone in the current BPL trial areas been monitoring the CB band for interference? From what I have been hearing via the grape vine is that the entire CB band (and the so called "freeband") are completely unusable due to PL interference.

are you a rough tough cream puff LOL now when you went on your harasment trips you must have figured on getting your pic taken and license plate noted. Must have thought about your phone number getting found out. so what steps did you take to hide it. You saw Leland posted his phone number in here when you asked, why cant you? answer is because your hiding something.

They're the small holders with wire leads (as opposed to plug-in pins). HC-18/U, I think (or is it HC-25/U?)

With a 25 MHz operating frequency, I'm going to assume they are 3rd overtone.

Crank up the power amps. Let them know what's up.
What are they going to do, give us a different band to shut millions of CBers up.

The Hams will have the same problem, but they can legally run 1.5 KW. The BPL is doomed, if it's as susceptible to RF as advertised. (?)

My tune tone will fubar it.

Sweet. My buddy had one of those back in the day but it was a tube'r.

We had a blast with that thing, in fact we sent some CW with it when he got his Novice...we later used it for a driver too.

Rock on.

Mansfield is running the trucks next month, but I'm not really a truck fan. I may go anyway?

I'd like to do Bristol again this year, under the lights. That all hinges on ticket prices tho. I'll have my Mopars out to Norwalk a few times too. We're renting the strip for a day next month..12 guys. Makes for more passes, and tuning time.

Wanna go to Bristol under the lights with me?

Does anyone know anything about Dartz brand linear amplifiers. I think this one is 50 watts. Do they have a clean output? Are they problematic? Any comments appreciated.

I am sure I mentioned this place to you before: www.archive.org They keep snapshots of every website that has ever been taken down. IIRC, they call it automated web crawling.

You can have all the amps you want; if you can't hear 'em, ya can't work 'em. This not only applies to cbers and hams - it is also will apply to a lot of things, including the bottom VHF television channels. It will affect low band VHF users as well as all HF users.

Best regards from Rochester, NY

Sorry to report that I can't find them! I thought I had several small drawers with CB crystals of various frequencies. They may be around here somewhere. I spent about an hour looking for them but no luck.

I will look some more when I get a chance.

Oh it was all in jest, but the last keg was the bullet too. When I went to the liquor store on Sat. picked up the Sierra and a bottle of Cabo Wabo, Sammy's favorite.

Dear Sirs,
I have been unable to correspond with you as my childs father (My Pimp) and I have been in negotiations with the consortium of Asian gentlemen who wish to purchase our child. Unfortunately it seems one of the gentlemen involved in the discussions is a "Usenet Junkie" (if that is the correct term). It seems he has been following your recent discussions quite avidly and has decided that my child is unsuitable. The gentleman, who shall remain anonymous, kept using the same words as you gentlemen do. As I do not speak his language all I could actually understand were the words lame, tard, fuckwit, clueless (his words not mine). I gathered they were less than impressed with my childs intelligence and lack of humor.
The childs father (My Pimp) is quite distraught and has indicated he would "cut that little bastards nuts off if he had any", (again his words not mine. I sent his father back to the Crack house and Brothel in hopes of averting bloodshed when my poor child returns from Rahway State Prison and Day Care Center. I am quite miffed at Bubba there at Rahway as I specifically stated I did not with my child to have Internet access. I think Bubba may have allowed the poor child access intentionally. I felt that Bubba and the other counselors were quite upset that my little retard was going away. Now if I was a suspicious person I would suspect they intentionally interfered with the sale of my slightly damaged child.

Well, time to go give the sheep their pennicillun and feed the gerbils.

With Respect,
Geo's Mom.

My Name is Rich I have opened up a Amateur Radio auction site at http://www.a2zedgifts.bidzfree.com/ It is intended for Amateur Radio (Ham Radio) Other categories listed also.

I have been a ham for over 40 years and have had many call signs, worked and lived all over the world. Now have settled down in NY and decided to try our hand at a branded auction site. A few years ago I opened A 2 Zed Gifts business. "A" being the first letter of the alphabet and Zed being the last letter of the alphabet. We were offering just about anything for sale.

For the past few months we were on eBay and just making it due to the high listing fees. The overhead was killing us. I noticed that one of the biggest auctions were Amateur Radio equipment. (I sold most of my station in a matter of days). With that in mind decided to join Bidzfree and open a branded auction site.

The following categories pertain to Amateur Radio (just click on a category and a subcategory will be shown)

Amateur Radio

Apparel

Business & Industrial

Books & Magazines

Collectables

Antiques & Art

Personalizing

Hobbies

Please come over and take a look.

DouGay, all you have done in the years I've been reading here is brag loudly about how great you are. Problem is, all you show is is how ignorant you really are.

If you'd stop patting yourself on the back and just do your "work" quietly, nobody would give a rat's @$$.

All you can do is post forges and alleged identities, based on your cursory Google search abilities. Frankie never posted anyt proof that Twist was somebody named Dave, and you haven't proven a thing about any of the others you have "outed". In fact, the only one who has been "outed" is > you < outed as a complete jerk.

It's too bad you don't have something productive to do with all your spare time. You know, like get on your radio and QSO with somebody or something like that.

Utter and complete powerlessness must really suck, or you wouldn't go to such great lengths to act so superior, huh DouGay? Especially when we know (and you've proven) that you're not superior to anyone, even my dog; he has no pride but he doesn't brag about it on the UseNet endlessly like you do. And he has the right to claim AKC membership, unlike you (although you're certainly ugly enough!).

Try your local CB shop and see... there are a lot of them out there.
Ask around at a nearby truckstop and they'll tell you who does that stuff.

Most of those guys probably have an old 23 channel solid state rig in the parts bin somewhere that they'll give you to cannibalize for crystals.

Possibly, but sometime around the great trucker phenomenon, the crystal manufacturers weren't able to keep up with the demand for CB crystals, and so the synthesized 23 channel CB was born. You will need to find a CB that was built earlier than about 1975.

I haven't seen a "local CB shop" since about 1975. I must hang out in the wrong circles. I wasn't aware that anyone tried to make a living fixing CB's anymore.

I have a couple drawers full of CB crystals. Whether I have any for the radio listed, I'm not sure. I'm not familiar with that particular model. But I can test all crystals sold for operation prior to shipping - as I have 2 different testers. What I will NOT do, is guarantee them once plugged in. "I" do not guarantee electrical parts unless "I" personally insert them. ALL are $7.50 EACH plus any shipping. Payments via Postal MO or Pay Pal.

Tune to the lower part of the 10M band and you'll hear plenty of them advertising. There's one that is on rt. 295 in Virginia that can be heard all over the 6M band with their every-fifteen-minute advertising message which the broadcast on channel 19 with some sort of mistuned bandsplatter machine.

I think most of these shops make their money from installation and modification work more than repair work, but there are quite a few around. Not like during the CB craze of the seventies at all, but check your local truckstop.

Hi Guys,

I would be very surprised if you could find the crystals
I need in anything other than the Hammarlund CB-23 (or the identical Lafayette model that Hammarlund made for them). The CB-23 used a rather unique scheme of crystal mixing that I've never seen in any other radio (and I've been tinkering with CB gear since 1971). The frequencies
I need are:

Y106 = 25.335 MHz
Y109 = 25.375 MHz
Y110 = 25.385 MHz

I'm assuming that they are 3rd overtone crystals, since most crystals above 20 MHz are.

The holder type is HC-18/U (the small holder with solder leads as opposed to pins).

Thanks and 73,
Dean K5DH

2885. New York City Area - Blue comm emergency group?

Specifically, Staten Island, NY. On 462.600 MHZ in the GMRS band, there is a repeater group that calls themselves Blue Com or Blue Communications. They sound like an emergency service or response group, though usually only idle conversation is scarcely heard. Thoughout the day and night especially, the repeater sends time checks, automated call signs and the national sercurity level. They seem to have fairly wide coverage. The repeater states that it has been in service since 1997. I'm wondering if anyone has come across this group and could shed some light. Does anyone have anything on this? Thanks.

With apologies to Brooks and Dunn...ours is funnier...

In Medina County in the town of Hinckley

There's a faggot keyclown who craves hard pee-pee

His joint starts jumpin' every night when his lips go down

He's got blowjobs and rimjobs, handjobs and dope

That's where all the keyclown folk go

To buttfuck boogie....

He gives great head jobs, he sucks hard for his money

When it's quittin' time he leaves the lot runnin'

He fires up his moped bike and lets the gerbils run

He goes puttin' out of the truckstop

To that hideaway stuck out in the woods

To do the buttfuck boogie...

Yeahhhh...nose to ass he's lowclass, just watch that faggot go buttfuckin'

Moped, givin' head, Nebo meet him out back, yer gonna buttfuck

Whoa, git down, turn around, fag keyclown, buttfuck boogie...

STUPIDASSED REDNECK SOUNDING PIANO AND VIOLIN BRIDGE
PROBABLY PLAYED BY A ROTTEN TOOTHED INBRED

The gay pimp said "Hey Mope, what'll it be?"

"I want a shot of ChukkeeSukkee there, slobberin' at me!"

The pool table's bein' used

For gay sex hotter than the 4th of July

I see assclown keyclowns, all sissies and fags

All out making it shake

Doin' the Buttfuck boogie...

Yeahhhh...nose to ass he's lowclass, just watch that faggot go buttfuckin'

Moped, givin' head, Nebo meet him out back, yer gonna buttfuck

Whoa, git down, turn around, fag keyclown, buttfuck boogie...

Gay sex, black white or mex, watch them keyclowns go buttfuckin'

Whoa, git down, turn around, fag keyclown, buttfuck boogie...

I said...gay keyclown, Mope goes down, turn around, buttfuck boogie

Yeah, faggot ass? Maybe you will bring the gang bangers with you this time, ay? What was their name? Latin Cunts, I think. Maybe the bikers, the Iron Dildos, or something like that, ay? Maybe you will bring that 9mm you claimed to own, ay? Maybe you will do a driveby and some raping and dog killing, ay?

In any case, you queerboy lump of moldy dog droppings, you hopeless gayboy fatass chump, this question still remains:

Did your mommy kick you out yet or is she still masturbating while watching you and your queerboy buttbuddies lick each other's balls?

There are several inquiries about this group on several Yahoo groups, bulletin boards, and other GMRS-related venues. They claim to be good guys who are serving their community, but no one knows how they serve and who they are. They use bluecomm at yahoo as their email address, and queries to that address get replies from different people using aliases because of their line of work, whatever that is.

My impression is that it's some guys who have a fantasy about community service, but who do nothing.

Hi there,

when I had a satellite dish put up on the roof I had the guys also put up a CB antenna (Hurricane 27).
It's connected to the same support as the dish via an L piece of tubing in such a way that the base of the antenna is slightly off to the side of the dish, a bit like this:

|
O '

The SWR is miserable (like 3 or 4 or something - it's been a while since I played with this).

Now, I once read that incorrect grounding (i.e. none) would be one possible explanation. These electricians claim that they did ground the antenna. However, since I get the occasional shock when fiddling with the satellite cables I suspect that this may indeed be the problem ;-)

Question is, does this setup have any chance of working ok?

I also ummm, had them place the dish/antenna at the highest point on the roof (about 10 m above ground level). Any thoughts on lightning protection? I've been getting conflicting advice.

Thanks,

Well "John", you should check with your attorney first. The process is to file your complaint against "unknown person or persons....", and then you can serve a subpoena on the ISP who will be more than happy to finger the person or persons responsible. You might also discuss with your attorney about what constitutes 'harassment' on Usenet, how you are going to counter the fact that he continues to post despite this 'harassment', and the fact that Chuck has been the source of much of the same type of 'harassment'......

Judging by it's overall size and wire thickness, it's probably only 50 watts peak. That means 12.5 watts RMS in AM which won't even double your range, and would just barely double the range in SSB. Hardly worth the effort when a better antenna will do the same job for both transmit AND receive.

2906. Pro510XL schematic

Can anyone help me out with a schematic for a Uniden Pro510XL. I only need the audio amp/mic input section. I'm going to try to remove the DC voltage to the mic and use a power mic or something. This should do away with it's worst path for RF feedback.

Thanks,

Chris

I have a small mag mount antenna, Cobra AT-35, that I'd like to use. It's about 2 ft tall with a 3" base - center loaded. Has anyone used this or a similar antenna with a small amp. Cobra, of course, doesn't give it a power rating but I'm looking for a practical limit. I'm also afraid of it causing RF problems to the car's electronics because of a small base.

2909. Re: Antenna mounting / grounding / lightning protection

Hello, Colin

I'm not going to tackle the question of lightning protection - that job is best left to professionals.

As far as the 'ground', bear in mind you are talking two different grounds here - one, earth ground, is important for lightning protection. The other ground, rf ground, is what radials (or a large metal body such as a vehicle) supply. You need something hung out there that will act as a low impedance ground for rf. Quarter wave (at 27 MHz) sections of wire can supply that for you. Without those, your coax tries to supply that rf ground and will end up radiating rf plus is likely not supplying a low impedance at the antenna due to its' rf length.

You can try hanging three or four nine foot lengths of wire (say 14 gauge) and connect one end to the grounded part of the antenna (where the outer shell of the coax connects). Then check the SWR. Very likely it will be considerably lower.

As far as a shock, I'm not sure but I believe that there is a dc voltage fed through the center conductor of your satellite coax. This is to supply power to the low noise pre-amp located at the dish itself. For some reason, I think it may be around 18 volts (not enough to shock you), so there may be more at work here than simply that dc supply.

I hope at least a bit of this helps ;)

Jim

There are three types of grounding: RF ground, line-power ground and lightning ground. Your dish is probably grounded for lightning strikes, and the shock you receive is the static from your body discharging to the grounded cable.

I don't know if your antenna uses a ground-plane or if it is a coaxial dipole. A coaxial dipole needs no ground-plane, but if it is a ground-plane antenna it might be lacking the ground plane (radial elements at the bottom). It's also possible that you are getting reflections off the disk. Don't ignore the possibility that it could also be disconnected, bad coax, untuned, etc.

>Question is, does this setup have any chance of working ok?

As long as the dish doesn't cause a problem. That shouldn't happen if the whole of the antenna is higher than the dish.

>I also ummm, had them place the dish/antenna at the highest point on

It should have been grounded when it was installed. However, that doesn't mean your CB antenna is properly grounded for lightning. It wouldn't hurt to sink a ground rod at the point where the coax enters the house and connect it to the shield of the coax. Use thick wire.

It's not likely that you are getting RF feedback from any DC voltage in the mic cord. At CB freqs, the coiled mic cords make excellent chokes and prevent most RF feedback from a mic. And almost all radios have caps and/or chokes to shunt any RF that may sneak through the connector.

Grounding is the real issue here. With any radio -- ESPECIALLY with a mag-mount or one of those no-ground-plane antennas -- you can have big problems with your car's electronics if your radio and amp are not properly grounded; i.e, the brackets should be bolted to metal and use very short ground leads.

Also, the loading coils in most of those shorties are usually wound with wire too thin to handle much power. Limit them for what they were designed -- 4 watts AM and 12 watts SSB.

There are two usenet groups for private investigators. Post there. They will do the contacting of the ISP's to get access to the Posting Host logs and those give the exact name/address/phone number of the person who did the post. I think they actually file a harassment suit, then the ISP coughs it up at the beginning in a "motion of discovery", but I am not a PI or lawyer so I don't want to give you false info. Go to the PI groups.

Yep - completely forgot. You have a better memory than I do. My post about telnet though was just to say you can put doubt in a jury's mind and then be innocent. But if you somehow get hold of the news server logs and the dslam logs, you should be able to prove where all the incoming and outgoing traffic came from/to, no? Otherwise, how is the RIAA doing the big busts now for pirating MP3's? And even if you can't prove without a shadow of a doubt, you end up with the name/address of the anonymous person who is fucking with you online - and isn't that the ultimate goal anyway? In reality, if you really hated someone on usenet, how much would it cost to pay some poor soul to drive to that person's house and kick his teeth into his throat? I bet you can go into a ghetto area and find some poor person that is 7' tall and 400 lbs. with 24" biceps and offer him $5K and he could do a real job on the person you hate. That's going just a tad too far, of course. :-)

Your ass sucks canal water and your mouth sucks dick. You are lucky he didn't dust your ass. That was a 12 ga. BB gun, fuckmeat. The only thing you will do is cry to be spared, so you better stop and think.
Of course that requires something you have none of, faggot man: A

I have no proof to validate your claim that this is a true statement.
I also do not know at what point a disagreement over ideologies transgressed into a "personal attack". You and I will likely view that point differently. I do not know one way or another if Frank is N7VCF, or if he indeed "started" mixing it up with you. Considering that you believe that many of the anonymous nic's who have "messed" with you (including Aaron Voobner) were either the work of Frank, Leland, or Dwight Stewart, it would be hard to argue the point without substantiating proof. Since such proof is not likely to be forthcoming, it becomes pointless to continue this charade.

Giving it back is fine. But unless you know for sure who it is that you're "giving it back" to, you're shooting in the dark, and it becomes little more than a grade school name calling match. The possibility is also strong that this is nothing more than a game proliferated solely for the amusement of one or both sides.

An even more compelling question would be why you are concerned with what I think on the matter. If, as you have implied in the past, you do not care whether I (or anyone else) accept your position at other than face value, then why would you need further validation from me?

When you're out and about on the Bay this weekend, try not to hit one of my associates. He's attempting to swim the bay this weekend, and I'm half expecting him to return sans a limb or two......

This is the kind of juvenile response you always get. I ask what is the goal of these idiots? I mean have they really stopped cbers from using linears and export radios??? I think not! So what is the point?
To just bitch & moan on a group that maybe used to have some guys that were big time keydowners and also visited this group? I agree with the other guy. Most of those guys are long gone and perhaps on the side watching this side show. The majority of their moans and groans turn into sexual innuendo of the same sex type. Again I ask why is that?
I still hear guys everyday using linears so what the fuck? Keep bitching and whining anti keydowners, maybe it will help you get out some frustration but it will do nothing to the guys with linears and export radios who dont even know you exist. Sheesh!

>to become

Whatever YOU meant by "it", is what I refer. Again, I pose the question that has you dancing like Frank-N-nad:
If MY "giving it back" is weak and transparent, what words do you reserve for N7VCF's initial inquiries concerning such? It's a simple question that apparently is causing you quite the dilemma in avoiding such.

>You and I will likely view that point differently.

Which is why I asked you to clarify, Something you are experiencing great difficulty in doing. All goes back to problems with your communication skills, Dave.

> I do not know one way or another if Frank is

>N7VCF, or if he indeed "started" mixing it up >with you.

Nevertheless, you are avoiding the question. Here it is again, in case that deficit has you so ate up, you're beside yourself with confusion.
If MY "giving it back" is weak and transparent, what words do you reserve for FRANK's initial inquiries concerning such? The pain and strain of thinking of an answer tat won;t illustrate yourself as a major hypocrite is apparently is too great a one for you to deal with. That's ok, Dave. I always knew that about you anyway.

> Considering that you believe that many of the Nice try, but no cigar. Try and focus on the question posed to you, and if you are able to answer, we can move on, but not until then.

See, if that deficit in communication wasn't readily apparent in your posts, I wouldn't have to explain how roper communication works. You inquire, you get an answer. I inquire, you reply with an answer. You haven't done so. Perhaps your deficit will not permit such (shrug).
That's your problem, Dave, no one elses. despite your childish attempts at invoking other subjects as means of attempted deflection so you can get out from under the rock you again find yourself. It was but a mere question, Dave. I didn't mean for it to send you into spasms and make you again so confused, but then again, that's what happens when you are up to no good.

Enough with all your excuses and lies, Twist. I have always had a valid email addy and it hasn't been blocked against anyone. I have never needed a yahoo or hotmail account to hide my identity. You have been able to email me directly through my ISP at any time, and still can. If you really want this to continue via email the door is open. If, on the other hand, you are just spewing your lies and rhetoric while hiding behind the social support of a few dimwits in the newsgroup then I guess my mailbox isn't going to be graced with your prose anytime soon. I suspect the latter. Prove me wrong, Twist.

2980. Uniden 510 or pearce simpson tiger 40

Which cb would be better to use. I have a ~20 year old 40 channel Pearce Simpson with a Turner M+3 mic. I also have a Uniden 510xl .
Which would be the better rig for Rx and Tx, the older unit or the newer electronics? I have peaked the tiger to just over 5 watts and I like the noise blanker and rf gain functions (that the uniden doesn't have) but did not know if the unidens newer PLL circuitry is better.
Thanks,
George

Damn Jim, you have to stop sending me those AARP emails, I'm no where near retirement :-)

As for the Band... Yeah I'm going down to LA for Fabulous Ford Forever to show the Bronco, think I'll take it and watch it on the laptop while down there.

So you are going to cast aside the core of my post because my use of

You can repeat the question until you are blue in the face, and it still won't change the circumstances.

Just like the so-called 9-11 commission, you are not really interested in finding the truth, you are merely projecting your own agenda. You enjoy and feed on controversy. If you didn't have Frank to argue with, you'd just find someone else. But before you get all wet with joy thinking that you've baited me yet another time, remember that I have nothing to prove, and will let your own words make my case for me, and will put it back on the quiet side once again, since trying to engage in honest dialog with you, is akin to teaching a pig good personal hygiene.

Words of a true paranoid......

Sigh. You really are incorrigible. I tried engaging you in a dialog which was on a neutral plain, and you immediately become defensive and insulting. In none of my recent posts have I leveled anything at you which could be construed as a personal attack. Instead, I presented an opportunity for you to explain why you feel the way that you do. Instead, true to form, you turn it back and attempt to put ME on the hot seat. And when I do not play the game by your rules, you resort to insults. And you have the nerve to call me childish?

Right now, I don't care about what Frank, Leland, or any of your other fixations are thinking. I'm asking for YOUR perspective. If you are so paranoid that you feel that my singling you out is somehow prejudicial, then that is YOUR problem. One that is illustrative in it's own way. One could claim that such behavior is indicative of a persecution complex.

What is "this" chubby? You mean your obsession with the moniker Twistedhed?
If you notice, I usually have nothing to say to you until you direct a post toward myself with some off the wall personal bullshit that pains you concerning myself. As always, whatever "this" is, it's all your doings, chub. Stop blaming the world for what ails you.

Let me reiterate the question that has you discombobulated. You claimed:

weak and transparent.
Whatever YOU meant by "it", is what I refer. Again, I pose the question that has you dancing like Frank-N-nad:
If MY "giving it back" is weak and transparent, what words do you reserve for N7VCF's initial inquiries concerning such? It's a simple question that apparently is causing you quite the dilemma in avoiding such.

>Provide me some proof to back up your claim >and I will render my verdict.

You provided you own proof, Davie. You claimed my "giving it back" is weak and transparent. If thfre was nothing initiated, ow could one "give it back"? Poor Davie.
LOL,,I'm still wating for you to offer proof of your claims, Davie, regarding your claims of the cber getting busted. ASking abother to provide proof when you are unable and unwilling to do so for your own claims makes you a hypocrite, Davie.
Verdict? Oh, my, Hahaha! I do not know at what point your idealogies transgressed into a mythical court of law in which you are judge, other than your warped interpretations. Again,I can offer you several examples, but google is there for your liking, since it matters so great a deal to yourself. Let us begin with his initiated, yes, initiated posts calling me an extra name by the name of Dave McCambell, or did you selectively miss those posts? Is his repeated posts of making this his topic, over and over, not "weak and transparent", especially since it was YOUR claim that he has no (ahem) "proof"? Careful, Dave, your're sinking as fast as you did with your lie concerning ownership of a Phelps Stationmaster and the cber you claimed you not only knew that was busted and prosecuted in court that you said was in Philly, then recanted. Then again, I must admit, I do take a certain pleasure in watching you lids self-destruct, especially when you can't even comprehend it's happening.

>Do not press me to offer up my perspective on >nothing more than your own conjecture.

(chuckle) they were your words, Dave. I merely asked you to clarify your words, and now you're all upset and confused, desperately reaching, albeit failing as usual, to grab any other topic you can.

>You and I will likely view that point differently.

Which is why I asked you to clarify, Something you are experiencing great difficulty in doing. All goes back to problems with your communication skills, Dave.

>There is nothing wrong with my >communications skills. Unlike you, I am not >one to jump to conclusions based on weak

LOL,,can't buy entertainment this good. Nothing circumstantial, Davie. Choosing to ignore Frankie's unhealthy obsession with personal identities, especially mine, doesn't make his repeated posts with me as his topic and subject line "circumstantial". That you would make such a claim indeed illustates a communication deficit. If not, then you are merely doing what you did concerning the Phelps and the cber in Philly...lying, which begs the question, why such a need to lie, Davie? Ah, never mind, it doesn't matter. You lie. Simple.

>Because you believe something to be true, >does not make it so.

Ditto with your unsubstantiated claims and lack of "proof" (your oft-requests). Works both ways, Davie, only when it comes home to roost, you bleed all over the place.

>I do not know one way or another if Frank is

>N7VCF, or if he indeed "started" mixing it up >with you.

Nevertheless, you are avoiding the question.

>I am not avoiding the question. The question

No, davie. Fat Frankie-nad indeed made many posts, with Dave McCambell as the topic, claiming it was me. That you can't see the posts can be most definitely be blamed on your massive and ever-growing communication deficit. The again, it may be your mild retardations.
Here it is again, in case that deficit has you so ate up, you're beside yourself with confusion. If MY "giving it back" is weak and transparent, what words do you reserve for FRANK's initial inquiries concerning such? The pain and strain of thinking of an answer tat won;t illustrate yourself as a major hypocrite is apparently is too great a one for you to deal with. That's ok, Dave. I always knew that about you anyway.

LOL,,,you're beside yourself. Try and remain relevant and on topic. Your need for delving into the unrelated is soothing to my cause, but detrimental to any point you once were trying to illustrate. Shall you try again, Davie? This time on topic? Here,,I'll help you along. Since my "replies" and "giving it back" (your words, illustrating I initiated nothing) is "weak and transparent"in your feeble mind, what words do you reserve for chubby Frankie's initiated posts concerning my ID? Still waiting with baited fish breath, Davie-son, and you dance is improving with age. One can not be honest with others when one can't be honest with themself. Seventy threes, OM.

This one is funny.

J
ENFORCEMENT: NEVER UNDERESTIMATE THE VALUE OF CB RADIO

Turning to the enforcement arena, never underestimate the value of an 11 meter Class D C-B radio set in catching a bad guy. Even when the alleged perpetrator happens to be the C-B operator at the controls. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has the details:

According to the CGC Communicator, complaints about interference from a citizens band radio led police to the home of one Vernando Malone of South Bend, Indiana. When they searched the premises they found more than $20,000 worth of Nextel cellular telephones and another $20,000 in Motorola phones. Also located was a computer that Malone allegedly used to activate the phones

Malone has now been charged with forgery and theft. This, in connection with what police claim was scheme to fraudulently order large numbers of cell phones, activate them with a home computer, and then sell them on the street at discounted prices.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, in Los Angeles.

The FCC also has proposed essentially eliminating its rules prohibiting manufacture or marketing of Amateur Radio Service power amplifiers capable of operating between 24 and 35 MHz. Originally put on the books in 1978 to keep high-powered amateur amplifiers out of the hands of CBers, the rules now "impose unnecessary restrictions on manufacturers of Amateur Radio equipment and are inconsistent with the experimental nature of the Amateur Service," the FCC said in its NPRM. The Commission noted that its Part 95 rules governing the Citizens Radio Service already prohibit use of external power amplifiers with CB equipment, which must be FCC certificated.

The Commission further proposed deleting §97.315, "Certification of external RF power amplifiers," and §97.317, "Standards for certification of external RF power amplifiers," of its amateur rules "to clarify and simplify the exceptions in our rules." The FCC also wants to eliminate §97.3(a)(19), which defines an external RF power amplifier kit, "because of the uncertainty created by this rule."

Indeed, there are still many local CB repair shops to be found. In Northern Utah (Ogden), there is a repair shop at the Flying J truck stop, and business has been so good lately that the tech who runs the shop in Ogden has had an apprentice set up a repair shop at another truck stop about 40 miles north. Also, whenever the DX rolls into Utah, there are repair shops located in Oklahoma City and El Paso that can be heard hawking their wares on channel 19. The local CB shop is still very much alive and well.

(April 16, 2004) Terror Alert is elevated to ORANGE this weekend. Threat indicators are "perhaps greater now than at any point" since the April 5 attack. Some of the intelligence information gathered in the past few days suggests that "extremists" like moparholic are preparing attacks that will rival or exceed the scope of those of April 5.

AKC advises those in the Michigan and Ohio area to stick to your weekend plans despite intelligence indicating that moparholic@hotmail.com is on the loose.

Those are of N7VCF, not me (but I see that he has a great pic of you holding a martini glass!). As for me, I have had MY pic on MY web page until about a month ago when I rewrote the site, but I can put it back up if you really need an image to view when you pray to me.

I have never been TOSsed by any of my ISP's. Never even had so much as a warning. I invite you to try and prove otherwise.

You did. Several times. I understand that you are lying for the sake of other newsgroup readers, but I'm curious if you would still try to push the same lies in a private conversation. So what are you afraid of, Twist?

You do realize that as soon as you receive an email from me that you can check the headers and confirm that it came from the same ISP that shows up in the headers of my newsgroup posts, but that would contradict your lie. Is -that- what you are afraid of, Twist? The truth? You said that 'truth' is your friend. So why are you so afraid to converse via email?

Gee, that's funny. Just a couple lines above you claimed that "No one said your email has been blocked", yet you say essentially contradict yourself by saying that I am unable to email you at webtv. And what abuse? I emailed you once to identify myself. If that's what you call abuse then you need to up the dose on your Paxil, because the email I received from -you- as 1mangang fit much more closely the definition of 'abuse'.

More lies. A couple years ago I was gone for several months while I was doing contract work in the sticks, yet you cried my name no less than once each week. Face it, Twist: You can't get me out of your mind.

> As always, whatever "this" is, it's all your

Nothing 'ails' me, Twist. All this time I have done nothing except hold a light to your face, and -you- have chosen the path of using delusions, lies, trolls, forgeries and anonymous nics in a futile attempt to hide your true face from yourself and others. Even now, as I continue to offer a private conversation via email, where nobody but you and me will witness your deceptions, you are still -so- afraid of the truth that you resort to the same tactics you use to avoid the truth whenever it confronts you in a -public- forum. That's why you will never accept my offer to take this to email, Twist: truth is -not- your friend. Truth is your mortal enemy. You fear it. And you fear me because I hold truth to your face.

"Pray"..lol....you're as bad as Dogie with your originality. Your just

Not true, chubby. You have been absolutely obessed with my ID. Your claims concerning my ID all come out of your left quadrant, regardless of what I may or may not say about yourself. Hell, chubby, the majority of your claims are direted at myself when there has been nothing said by me at all. You merely come out of left field and begin posting whenever you realize you were had,,,just like three weeks ago when someone took pity on your repeated ignorance and informed you were arguing with yourself...hahhaha. By me cutting and pasting your own words and watching you chase your tail and get mad because you can't catch it, you were reduced to yet another endeavor concerning your calling me Dave McCambell. Saying I wrote for Pop comm and Monitoring Times, are but a few of your incredible, unhealthy obsessions with myself that were initaited all by yourself. Claiming I call you N7VCF as a means of escape for your poor performance and behavior on this board is exactly what all not only expect of you, Frankie, but now demand. Blaming others for your actions is your poor problem, Frankie.

>hasn't been blocked against anyone.

But you haven;t always been relegated to paying for access to this free group, chubby, You're lying.

Aimcom does not provide access to the ng via the newsfeeds whcih you are now relegated,,,but you go on mentioning it and I'm sure N3cvj, N8wwm, and Kc8ldo, the only support you have ever had in this group, will believe you..

>educated you several times about the >business practice of 'outsourcing', but your

>-still- prevents you from integrating the

See above.
And your originality value was decimated by myself. Nevertheless, your homage is touching, if not illustrative of how disturbed you have become concerning myself. I take great pride in watching you deteriorate.

  That was my recent accomplishment because of your lack of self control resulting in usenet abuse... you not being able to mind the TOS set forth.

>I have never been TOSsed by any of my

Nah,,,I enjoy watching you squirm and carry on, trying to make excuses for all I say and do.

No one said your email has been blocked, chubby. Your communication deficit is rolling again.

>You did. Several times.

No,,I said YOU have been blocked from sending me email. but your learning disability -still- prevents you from integrating the concept into your grAy matter.

> I understand that you are lying for the sake of

If you understood anything, you would comprehend it is yourself nad N8wwm, kc8ldo, k4kwh and n3cvj who are inclined what others think, not I. Ask anyone whose opinion you value,,,err,,,besides the above mentioned lids that already destroyed their reputation in the world of hammies, as their opinion matters slightly less than your own.

>but I'm curious if >you would still try to push the same lies in a >private conversation. So what are you afraid >of, Twist?

Again,,send me an email from another server,,on ethat isn't anonymous. I am certain it would get through. If it doesn't, you have worn out your welcome. Nevertheless, aimcomm is not your primary isp and does not provide "outsoucing" via anonymous newsfeeds to usenet..

>I have never needed a yahoo or hotmail

Yahoo and hotmail doesn't hide your ID, chubby. But,,,, considering your paid access to an anoynymous server to access an otherwise free group...well, merely another case of your mouth saying one thing and your actions another.

Taa-taaa.....ghosts of Christmas past haunt you like no other. No wonder you are full of hate and malice and have the unyielding need to become personal. Onlly, when such is tossed back down your throat, you gag and bleed and cry and moan and screw up the group for your own personal reasons.

>If you really want this to continue via email the

What is "this" chubby? You mean your obsession with the moniker Twistedhed?

>What does that statement have to do with my

I have offered the same thing countless times. Now that you are offering the same, it is useless. Its your problem, your dilemma, your mantra that you can't get past your personal issues concerning myself. I really see no problm,,,continuing to point out you and Lelnad's personal discontent because of personal issuess you have with myself is much more effective.

You have been educated in the past concerning such. Of course, you can always email webtv and they will confirm that is IMPOSSIBLE to forge from webtv, but that hasn't prevented your communication deficit from contradicting the facts.

You hae no truth, Frank. You never did, Frank. One needs only look to where I forced you to admit what a liar you are. You admitted nothing,

Frank,,,you were cornered like the lowlife lid you are and forced to reckon withyourself because I caught you in severl lies. You have been unable to get past it since, and have perpetuated a campaign of a personal vendetta, crusade, or whatever the heck you think you are doing by remaining stuck on who I am and what I do outside this group. its no prank, steveo engages in terrorist type actions he has already prove that to be true so people in the effected areas should be on the alert

You keep saying that "I 'play' up to forges" when I have no idea what you are talking about. I represent no one but myself. I am not part of any group, I DO NOT forge people, I don't get involved in people's arguments. I have nothing to do with 'anti-keyclown' or whatever the hell it is. Now, all I have to do to post an innocuous piece of news and you fire back with some nonsense yap crap about damn forges. Bud, I represent my SELF and no other. If I want to say something, I WILL. I can take care of my own damn self YOU tell me what "antics" I've been up to? Anything I say on any message board, I am not ashamed of, and anyone that doesn't like it can kiss my a$$.

I hear the United Kennel Club is a much better organization. The AKC is for breeds like Chihuahuas and Pomeranians and the like. Useless little breeds of Dogies. The UKC recognizes Pitt-Bulls. You decide who you want affiliation with. Your mileage may vary.

What do you mean by "FCC to make CB amps legal again"? They were never legal and this action has nothing to do with makeing these amps legal for cb use.

I am in Hotlanta. Tomorrow is gonna be in the high 70's, and I am either gonna spend the day at the pool and do dinner in the city with the family; or sneak out with a couple of the kids and go scalp some tix to the Braves/Marlins game. Three more weeks of sanity, and then I go back on the road full time. :-(

If you call him a friend you might want to tell him a few things. #1 sticks and stones may break my bones but names can never hurt me. he needs to act like an adult not a tantrum child. sure he got called names in this NG so did everyone else. tell him to suck it up and walk it off. #2 its not cool to make anonymous phone calls to people on this NG then show up at there houses to challenge them to fight.
police can get involved next time around. also If doug and leland want to rumble with him then let steve leave a phone number where he can be reached. better yet may be they can come to him in medina. What's his address?

Return Receipt requested and

First Class mail

CITATION
Citation No.: C200432980001
Released: March 30, 2004
By the Enforcement Bureau, Seattle Office
1. This is an Official Citation issued pursuant to Section 503(of The Communications Act of 1934, as amended (``Act'', 1 to Mr. Les Elliot, owner of ImTec Electronics of Spokane Valley, WA, for violation of Section 302(of the Act, 2 and Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Commission's Rules.3
2. An investigation by the FCC's Seattle Office revealed that on March 11, 2004, you offered for sale at your retail store located at 11200 E. Sprague Ave. non-certified Citizens Band (CB) transceivers, namely, Galaxy Models DX series , and Amateur service transceivers, namely, RCI Models-2950 and 6900F (modifiable) for CB use. According to Commission's records, these devices have not received an FCC equipment authorization which is required for Citizens Band transmitters marketed in the United States. Furthermore, these devices bore no FCC equipment authorization labeling that is required for Citizens Band transceivers marketed in the United States.4
3. Section 302(of the Act provides ``No person shall manufacture, import, sell, offer for sale, or ship devices or home electronic equipment and systems, or use devices, which fail to comply with regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.'' Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Rules provides that ``...no person shall sell or lease, or offer for sale or lease

(including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any radio frequency device unless: (1) In the case of a device subject to certification, such device has been authorized by the Commission in accordance with the rules in this chapter and is properly identified and labeled...''
Les Elliot's ImTec Electronics offer for sale of these devices violates both sections.
4. Additionally, dual use CB and amateur radios of the kind at issue here may not be certificated under the Commission's rules. Section 95.655(a) of the rules states: ``...
({CB} Transmitters with frequency capability for the Amateur Radio Services....will not be certificated.)'' See also FCC 88-256, 1988 WL 488084 (August 17, 1988). This clarification was added to explicitly foreclose the possibility of certification of dual use CB and amateur radios, see id., and thereby deter use by CB operators of frequencies allocated for amateur radio use. The Galaxy model CB transceivers previously mentioned were identified as having the modification or the capability to enable dual use of CB and amateur frequencies. These units are Galaxy DX66V; Galaxy DX73V; Galaxy DX48T; Galaxy DX88HL, Galaxy DX33HML, Galaxy DX99V and Galaxy DX77HML.
5. Furthermore, the Commission has revised Section 2.1204(a)(5) of its rules to prohibit all marketing and/or offering for sale in the United States of such devices even when the purchaser(s) had provided assurances that the transceivers are being bought solely for export. ALL DOMESTIC MARKETING OF SUCH DEVICES VIOLATES THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934, AS AMENDED, AND THE COMMISSION'S RULES.
6. Subsequent violations of the Communications Act or of the Comission's Rules may subject the violator to substantial monetary forfeitures not to exceed $11,000 for each such violation or each day of a continuing violation, seizure of equipment through in rem forfeiture action, and criminal sanctions including imprisonment.
7. Mr. Les Elliot may request a personal interview at the closest FCC location to its place of business, namely:
Federal Communications Commission
11410 N.E. 122nd Way Suite 312
Kirkland, WA 98034- 6927 which can be contacted by telephone at 425-820-6271. Any written statement should specify what actions have been taken to correct the violation outlined above. When corresponding with the Commission, case number EB-04-ST-064 should be referenced.

8. Any statement or information provided may be used by the Commission to determine if further enforcement action is required. Any knowingly or willfully false statement made in reply to this notice is punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Ranger RCI-6900F-150 $489.95 AM-FM-SSB modes
According to the Commission's records, these devices have not received an FCC equipment authorization which is required for Citizens Band transmitters marketed in the United States.
3. Section 302(of the Act2 provides ``[n]o person shall manufacture, import, sell, offer for sale, or ship devices or home electronic equipment and systems, or use devices, which fail to comply with regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.'' Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Rules3 provides that ``... no person shall sell or lease, or offer for sale or lease (including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any radio frequency device unless: (1) In the case of a device subject to certification, such device has been authorized by the Commission in accordance with the rules in this chapter and is properly identified and labeled ....'' Mr. Lamont Davidson d.b.a. Walcott CB Sales, Inc's offer for sale of these devices violates both sections.

4. Mr. Lamont Davidson d.b.a. Walcott CB Sales, Inc. marketed these devices as amateur transceivers. The Commission has evaluated radiofrequency devices similar to those listed in paragraph 2 and concluded that the devices at issue are not only amateur radios but can easily be altered for use as Citizens Band devices as well. A CB transmitter is a transmitter that operates or is intended to operate at a station authorized for the CB service, and it must be certificated by the FCC prior to marketing or importation.4 The Commission has further concluded that these devices fall within the definition of a CB transmitter and therefore cannot legally be imported or marketed in the United States. See Response from the Commission's General Counsel to U.S. Customs Service dated May 17, 1999, 14 FCC Rcd 7797 (1999).

5. Additionally, dual use CB and amateur radios of the kind at issue here may not be certificated under the Commission's rules. Section 95.655(a) of the rules5 states: ``. . . . ([CB] Transmitters with frequency capability for the Amateur Radio Services . . . . will not be certificated.)'' See also FCC 88-256, 1988 WL 488084 (August 17, 1988). This clarification was added to explicitly foreclose the possibility of certification of dual use CB and amateur radios, see id., and thereby deter use by CB operators of frequencies allocated for amateur radio use.

6. Furthermore, the Commission has revised Section 2.1204(a)(5) of its rules6 to prohibit all marketing and/or offering for sale in the United States of such devices even when the purchaser(s) had provided assurances that the transceivers are being bought solely for export. ALL DOMESTIC MARKETING OF SUCH DEVICES VIOLATES THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934, AS AMENDED, AND THE COMMISSION'S RULES.

7. In addition to the marketing of the non-certified transceivers addressed above, Mr. Lamont Davidson d.b.a. Walcott CB Sales, Inc. is warned that Section 302(of the Act2, and Section 2.815ï¿½ of the Commission's Rules7 requires FCC Type Acceptance (or Certification) of External Radio Frequency Power Amplifiers (or amplifier kits) capable of operation on any frequency or frequencies below 144 MHz. Furthermore, Section 2.815(of the Commission's Rules8 prohibits the marketing of External Radio Frequency Power

Amplifiers (or amplifier kits) capable of operation on any frequency or frequencies between 24 and 35 MHz.
8. Subsequent violations of the Communications Act and/or of the Commission's Rules may subject the violator to substantial monetary forfeitures not to exceed $11,000 for each such violation or each day of a continuing violation,9 seizure of equipment through in rem forfeiture action, and criminal sanctions including imprisonment.10 9. Mr. Lamont Davidson d.b.a. Walcott CB Sales, Inc. may request a personal interview at the closest FCC location to its place of business,11 namely:
Federal Communications Commission
Park Ridge Office Center, Suite 306
1550 Northwest Highway Park Ridge, Illinois 60068-1460 which can be contacted by telephone at 847-813-4660. He must schedule this interview to take place within 14 days of the date of this citation. Mr. Lamont Davidson d.b.a. Walcott CB Sales, Inc.
may submit a written statement within 14 days of the date of this citation to the following address:

violation outlined above. When

I'm sure they will when they contact you. This NG is no longer a "safe place" to conduct business like yours. One long time memeber almost fainted when he found out who he was selling his modified Ham rig, to operate on 11m, to.

Ignore Lelnad. He's taking credit for something his impotent little tribe of Barney Fife wannabes had nothing to do with. Ebay has rules about amps in the CB area. Had you posted them in the Ham area, it would have sold.

Exactly right. Leland is a CBer wannabe. He's not even allowed

Yepper, the AKC controls what gets sold on this NG unless the CB faggots do it by email. We will never stop ratting out auctions and websites, and CB faggots are powerless to stop us.

Erm, Jerry: This has exactly WHAT to do with CB radio? Or even ham radio? Why not post it in the proper newsgroup, perhaps alt.cellphone.hacking. Your "story" has nothing at all to do with CB radio.

Maybe it's the heat, Jerry? You appear to be lowering yourself to the

Why? It's a perfectly legal amateur amplifier, made by a reputable American company, and I'm sure the FCC has seen some in the past. It's also a collector's item these days.

Even DSL radiates from the phone lines. I pick it up on my AM car radio while driving directly under some phone lines. If BPL is approved, (let's hope not) hopefully, the radiation does not exceed that of DSL.

Amateur Radio Newsline□ Report 1392 □ April 16, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1392 with a release date of Friday, April 16th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. Iraqi hams put out a plea to keep ham radio alive in that war torn nation and the ARRL asks the FCC to extend the filing deadline on B-P-L. Find out the details on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1392 coming your way right now.

A PLEA FROM A WAR ZONE: PLEASE HELP HAM RADIO SURVIVE IN IRAQ

Even as the bloodshed continues, hams in Iraq are asking their counterparts world-wide to keep Amateur Radio alive in the war torn nation. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW has more:

A widely publicized e-mail from Laith Adhary, YI1SRA, in Baghdad asks the worlds radio amateurs for support in keeping ham radio a part of a new Iraq. This, as the June 30th date for handover of the government to local authorities approaches.

Adhary is a member of the Iraqi Association for Radio Amateurs and works at the University in Baghdad. He says that it is urgent that Iraq establish a viable ham radio program in the country before the shift of governing takes place. To accomplish this, Laith and Iraqi Association for Radio Amateurs president Diya Sayah, YI1DZ are asking hams around the globe to and their national societies to a letter of support for the future of the hobby in Iraq.

Both men indicate that this is a time sensitive issue and request support right away.

With thanks to Ian Abel, G3ZHI, for passing the information along,
I'm Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting for the Amateur Radio Newsline.

The best way to make sure your letter of support arrives is to send it by E-mail We have two addresses. Sayah can be reached at yi1dz@hotmail.com and Adhary is at laithtariq@yahoo.com. (G3ZHI)

THE BPL WAR: ARRL ASKS FOR FILING DEADLINE EXTENSION IN BPL NPRM

Back here in the United States, the ARRL has asked the FCC to extend the deadline for comments and reply comments by 45 days in the Broadband over Power Line Notice of Proposed Rule Making. Thats E-T Docket 04-37.

The ARRL filing says that it anticipates the National Telecommunications and Information Administration report on B-P-L to go public on or around April 16th. Also, that the current deadline would allow only a couple of weeks at best to evaluate the study's results and incorporate its findings into comments in the proceeding.

Although the FCC does not routinely grant such extensions, the ARRL says that it is important to allow time for the N-T-I-A to conclude its study at B-P-L field trial locations. Unless the extension is granted, the last day to file comments is May 3rd and reply comments is June 1st. (ARRL Bulletin)

THE BPL FIGHT: SWL'S VS. BROADBAND OVER POWERLINES

Short-wave listeners can complain to the FCC if a Broadband Over Powerline installation interferes with their reception, but there are some caveats. Amateur Radio Newsline's Gary Pearce, KN4AQ, has the rest of the story:

Progress Energy has made a concerted effort to move BPL signals out of the ham bands in their trial areas near Raleigh, North Carolina. But the systems, which are governed by FCC Part 15 and are prohibited from interfering with licensed services, are still radiating signals across much of the rest of the short-wave spectrum. That's leading short-wave listeners to ask if they have "standing" to complain to the FCC, since they don't have licenses themselves.

The - General Council Chris Imlay W3KD says they do, if the BPL signals are interfering with international shortwave broadcasts from other countries, but not if they are trying to listen to domestic shortwave broadcasters. Replying to an e-mail inquiry, Imlay adds that "One does not have to be a licensee of a transmitter in order to receive harmful interference."

ARRL Chief Executive Officer David Sumner K1ZZ noted that the US is a member of the International Telecommunications Union, whose Radio Regulations require member nations to protect HF communications from harmful interference.

RR 15.12 reads, "Administrations shall take all practicable and necessary steps to ensure that the operation of electrical apparatus or installations of any kind, including power and telecommunication distribution networks, do not cause harmful interference to a radiocommunication service operating in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations."

Reporting for Newsline, this is Gary Pearce KN4AQ, in Raleigh, North Carolina.

The bottom line: If you are trying to listen to Radio Netherlands and a Broadband Over Powerline installation covers the station up -- complain to the FCC. (KN4AQ, ARNewsline(tm))

HAM RADIO IN SPACE: EXPEDITION 9 HEADED TO THE ISS

The International Space Station's next set of ham radio residents will arrive this month. Expedition 9 Commander Gennady Padalka and Flight Engineer Mike Fincke are slated to launch to orbit from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan on April 18. They will arrive at the I-S-S on April 21 to replace Expedition 8 explorers Mike Foale, KB5UAC, and Sasha Kaleri, U8MIR.

Padalka is a space flight veteran having spent 198 days aboard the Russian Mir space station in 1999. On the other hand, Expedition 9 is Fincke's first trip to space. Both are hams. Fincke holds the call sign KE5AIT and Padalka is RN3DT.

European Space Agency Astronaut Andr&#65533; Kuipers will also travel to the Station with Fincke and Padalka and return to Earth with Expedition 8 about nine days later. Padalka and Fincke will then spend about six months on-orbit. Their tasks include maintaining ISS operations, continuing science operations, conducting two spacewalks and operating the ham radio station as time permits. Their tour of duty is scheduled to end in late October when the Expedition 10 crew rockets up to replace them. (ANS, ARISS, MAREX)

RESCUE RADIO: PHONE TUNNEL FIRE BRINGS HAM RADIO CALLOUT

Raynet -- the United Kingdom's version of RACES -- was called on as March drew to a close. This, as fire rips through a tunnel carrying telephone lines across a wide area. Jeramy Boot, G4NJH, is in Nottingham, with more:

--

Raynet groups in Cheshire, Greater Manchester and Derbyshire were put on standby following a fire in a BT underground tunnel in central Manchester in the early hours of Monday the 29th of March. The fire disrupted more than 130,000 telephone lines in Lancashire, Merseyside, Derbyshire and further afield. Cheshire Police were concerned about the effects on communications, and via the Cheshire Emergency Planning Department requested the availability of Raynet operators to cover the affected area.

The Greater Manchester ambulance service lost landline and radio communications with their vehicles, but were able to use mobile phones as a means of contact. Other difficulties included a loss of 999 calls and disruption to the broadband data network. Large areas of the High Peak area of Derbyshire were without landlines or mobile phones.

Jeramy Boot, G4NJH.

The majority of Raynet members were dismissed by the evening of March 29th, but the Cheshire Group and County Controllers were on call through Wednesday afternoon the 31st. Thats when the emergency call in 999 service was finally restored to the worst-affected area of Cheshire. (GB2RS)

RESCUE RADIO: TV CHANNEL 16 GOES TO PUBLIC SAFETY AGENCIES IN NYC

On this side of the Atlantic pond the FCC has permanently reallocated 482 to 488 MHz in the New York City metropolitan area to the land-mobile service. This, for public safety communications.

482 to 488 MHz which is also known as UHF television Channel 16 has been used in New York for that purpose since 1995 when the FCC issued a Conditional Waiver of its rules to permit the initial operation.

RADIO RULES: BY-BY FORMS

And a change of forms at the FCC. Effective with Monday, May 3, the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau will dismiss any applications filed on an FCC Form 605 issued earlier than December 2003.

Form 605, the Quick-Form Application for Authorization in the Ship, Aircraft, Amateur, Restricted and Commercial Operator, and General Mobile Radio Service, is the hard-copy version of the Amateur Service application. The FCC has been accepting both older and current Form 605 applications that included room for a Taxpayer Identification Number or a Social Security number. The FCC would then issue the applicant an FCC Registration Number or F-R-N without additional paperwork.

All amateur service applicants must have and use an F-R-N when filing an application such as Form 605 with the FCC. The change does not affect applicants filing on-line with the Universal Licensing System. (ARRL Bulletin)

ENFORCEMENT: NEVER UNDERESTIMATE THE VALUE OF CB RADIO

Turning to the enforcement arena, never underestimate the value of an 11 meter Class D C-B radio set in catching a bad guy. Even when the alleged perpetrator happens to be the C-B operator at the controls. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has the details:

According to the CGC Communicator, complaints about interference from a citizens band radio led police to the home of one Vernando Malone of South Bend, Indiana. When they searched the premises they found more than $20,000 worth of Nextel cellular telephones and another $20,000 in Motorola phones. Also located was a computer that Malone allegedly used to activate the phones

Malone has now been charged with forgery and theft. This, in connection with what police claim was scheme to fraudulently order large numbers of cell phones, activate them with a home computer, and then sell them on the street at discounted prices.

TECHNOLOGY: KNRC AM IN COLORADO TURNS OFF IBOC

A broadcaster has shut down its A-M stereo system to avoid interfering with listeners of another near-by station. KNRC A-M on 1150 kHz in Littleton, Colorado, turned off the I-B-O-C or High Definition Radio encoding equipment in response to listener complaints of interference to the signal of KJJD, on 1170 kHz in the town of Windsor.

Rodger Tighe writing in the CGC Communicator calls this is a second adjacent channel situation. He reports that part of the decision to silence I-B-O-C was based on the thinking that interference to a small mom & pop station like KJJD was totally unwarranted since consumers have so few H-D radios in their hands at this time.

Tighe is the Chief Engineer of KNRC. He says that the I-B-O-C encoding equipment is still in the racks and the whole issue could be revisited at a later date. (CGC)

THAT FINAL ITEM: WORLD CLASS T-HUNTING - PART 1

And finally, a question. Have you tried ham radio's version of fox hunting? It's not hard and you might win yourself some medals. Newsline's Joe Moell K0OV has the story of the next Amateur Radio direction finding championships:

Most hams know that in Amateur Radio, the term "foxhunt" doesn't have anything to do with horses or hound dogs. Our foxes are radio transmitters and the object of the hunt is to find them with radio direction finding equipment. But what many hams don't know is that the equipment for hunting radio foxes can be very simple and inexpensive. For a two-meter foxhunt in the park on foot, you can do very well by augmenting your handi-talkie with a simple yagi antenna made out of a steel measuring tape and some PVC pipe from the hardware store. For closing in, build an offset-type RF attenuator for about 15 dollars worth of small parts. Plans are on the Web, so warm up your soldering iron. Then maybe you could be like Newsline's Young Ham of the Year Jay Thompson W6JAY, who has won a place on our country's team to the World ARDF Championships. You don't have to be a super-athlete, just reasonably fit.

To see the USA's best on-foot foxhunters in action, to learn from them, and to try it for yourself, make plans to come to southern California this June. The Fourth USA ARDF Championships get under way on June 16th, with practice sessions, a big two-meter hunt, and another hunt on 80 meters. Come out the weekend before, and you can take part in an optional intensive training camp. It's all being put on by the Santa Barbara Amateur Radio Club and it's open to anyone at any foxhunting skill level, with or without a ham license. If you're a senior, don't worry about trying to compete with W6JAY. Equal medals will be awarded in five separate age category for OM's from under 18 to over 60. There are four similar age categories for the YLs.

For everything you need to know about the Championships, including schedules, registration forms and equipment ideas, point your Web browser to www.homingin.com. That's HomingIn, as one word, homingin.com. I hope to see you there. Next week, I'll tell you about a way to get the foxhunting fun going in your own home town. >From southern California, this is Joe Moell Kay-Zero-Oscar-Victor for Amateur Radio Newsline.

Any suggestions for an antenna on a 92 Plymouth Grand Voyager. I have an Antenna Specialists trunk-lip mount antenna on the rear of the hood on the opposite side from the FM antenna. It's on an RCI 2950. If I could find something a little more broadbanded, that might be better. Oh, it also has to clear the ceiling on parking garages.

I do not need to tell him anything. At 44, he is old enough to make his own decisions. Additionally, he can read so I am sure he saw your list. You can be friends with someone and not agree with everything they do. You do know that, don't you? I have made more mistakes in my life than I care to list in this post. I bet we all have.

Consulting. I am part of a team of folks that goes into Fortune 100's and

Starr ave. the drive is in an alley to the south of Starr. Main ST. which is also the Cherry St Bridge, going south from front
st. you go to Starr ave. and make a left, going east. cross the railroad tracks and make a right on the first street, and then you'll see an alley on your left, turn left and the shop should be the last drive on

You and I will have to agree to disagree. IMHO, Usenet is a great place to chat. But I view it like chatting in person. If you say something so enraging in real life that someone punches you in the nose, why isn't it sort of the same here? He obviously can't punch you in the nose, but he can ask you to meet him somewhere so he can. Would you walk into a biker bar with a picture of some transsexual porn star / model and start waving the photo around and pointing to one of the bikers and yelling that the transsexual was that biker's woman and he is therefore sort of gay? Would you expect to be able to do that for about a minute or two before he came over and punched you right in the snoot? Why is it so different here? Or are you suggesting that Usenet is not a fun place to chat, but is instead a barrel where predators come to shoot fish? Because if it is the latter, what kind of fun is that? There has to be more to Usenet than just fucking with the weak.

IMHO, that is what I am seeing. And some folks view Steve as weak, and he is not. He is standing up for himself, and that is the right thing to do. Maybe you do not agree with his methods - you view them as intent to assault. But if someone says that shit to me, I am going to have the exact same knee-jerk reaction; to want to punch someone in the snoot. I do not think his reaction is unexpected. And I do not think every fight in the world is assault. Sometimes one or both of the people in the fight are getting exactly what they deserve or expected.

You left out the option of ignorng it or walking away. If some ones
first response to being called a name on usenet is physical assault then they are a very insecure person dont you agree?

Of course LOL every person feels like they want to punch some one in the mouth for saying something or other the difference is they dont act on it because they are mature grown ups.

If two people want to fight and agree to fight there is nothing wrong with fighting. when only one (i.e. steveo) wants to fight and shows up at your door and starts to fight it is an assault. do you see the difference?

I race a 2003 Z06 with Lingenfelter heads and 250HP dual stage wet N2O.
I also have a 73 Roadrunner that I will run next year; though I had hoped to have it ready this year. It will have a 472 Hemi crate motor, and hopefully will be close to as quick as Steveo's Mopar. Though, I think he has a ton of $$ in his. Mine will have about $20K in the motor and tranny, and another $10K in other stuff. I am into the 03 Z06 for about $70K now, so I can't really sink that kind of cash into a second car without my wife

When I first moved to GA from CT, we refused to come out before the sun went down for the first 3 months down here. Neighbors probably thought we were vampires. And GA heat is nothing compared to TX. Not even in the same league.

I love to troll, but you are missing my point. Usenet is real. You and I are real. If you said something offensive to me, my choices are to blow it off or get upset about it. That's no different than real life, is it?

It sort of is. It is not always anonymous, and we are real people.

I would probably not want to spend that kind of time - but I bet $1 that you and Steve have completely different feelings about who started what.

> You left out the option of ignorng it or walking away. If some ones
> first response to being called a name on usenet is physical assault

Yes. And from personal experience. I am insecure at times. It feels good when folks like me, and if I like them and they don't like me I am hurt and it bothers me. Which is probably why I am not that good of a troll. I take some of this shit to heart.

> Of course LOL every person feels like they want to punch some one in True. You can't always act on your feelings, and you can't always say what you are thinking.

> If two people want to fight and agree to fight there is nothing wrong > with fighting. when only one (i.e. steveo) wants to fight and shows up
> at your door and starts to fight it is an assault. do you see the

Yes. But I also see something else that you might be missing. Let's say I know someone is really sensitive; so I fuck with him on Usenet. Let's also say I know he has a problem controlling his temper, but I keep pushing and pushing even though I know that. Granted, when he shows up at my house looking for trouble it will be assault; but didn't I have complexity in the whole thing because I kept spooling him up knowing that sooner or later his head would explode? If you know Steve has a hard time controlling his temper sometimes, then you should be the person who does not taunt him. Why does everything on Usenet have to be conflict?

I'll tell you something else that rubs me wrong. Every time there is a fight on Usenet, the other person is always accused of being a pedophile or transsexual. Now I can't think of a single good thing to say about pedophelia; but I hate that transsexuals and gays (are those one and the same?) are treated like a cancer and a tool for slinging mud. I really liked my brother-in-law, gay or not. And some of his friends were transsexuals; and even though they were obviously quite confused souls; they were human nevertheless. I would say to leave the transsexuals alone, and call people Muslim terrorists. That's a type of person that everyone can hate!

The word is 'complicity', but you fail to realize that each and every person (with no neurological or phychological disorder) is responsible for his or her own actions.... and reactions. We are capable of making careful choices by predicting and considering the consequences of our actions. That's just one attribute which seperates humans from the more primitive members of the animal kingdom. So if someone chooses to react to a loud-mouthed jerk my giving him a fat lip, he does so of his -own- volition, and nobody else is responsible. The only problem with such a response is that it is indistinguishable from the normal behavior of most small-brained invertebrates.

So then you contend that a physical response to a verbal attack is never a reasonable one? I disagree. I think verbal abuse can be just as injurious as physical abuse can. The pen is mightier than the sword is an expression that may have validity in this context. I do not think punching someone in the nose is an unexpected response to brow beating.

You can't injure what isn't real. The people on this news group who deliberatly hide behind fake ID's suffer no real injury, real or imagined, because ouside of this group, or usenet, they don't exist.

Physical violence on the part of some members of this group is nothing more than an expression of their frustration from the lack of controlling another. They haven't matured to the point where they can relate to another on an adult level, and thus try use violence to control other people in their life. In fact I wouldn't be a bit surprised if the violence they express on this news group most likely extends to their home environment too. Maybe we should ask Steveo how many times he's slapped his wife, or kids, around for disagreeing with him. One of these days his wife is going to get the courage to dump him if that's the case.

That's not what I said. Generally speaking, physical confrontation is one of the natural responses from animals that are incapable of rational thought. Just because such a response was taken by a human does not assume, imply or suggest that the motivation behind the response was reasonable.

> I disagree. I think verbal abuse can be just as injurious

You contradict yourself. If the pen -is- mighter than the sword, then carefully chosen words would be a far more effective "punch in the nose" than a punch in the nose. As such it -reiforces- the premise that a physically violent response to verbal taunting is an indication of a lack of intelligence.

You mistake the use of the expression. It was to show that the words people spew on Usenet can be incredibly hurtful.

> As such it -reiforces- the premise

Not true. Violent response is instinctive. Fight or flight. There are plenty of intelligent people in the world who have been violent in response to various situations. With regard to intelligence - since a portion of it is nature (as opposed to nurture), then your view of elitism based on IQ in essence somewhat justifies the acts of people like Hitler, who wanted to trim back the species in an effort to create a super race. IMHO, there is no shame in being unintelligent. We are not to be rewarded for genetics, as they were nothing we earned.

Answer, Clyde; I can think of absolutely -no reason- why he would want to email me, because he is scared shitless of confronting the truth without the support of idiots like you to defend his lies and deceptions.

No mistake. You suggested, and I agree, that "verbal abuse can be just as injurious as physical abuse can". The part you left out was that physical abuse doesn't require any intelligence. But now that you have narrowed the field to verbal abuse on Usenet, don't forget that nobody is being forced to read any post by anybody. Along the same lines, if someone says something that might otherwise be considered offensive, it doesn't take many smarts to consider the source and respond accordingly. And the response is a whole other ear of wax, as there are many different ways to respond to a troll so as to 'turn the tables'. For instance, you can just shrug it off, but that's no fun. Or you can troll right back and start a flame war. Or, if the newsgroup is really boring, you can play the troll's game but using subtle remarks intended to provoke predictable responses. Now THAT'S fun!!!

In other words, anyone that gets hurt by the words of a newsgroup troll has a constitution (read: 'understanding of human behavior') that is far too weak for Usenet, and should probably take up a different hobby.

You have assumed too much, and in the process contradicted yourself again. The premise that physical violence is a sign of stupidity is not an argument; it is only a premise as stated. The fact is that physical violence IS a response that is characteristic of lower forms of life, but the ability to -overcome- such primitive instincts is characteristic -only- of humans. You have confused cause and effect -- remember when I said that "Just because such a response was taken by a human does not assume, imply or suggest that the motivation behind the response was reasonable"? Well, it works both ways: Just because physical violence was used doesn't necessarily mean the motivation was UN-reasonable. There are indeed rational justifications for violence, and those justifications are usually determined by the social order. If the social order is reasonable, so may be the justification for a particular act of violence.

It's not about 'elitism' as you suggest. Nor is it about race, creed, color, religion, sexual orientation.... or even mental retardation. It is about using the faculties you have to the best of your ability and helping others to do the same. Assuming, of course, that you want to distinguish yourself from the rest of the animal kingdom.

By the way, selective breeding is not a practice that was limited to Hitler: Do you know why Prince Charles is a bleeder? Because he is of "Royal Blood"; i.e, a product of selective breeding. The practice also exists in less conspicuous forms in our "free" and "classless" societies. Ever been to a dog show? Same thing. Lot's of racists at dog shows. Many of them wouldn't even think of letting their children marry into any family that doesn't have a 'pedigree', let alone another race. Ironically, that's a NATURAL instinct -- preservation of the race -- that must be overcome just as much as a propensity for violence.

And what privileged communications had you had that proves it? Steveo's constant string of threats to several people are a matter of record in this news group. A simple Google search will show that quick enough. Steveo can't handle his problems in a rational adult manner. Since he threatens people on this group there is no logical reason why he shouldn't do the same at home. That's how he handles all his life's problems. He doesn't like somebody's opinion on this NG he threatens them. If they don't shut up he threatens them. ETC. In short if he can't control a person he makes more threats in a vain attempt to control the uncontrollable. All his screwing around with threats, showing up and peeking through peoples windows while taking photos like a pervert, will sooner or later land him in a jail cell.

Interesting point Frank. What is usually not mentioned often in history classes are the large number of idiots, cases of mental retardation, birth defects, etc. all do the high level of inter marriages among the ruling classes.

Since the coax is all you saw then I did a good job bcause you missed the roof monuted system. One coax and a triplexer, Comet CFX-514, will handel three V/UHF antennas at up to 800 watts on the triplexer. The power limit is a bit lower due to the RG-58 coax cable. A medium gain dual band V/UHF antenna, for 2m and 70cm, is only 5 feet tall. A 1/4 wave 6m vertical is also only about 60 inches tall as well. Pushed back far enough from the edge of the huge flat building roof you're not going to see anything.

Of course you can try to insult the CBers who also live in apartments and

That is beyond fucked up. In fact, that is child abuse. Why would someone try and starve a child to death just to fuck with an ex-wife? Pathetic. I am absolutely disgusted. BTW, who is Dogie - what name does he use in this group?

Yes, dumbass. Everyone who disagrees with you is Steve. You should sit Yea, I know. MAN, are people sensitive! I read the story, thought it was amusing (like those "Darwin Awards", or a guy robs a bank and his pants fall down, etc), and just posted it simply as a funny story. No harm meant at all, and I got a sarcastic reply. :).

That is true. But consider this. Someone with a genetic predisposition to intelligence will have an easy time with academia, and will excel at mud slinging on Usenet. OTOH, someone would have to show commitment in working out, studying martial arts, etc. in an effort to be able to physically spar with another person. So, one's ability to defend himself (verbally) came for free in his DNA, and the other had to work for his ability to defend himself (physically).

> But now that > you have narrowed the field to verbal abuse on Usenet, don't forget

That is an excellent point. If someone had willpower, he could just throw the attacker into his killfile and be done with it. But I think you need to consider that not everyone has willpower; and that many folks have low self esteem. You cannot fault folks for that. I suffer from panic attacks and have to take a medicine for it. Am I less of a person in your eyes because of that? Do you think I want PA? Conversely, do you think people want lack of willpower, or low self esteem?

But I submit that you can really be eaten alive on Usenet while trying to defend yourself against a good troll. And that can be very frustrating. Some folks memorize or keep softcopy on their hard drives of every insult they have ever seen slung. They also generally excel at googling for the purpose of making the opponent look bad. You cannot beat a skilled troll. They can dig up dirt on you, but are totally anonymous themselves. It is a no-win situation for the person being attacked. And they become frustrated.

> Or,

Again - only if you are good at counter trolling. And not everyone has that skill.

That may be the most valid point you have made. But it is akin to saying alcoholics should not drink. Sure they shouldn't. But it does not mean they won't. Same with Usenet. We are here to share ideas, or at a more basic level many are here because they are lonely. Some are shut-in's too - unable to go out into the real world and mitigate their loneliness. Those are all valid reasons to be here, and some trolls take advantage of the fact that some people will stay and take the abuse. A classic case of bullying. And when being bullied, a classic response is fight or flight. And one type of fight response is the physical type.

But you assume that someone has to be a primitive thinker to respond physically. I do not agree with that premise. I do not consider myself unintelligent, and I have no compunction against popping someone in the snoot if he deserves it. Actually, I would have to think twice about it before I did it; but I think some folks deserve it and it is the only way to fight them.

> You have confused cause and effect

But then you agree that physical violence can sometimes be a predictable response; and further you aver that the social rules of the community will eventually dictate whether that was a correct response.

> It's not about 'elitism' as you suggest.

You are wrong. To state that intelligent people spar with words, and the less intelligent people within a society spar with arms and legs is elitism. You are classifying people by the decision to use a fist or a pen. And you attributed the decision earlier to IQ.

No, this is about a really good troll kicking your ass with words, and the response being to want to meet in person and intimidate the person into shutting the fuck up (or just punching him in the snoot). And I do not think it is unreasonable of a response to have; nor do I think it has to to with intelligence.

> By the way, selective breeding is not a practice that was limited to

When you say "bleeder", do you mean hemophiliac? It could be possible. But that is not what the Hitler statement is about. Prince Charles did not decide that one race, color, or sexual orientation was so much better than the others that he had to exterminate 25,000,000 humans to defend the idea. Hitler wanted a supreme race. He started by killing gays, Jews, gypsies, the handicapped; and eventually also killed anyone who disagreed with his vision of a master German race. My point was that it is elitist to feel that the better class of human can spar with words, and minimize the fight response of other humans just because they cannot spar on a verbal playing field.

I do that, and there is nothing wrong with it. I have told my five children that they are welcome to date whomever they want, but when it is time to marry and procreate; there are a few rules:
1) Only marry another Jew. Additionally, made sure it is a Jew that knows the practice of our religion and will at least take his/her children to High Holidays.
2) Only marry Caucasians. I do not want Milato grandchildren that will be verbally abused and isolated by thier peers. Avoid having freak-show children even if African Americans are just as nice as anyone else. Caucasian also means not Asian, Indian, or Latino. And I have nothing against any of those races.
3) Only marry someone with a college degree. I do not want my four daughters to marry men who will be manual laborers.

This is not being racist, IMHO. It is just a parent wanting his children (and subsequent generations) to have a better life.

do = due. And the problem was twofold back then. You didn't want to marry outside of blue-blood because you were just further increasing the amount of folks with access to the wealth and power, and less making surfs. Balance of power. Secondly, there was the belief that breeding with the lower class would dilute the superiority of the upper class. The idiots self destructed.

USA has 125,000 troops in Iraq right now. And they are not there to talk.
When one Government attacks another, is it because they cannot rationally do it without violence? Violence is a valid response. The actions of our government, and the history of duelling both prove it.

Based on the photos, I have to assume the "amartment management" is comprised of one 400 lb. black man that goes door to door the day after welfare checks arrive. My wife always says that people are always 1

Hey RWwhat about the huge contoversy re if the war in Iraq is justfied. if the so called WMD. ties with bin Laden exist etc. so the Iraq war isnt validated as you say. Pearl harbor wouldve been a better example for your case and that does not even fit right. I dont feel Stevos actions are in any way parelal to history and war LOL in dueling both parties have agree to face each other with the same weapons. In steveos case he got no such agreement he just decided to harass and attack people in their homes. and he is prefer to stay anoinymous while his two victims are exposed.

I don't know if it was justified or not; I am using it as an example of the fact that a supposedly "elite and educated" executive branch and congressional branch that is made up for hundred upon hundreds of America's best somehow decided that talk was cheap and an iron fist was better.

Again, duelling was an example of educated and articulate Americans using the sword instead of the pen. Lincoln demanded a duel - I just read about duels in last month's Smithsonian and it covered Lincoln, Hamilton, Burr and some others in detail. Those were well educated men.

Is he anonymous? Is there anyone in here that does not know his name and address?

Tell that to the 3000 who died in the trade towers and their families. Who did they threaten to deserve to be murdered by some group of religious extremists?

What did all those kids who died in the Okalahoma Federal Building bombing do to Timmy McV. that they had to be murdered as a response?

steveo here is the truth I know you dont want to face it but here it is.

leland and Doug are hams and there addresses and names are confirmed by qrz orother online database. When they sign their post with a callsign as Leland does and as N8 sometimes does it is the same as putting there personal info out there for everyone to know. You onthe other hand have only given out moparholic@hotmal.com and steve parks medino ohio as your info. If that was traceable then doug would have already done it dont you think? or are you that stupid? of course there is the plate number you have been seen driving the car and the Peeble conection wich you deny. so you have not been honest and you have not play fair, you have just snuck around and take photos into peoples homes without there permission all the while giving them no way to contact you by telephone or visit you as you did to them.

What on earth are you talking about? Can't you follow a thread without being hand held and walked through it? I stated that Violence is a valid response. Why do you think we are in Afghanistan and Iraq?

Again, what on earth are you spewing about? BTW, we killed McVeigh and are about to kill his accomplice. Again proof that violence is a valid response to actions.

Why don't you two meet at a local YMCA that has a 16' or 20' boxing ring?
They have 14oz and 16oz gloves that you can use for free if you have membership to any YMCA. Search the web for the YMCA closest to you and call them to see if they have boxing there.

Yes, I will be working near Philly starting in a few weeks. Is DoW actually Geo? Hey, DoW - when I get to Philly I will be working out 3x per week at the closest USCDKA facility. How close are you to Absecon, NJ? In fact, here is a list of all the schools - which is closest to you? http://www.uscdka.com/Pages/schoollocations.htm If there is not one close by - how about any YMCA with a 16' or 20' ring. What town do you live in - I will find a ring for us. Do you have your own 14oz gloves, or do I need to bring 2 pairs? I can get anywhere within about 90 minutes of Philly any evening except for Thursday, which is when I assume I will be flying home.

I am not sure that Gold's typically has sparring rings. About 1/2 of the YMCA's do. And most boxing schools will let you spar as a guest for $20. I can spar at an US Chung Do Kwan Association school for free, and bring Geo as my guest. Obviously I am in Philly to work, but I think I could probably drive about 90 minutes each way after work to spar for 15 minutes or so and still get back to the hotel in time for a shower, dinner, and 9 hours sleep.

Not true. For example Thomas Edison was kicked out of school because his teachers though he was "addled". His mother had to teach him at home.

http://inventors.about.com/library/inventors/bledisonbiography1.htm

"Edison was a poor student. When a schoolmaster called Edison "addled," his furious mother took him out of the school and proceeded to teach him at home. Edison said many years later, "My mother was the making of me. She was so true, so sure of me, and I felt I had some one to live for, some one I must not disappoint." At an early age, he showed a fascination for mechanical things and for chemical experiments."

Nobody today would consider Edison dumb considering his list of inventions and his genius in making the odd scientific principal in to a useful device that improved the living standards of millions. In fact he was the first to discover and document the "Edison Effect" the foundation which became the first vacuum tube used, a diode, and was the basis for rise of the electronics field with the addition of the control grid by Lee Deforest.

On a planet with 6,000,000,000 folks at any given moment, there will be exceptions to every rule. BTW, Edison was close to deaf, wasn't he? And wasn't Einstein dyslexic? If course there will be intelligent folks with minimal academia (or ones that struggle); but I suspect that is the exception and not the rule.

And let's not forget the cancer threat from the radiation. Call the local

Leland is proof that they will never learn. Let's just keep responding to this thread forever, shall we? I don't think Leland will ever get it.

Your claim is violence is a valid response. Well what did they do that the only thing left was to murder them? I'm looking for the "valid" in the "valid response". It also goes by the name "justification" too. All I see is violence for violence sake.

You still have me lost. What are you asking me to do - explain why OBL did what he did? What are you driving at? USA attacked Afghanestan and Iraq. IMHO, at least one of those is extremely well justified, if not both. That is proof positive that our society and government believes that violent response can be a better choice than diplomacy. I am not sure what the limit of good taste is here, but from what I have seen in the time I have been here; you and some of the other antagonists are getting a good dose of Steve's temper and you have done everything you can to deserve it. I have only seen a bigger group of antagonists on Usenet in one other group: alt.usenet.kooks. And in that group, that is what they do for a living. What is the excuse here?

That place needs to be resurfaced. That was pathetic. A pothole during a $10M race? That's a bunch of shit. Unfortunate turn of events for Jeff.
And they don't have lights - they better finish this race soon or they will be driving with flashlights duct taped to the dash.

They have no lights, and have only done 290 of the 500 laps. They have no choice but to drive with it wet. Or finish the race at 400 laps. Put up a red cone and drive around it. :-)

Good joke SteveoChicken, but that has already happened. The people involved learned the finer points of Part 15 the hard way and went away. You should read up on it. Every bit of your home electronics is covered by Part 15 which says in short if a Part 15 device is screwed up by a transmitter in a licensed serviced, well tough luck to the owner of said device. Case closed. This is the legal protection Hams enjoy from complaints by people who should be complaining to the manufacture of the malfunctioning device for not including more RF filtering and interference protection. And is something that illegal CBer's runing mod'ed radios and extra legal power get screwed on when the locals call the FCC. 11m is NOT a licensed service and thus enjoys no protection from interference complaints.

You know what the FCC does with confiscated illegal radio equipment SeteveoChicken? It goes to a local junk dealer while a FCC agent watches as everything gets smashed in the car crusher. NOTHING is sold. And how do I know, well my brother visited the Detroit FCC field office a few years ago to find out. And the above is what he was told by the head man. FREE!!

For advanced techs and serious radio hobbyists, we're now offering a FREE copy of our previously published "CB EPROM DATA BOOK" by Martin Pickering. (EPROM = Erasable Programmable Read Only Memory.) We sold it for many years but it's now out of print. This little manual of 60 illustrated pages is an absolute GEM of CB technical knowledge you'll just never find anywhere else. And it's yours for FREE from our Web site.

This book reveals the secrets of advanced channel programming, and picks up where our "CB PLL DATA BOOK" (www.cbcintl.com/pllbook.htm) leaves off. You'll get a thorough background in how these amazing programmable chips can be used to modify many popular CB PLL circuits for expanded frequency coverage. Covers the basic programming techniques, and even includes real PC board artwork for making EPROM circuits. Sample artwork includes EPROM boards for the popular MB8719, PLL02A, ï¿½PD2824, and ï¿½PD858 PLL circuits.

I will be in Philly starting in late mid May. If you want to talk smack in person, you just let me know. But be sober please - I can't deal with sparring against some slurring drunk. I have too much self esteem to lower myself to that level.

A tale of two men: Theodore Roosevelt was a "sickly" child until he was a teen, at which time he decided to buff-up. He eventually became one of America's most famous bad-asses. Winston Churchill had speech difficulties throughout his childhood, which I believe included severe stuttering. He buckled down, put his mind to the task of developing his communication skills, and became not only Prime Minister but one of the greatest orators in the history of the world.

If someone doesn't have the willpower to turn off the computer, or their self-esteem is so low that they are unable to socialize anywhere but an abusive newsgroup, then it's very likely that those are only symptoms of a much more serious problem. My first guess would be that the person has way too much time available to worry about things that have no importance. My suggestion would be to gas up the car, drive to a remote location, smash the distributor, then spend a few days trying to survive. Anybody who has been there comes back with a fresh perspective towards life and it's little complications.

That's why trolls exist. Their sole purpose in life is to exert control over others with nothing more than words, probably because they have no control of their own lives or are being controlled by someone else in the same manner. Whatever the cause, the effect is the same. In other words, if someone is compelled to read every troll post directed at him it's probably good that he reads it, because eventually he must make a decision based upon what he has learned. And if he has learned nothing from being manipulated by trolls then he truly is an idiot.

Oh for cryin' out loud..... The need to socialize is part of the human condition, and you can't substitute it with a computer or TV. Are the neighbors any more offensive than Usenet trolls? Are people so shut-in that they are incapable of operating their telephone and inviting people over for brunch? And if -you- are not a shut-in, what prevents you from visiting those that are?

Usenet is only a method of communication. So is television, and radio, and snail-mail, and a multitude of other media. But none can supplant face-to-face interaction, complete with its non-verbal intricacies, social anxieties, and sometimes even its confrontational attitudes. Get out and meet people. That involves seeing them, hearing their voices, pressing the flesh, smelling their fragrances (or odors); and if you find one that's really cute, get a good taste! There is no substitute.

Unplug and play!

>eventually dictate whether that was a correct response.

That's real close -- I didn't say violence can be predictable, but since human nature is predictable, I suppose that's true. However, I said that the motive for violence can be rational; which, of course, doesn't mean that violence -must- be rational, or that a rational motive must be found to justify the desire to act violently.

>> It's not about 'elitism' as you suggest.
>You are wrong. To state that intelligent people spar with words, and the >less intelligent people within a society spar with arms and legs is elitism.

Wrong. I'll make this as simple as possible: When a response is warranted, the person with the capacity for rational thought has more, and usually better, choices available than the person whose choices are limited to duking it out with fisticuffs.

>You are classifying people by the decision to use a fist or a pen. And you >attributed the decision earlier to IQ.

Maybe I didn't make myself clear on this topic..... First, 'IQ' is an attempt to quantify, in relative terms, a person's intelligence. The grade means very little since the people who write the tests can't even agree on the definition of 'intelligence'. But science has determined that humans use only 2 to 10% of their available grey matter, and -nobody- has made any findings as to how much brains equals how much intelligence, or even if there is any such relationship.

It doesn't take much brainpower to think rationally. Logic is but a few basic concepts that can be comprehended by anyone willing to learn, regardless of IQ, simply because logic is based upon reality. If you can accept reality, you can learn logic, and you can therefore think rationally.

Think of it this way: You have two computers. One is a VIC-20, and the other is a super-conductive supercomputer. Both perform logical operations according to a set of instructions. In that respect there is no difference. True, one has more memory, can handle more complex instructions, and has far more interfaces. But even a VIC-20, like the human brain, can be expanded well beyond what most people would consider to be its practical limit.

Nobody said anything about "class". And like I said, nobody is forcing anyone to "spar" with anyone else. Turn off the damn computer if you don't like what you read. Nobody is responsible for your lack of willpower but you.

That explains the 18 million added to Hitler's body count. It's what I call "Stalin-envy", and stems from a persecution complex. And before you cop an attitude, no I'm not anti-Semitic -- the Jews are no different than any other human when it comes to personality disorders.

Well gee, that makes sense because white kids NEVER verbally abuse or isolate other white kids, do they? If your answer is yes then it is -you- that is isolated.

Of course you don't. You just don't want their genetics intermingling with your's.

Hmmmm..... weren't you just trying to denounce elitism?

Making decisions about yourself and others based on racial stereotypes is indeed racist. In fact, that kinda defines the word.

Dogie doesn't own the property or street. He cannot file trespassing charges. It's a multi-unit, section 8 slum.

You give the man too much credit. Remember the battle that was fought between Westinghouse's AC power distribution system (compliments of Nikola Tesla, a brilliant scientist previously fired by Edison) and Edison's DC power grid? Yep, Westinghouse won, but not before Edison's smear campaign resorted to the public electrocution of puppies. Edison himself invented the electric chair, but if I remember correctly, most of the inventions attributed to him were actually invented by employees of his company, not by Tommy-boy. Including the discovery of the "Edison effect". Edison was the early 20th Century equivalent of Bill Gates, ripping off ideas from everyone else and marketing them under his own name.

That is fair to say. But a person with the capacity for rational thought has the option of being a pugilist.

But you contend that fighting can never be a rational decision, correct?

Then you heard wrong. IIRC, Hitler directly caused the death's of somewhere between 6.25 and 6.75 million Jews, 1M gypsies, some lesser amount of gays and handicapped, 17 million Russians, and a few million Allied troops.

Here is a study by Hawaii University listing it at 20.9M, but I am sure I have read 25M in other studies:

No. You are wrong. The 18 million you think someone added is based on your belief that Hitler killed only Jews. You need to brush up on WWII. He killed Jews, Gypsies, gays, the handicapped, untold Russians, and Allied troops.

> Making decisions about yourself and others based on racial

Not actually. Statistics are indicators. If groups such as NAACP had their way, statistics would be made classified and future studies would be made illegal. But the statistics speak for themselves. And I do not need to be racist in order to view those statistics and know I do not want my children to marry African Americans. But it's not even so much that, as it is the fact that I want them to marry Jews who grew up with the same traditions and values as they are being raised with.

So, you show your true colors. Calling others elitist after your moronic diatribes about IQ and enlightened choices. Typical. Tell you what, sunshine - you could come watch him try to kick my ass. Or would that be too offensive to your effeminate and delicate sensibilities?

At least I am honest. At most you are a moron. Here is to hoping your children (if you can even find someone stupid enough to spawn with) marry black men; as 8 out of 10 will be incarcerated by the age of 30. Then you can come back here and whine about babysitting your Milato grandkids while your daughter drives from her section 8 tenement to the local prison for the weekly visit.

Wow! Appears Dogie's a real winner! I suppose, you know, him being indigent and all, that he must have stolen the radio equipment he has. Of course, I guess he could have been saving quarters to buy the radios, since he got a court appointed attorney. Could be either way.

Not correct. Go back and read the thread because I won't repeat myself on this Soldiers are killed in combat. Combat is not "extermination". Hitler was bent on genocide and herded over 7 million -civilians-, mostly Jews, into the gas chambers. THAT'S "extermination".

And Stalin killed around 35 million of his own people. What difference does it make except to make him even -more- evil than Stalin, who had no genocidal plans to exterminate the Jews or any other race? War sucks and soldiers die. Some civilians die, too. But it was the GENOCIDE that made Hitler the evil tyrant. And his attempts at genocide netted about 7 million bodies. Isn't 7 million enough? Why do you need to believe that the death count is higher? Do you need more bodies so you can feel even more persecuted? Then build a time-machine, go back to 1933 and give Hitler a helping hand. Otherwise, accept the facts as they happened.

Yes actually. From Websters: "the practice of racial discrimination....". By making decisions based on race you are discriminating (to distinguish, show partiality) against other races. That makes you a racist.

You want your children to be racists in a world that is turning away from racism? Gee, and I thought you wanted the best for your kids.....

I'll agree that violence is a response, but "valid"? That's a slippy one. It depends on what one's definition of "valid" happens to be. I can see anything from natural to justified as a refinement of the base definition.
I lean more towards "justified". The debate is interesting to read, however with out a mutually agreed on set of definitions a critical point may not be communicated as intended. That would explained why legal speak is so complex. It's necessary to remove the ambiguity in language, written or oral. That's what I'm really looking for here.

tesla was done in by edison and his (tesla's) lack of commercial wherewithal. tesla's laboratory was here in shoreham (north shore long island 60 miles east of nyc).
also, the local powers to be decided to honor marconi by moving his radioshack from the south shore to the next town over from shoreham (rocky point) forgetting to mention tesla's contribution to rf.
in the same town the 5200 +/- acres that used to be the rca transmitting range for broadcasts to europe now constitute the largest open space (preserved) on long island.

I don't think anyone knows the true answer except for OBL. I do not buy into the canned explanations that Al Jazeera and BBC throw our way. I think there is a lot there that we do not know. I do know that we had a relationship with this guy - that our CIA used him as a pawn against USSR in Afghanestan. I also know he is from Saudi Arabia; and that they are fundamentalist. Something is awry in that lunatic's melon; so it's not easy to guess what is going on inside there. Perhaps a mix of fundamental hatred for the West somehow mixed in with some issues at being a pawn for CIA and then forgotten when USSR splits up. Also, we were buddying up with Saudi Arabia during Kuwait; and he of course was thrown out of Saudi Arabia because he was a proponent of overthrowing the Crown Prince.

I would pick natural over justified. You continue to antagonize Steve, and it is a natural response for him to want to pop you in the snoot over it.

> USA attacked Afghanestan and Iraq.

It was a reaction to an earlier event. It was not out of the blue, like Napoleon waking up one morning and deciding he wanted to rule the world. USA attacked Afghanestan because Taliban hosted OBL and Al-Qaida, and supported the WTC attack. Which brings me back to why I used it as an example. Steve is mad at you folks because you folks keep fucking with him on Usenet. I cannot fathom why you people don't see the relationship between his anger and your actions.

Tesla was done in by not being anti-Semitic. Edison was best buddies with Henry Ford, the recipient of the highest award Hitler ever gave to a non-German. Edison was an anti-Semite; and he and Henry used it as a tool to divide the working class and become quite rich and powerful.

Perhaps Afganistan, but I'm not so sure about Iraq. The US has many other means to overthrow a government as powerful as Iraq other than by force. The issue may not have been so much the toppeling of Saddam, but of quenching the chaos that would result afterwards. In that respect, it was (and still is) absolutely necessary to have a substantial force present in the country. Perhaps it was felt that the US could suffer less casualties by taking Iraq while Saddam was still in power instead of putting down an multi-factional Islamic civil war. So violence may not have been warranted at all, but the limitation of violence may have been of primary concern. And if there was a genuine threat that Saddam would support terrorist activities, WMD's or not, then the purpose of the action was to prevent violence, not justify it.

You are the only racist here. And you even deny statistics. Here are some for you to chew on, Herr Gilliland.

US Census
www.census.gov lists the following statistics including:

Blacks population is 35.1 million, or 13% of the total population as of 1999.

www.fbi.gov lists some statistics including:

77 percent of murder victims in 1995 were males, and 88 percent were persons 18 years or older. By race, 49 percent of victims were black and 48 percent were white. 91 percent of the assailants were males, and 85 percent were 18 years of age or older. Fifty-three percent of the offenders were black and 45 percent were white.

Dept. Of Justice
www.ojp.usdoj.gov

Surveys of 12 cities in 1998 found that black residents in urban areas experienced a higher rate of violent crime than urban whites in a majority of the cities.

US Prison System
www.prisons.org
Almost two million people are behind prison and jail bars in the United States. 70% of the incarcerated population are people of color. The fastest growing group of prisoners is black women. In 1994, one in three black men between the ages of 20-29 were in prison, jail, on probation or on parole. In 1995, 47% of state and federal inmates were black, the largest group behind bars. Black men were 7 times more likely than white men to be in prison.

www.naawp.com
Blacks murder more than 1,600 whites each year. Blacks murder whites at 18 times the rate whites murder blacks. Blacks murdered, raped, robbed, or assaulted about one million whites in 1992. In the last 30 years, blacks committed 170 million violent and non-violent crimes against whites. Backs under 18 are more than 12 times more likely to be arrested for murder than whites under 18. About 90% of the victims of interracial crimes are white. Blacks commit 7.5 times more violent interracial crimes than whites, although whites outnumber blacks by 7 to 1. On a per capita basis, blacks commit 50 times more violent crime than whites. Black neighborhoods are 35 times more violent than white neighborhoods. Of the 27 million nonviolent robberies in 1992, 31% (8.4 million) were > committed by blacks against whites. Less than 2% were committed by whites against blacks. Of the 6.6 million violent crimes, 20% (1.3 million) were interracial. Of the 1.3 million interracial violent crimes, 90% (1.17 million) are black against white.

National Institute of Health

Of newly HIV infected women, approximately 64 percent are black

Juvenile Criminal Delinquency
www.ncjrs.org
whites made up approximately 80% of the juvenile population. Black youth accounted for 31% of all delinquency cases, 37% of person offense cases, 26% of property cases, 32% of drug cases, and 33% of public order cases. The person offense case rate for black youth was more than three times greater than the corresponding rate for white youth and nearly five times that for youth of other races. The drug law violation case rate for black juveniles (13.4) was more than twice the rate for white juveniles (5.3) and more than five times the rate for youth of other races (2.5). In all offense categories, the case rates for black juveniles and for white juveniles were higher than the corresponding rate for other races.

Personaly I just got my licence o 4-17-2004 and there was a fairly good debate going on about this exact subject.

Heres what the end result was the 5 wpm code should open up CW ONLY freq. but not limit any other freq you should be allowed to go to extra with no code but not able to operate on the code freq. as far as the computer generated CW yes you could argue that but in the event of an emergancy can you build a telegraph key or a computer? personaly im a no code tech right now but i plan to take my general then study the code and take it mainly for tradition and en case there is no other way to communicate if i can get a message to someone in code even at 5wpm at least i got my message out.

The real flap had more to do with business and the economics than anything else. Edison already had a big investment is DC power plants, he invented the electro-chemical electrical power meter, the commercial dynamos etc. He was no dummy and understood that the AC system could provide more efficient power transmission. One of the other big hangs up was the major use for the new electrical power industry was simply electric lights. Unless the frequency of the AC system was high enough the early light bulbs had an annoying flicker to them that didn't exist when using DC. I think the early AC system used 20 or 25 hertz. And different areas of the country used different frequencies and voltages too.

>Yep,
>Westinghouse won, but not before Edison's smear campaign resorted to the public

The man was trying to save his business. Was it ethical? With hindsight no. But then again look at what happens today, namely with cigarette smoking. The tobacco companies have all but out right lied to keep a hold of a market the government could kill overnight with a wave of the regulatory wand.

> Edison himself invented the electric chair,

I also seem to recall reading where they also use to take them around on "tours" strapping hunks of sausage on to the arm rests and leg restraints to simulate human limbs to show the public what happens during an execution. Some people I heard passed out from the stench of burnt meat.

>but if I > remember correctly, most of the inventions attributed to him were actually > invented by employees of his company, not by Tommy-boy.

That depends on who you ask. Some feel if it was his employees then why weren't many of these inventions done before, and by others. If you ever get a change to come to the Detroit area they have Edison's lab at Ford's Greenfield Village. They conduct tours through the lab complex, yes it is a complex with machine shops, power house etc. I think you will find it very interesting along with the comments from the tour guides about some of the details of the day to day work routine Edison kept.

> Including the discovery > of the "Edison effect". Edison was the early 20th Century equivalent of Bill
> name.

I've heard that claim too. What confuses the issue is the difference between basic scientific research and the hard engineering it requires to turn a scientific discovery in to useful products for public use. Edison did some of the former and much of the later. And most companies today operate that way to day. All but the largest companies, like IBM for example or the old Bell Labs, can afford the cost to do basic research without any grantee that a commercially viable product will be the result.

Oh, that's good! Use statistics to defend your racism, but when the facts are put in your face you call -me- antiSemitic! See, you're not so bad at this trolling thing at all!

>> Yep, I hope he kicks your racist ass.

I don't deny statistics. In fact I aced the course. I just recognize them for what they are -- numbers that people will interpret in any way they see fit.

> and 88 percent were persons >18 years or older.

And they should marry very young lesbians.

> By race, 49 percent of victims were black and 48 percent >were white.

Your statistics mean absolutely nothing. First you need to know the population of both black and white males over 18, total number of murder victims, and what percentage of your victims were in what age groups, and THEN apply your victim percentages. Let's say (for the sake of argument) that there are 13 million black men between 18 and 35, that 100,000 people were murdered in one year, and that 30% of those murder victims were in this group (black male 18-35). That means, each year, any black male between 18 and 35 has a 0.24% chance of being murdered. Ok, now let's compare that to a white male of the same age bracket. If the black-to-white ratio holds, then there are 100 million white males of the same age group. Of those, let's say that an even percentage (30%) were murdered. That puts their chances of being murdered at 0.03%. Smaller to be sure, but just how significant is 0.24%? We have to break it down geographically. The vast majority of homicides occur in dense urban areas, which, by some strange coincidence, are heavily populated by blacks. So now we have a confound -- are these people being killed because of their race or because of where they live? Compared with other areas of high urban density, it turns out that the US is not very different than any other place on earth REGARDLESS of race. Maybe you can make the argument that blacks are -forced- to live in urban areas, but that doesn't work because most suburban and rural areas have varying degrees of racial integration without any correlation to the level of violent crime. So THAT doesn't wash.

You can use any statistic you want to make excuses for your racism, but the bottom line is that YOU are a racist and YOU are the problem; not the blacks, the hispanics, the whites, the jews, the asians, or any other ethnic scapegoat upon which you want to dump your ignorance. Because, like it or not, you are doing exactly what Hitler did -- using an ethnic group to blame for the ills of society based upon..... (are you ready for this?).....

Hi all, I'm looking for a good reference manual, pdf file, or web site's that will assist me in converting used UHF gear to operate on 11 meters. I'm finding there is a substantial market for such gear and I'll need some references for various solid state and tube conversions.

Thanks in advance for any help.

I guess an Extra should be able to figure it out. I would say it would be a lot of work to put UHF FM gear on 11 meters AM/SSB. Too much work in fact. Now if he was going to use them on GMRS FM I would say go for it BUT it would still be illegal as they won't be FCC type accepted. Get caught selling these things, lose your Ham ticket.

That doesn't make any sense. UHF gear is suited to the 400-600MHz region. 11 meters is 27MHz. You would have to completely gut the unit and replace all of the tuned circuits.

Besides, it is very ILLEGAL to run any non type accepted gear on the 11m CB band (unless the power is in the milliwatt region.. Even in today's relaxed enforcement environment, running funny gear on 11m can get your ham ticket pulled.

I seem to recall a "CB" class of operation IN the UHF region way back when.
Long before MURS and such came into play. Actually I think the new stuff such as MURS replaced the UHF CB band. Maybe he is confusing the two bands?
IF NOT, WOW..... that is a task and a half. As others have stated, legality will be out the window. Lou

There used to be something called Class A citizens band, which was AM modulation... I think on 460 MHz. There were a bunch of tube transmitters built for that band, most notably the Vocaline, and some of those can be sort of tweaked to kind of run on 440 MHz if you don't really care much about stability. A lot of them used bend-until-it-works capacitor and inductor technology.

I do not think this is a currently usable band. Although if it WERE currently usable, Fair Radio has a bunch of UHF AM aircraft transceivers for the military air band, which they are practically giving away right now. Not type-accepted of course...

>IF NOT, WOW..... that is a task and a half. As others have stated, >legality will be out the window. Lou

The 11M crowd has never been one for worrying about legality. Which is kind of a shame since there's clearly a need being met there.

You would be hard pressed to find a Jew that does not feel as I do. You may find some Jews who won't say it, but that is a different case. Hitler did a wonderful job of removing about 90% of us from the planet. The only hope for our religion is to protect it from being further diluted. USA is a melting pot, so Judaism is truly at risk here due to the acceptance of and propensity towards mixed race and mixed religion marriages. You won't see that is some small subcultures such as the Russian Jew area of Brooklyn that I grew up on, or in even more distinct subcultures like the Hassidic Jews; but in typical mid America, anything goes. If Jesse Jackson stands on his soapbox and calls for African Americans to marry other African Americans and preserve what is left of the culture that was brought here from Africa 300 years ago, everyone bites their tongues and cowers to the SIG's like NAACP; in fear of reprisal. Go ahead and organize a "million white man march" against Affirmative Action, and see how far Black America tolerates it. Ethnic pride is only allowed if you are not white. Fuck that. USA was founded by white Europeans, not black slaves that sold each other into slavery. Everyone should have equal rights, and there should be no affirmative action, no welfare state, no food stamps. If you can't afford to live, go live with a family member. Don't take my tax dollars because you are too fucking lazy or ignorant to work. And if blacks can have ethnic pride, so can whites. What percentage of Blacks have white spouses? certainly a hell of a lot less than 1%. Are blacks racist then? That guy Frank is a fucking moron. He plays the race card just to get out of losing an argument. That is so typical of Usenet that it's pathetic.

I am not enabling anything. Steve has not once asked for acceptance of his actions. He is older than I am. A grown man with his own family, and the ability to make his own decisions. I just chuckle about all of this stuff after the fact. I had no idea he was going to visit Doggie Howzah. I found out when the rest of you did. So how did I enable him?

The Armenian judges gave this a 9.8 on the Olympic Troll-O-Meter, but they were over-ruled by the umpires in instant replay, who award it a 1.4.

The Armenian judges lodged a formal protest!

It was sufficiently trollish, of course, but way too obvious. It was poorly written, poorly executed, and was so incredibly lame as to lack the true drawing power of a really masterful troll.

Maybe as high as a 1.6 for the intense stupidity of the premise, but a 9.8? Never!

The Armenian judges tear their hair out, throw their balalaikas down in dismay, and perform the traditional Armenian Dismay Chant!

They demand a recount!

Am I mis-understanding or mis-interpreting something, or doesn't 11-meter stuff have to be "type accepted"?

I can't imagine homebrew conversions being "type acceptable"!

You always have the religion of the mother. So, if the mother is Jewish you are Jewish. So I do not think you can have someone who is 50% Jewish. It's not like race. But, if you marry someone who is not Jewish and do not raise the child Jewish; you go from 100% to 0%. That is what I am trying to avoid. Additionally, racism is the belief that one race is superior to another. I have no such belief; I just do not want my children marrying any other races but caucasian. From a dictionary standpoint - here is racism: "The belief that race accounts for differences in human character or ability and that a particular race is superior to others. "

Another facet of racism is intolerance. I am not intolerant of other races. Race does not affect my hiring practices, for example. I just want my children to marry Caucasian Jews from USA.

> wow that is almost word for word what Hitler said. when he was > starting out speaking in the beer halls. german Beer halls were the > internet chat rooms of the day LOL

No - Hitler wanted to exterminate anyone who was not his idea of the master race. I do not think there is a master race, nor do I think anyone should be murdered or discriminated against because of race or religion. There is nothing wrong with a white parent wanting his child to marry a white person, just as there is nothing wrong with a black parent wanting his children to marry a black person. An interest in maintaining ethnicity and culture is not racism.

Those are not redneck fantasies. They are Steve defending himself from Doug and Leland in a way that he feels is appropriate.

well,
2 problems with that price:
1. its a USED amp
2. you can BUY a new one for less than that <ok, more problems>
3. its a "Dirty" amp (most class C devices are)
4. it ain't legal under part 95 or part 97 (for the ham types).

basically, you got a lemmon there.

You haven't been to Israel. I have. There you will find radical fundamentalists such as yourself, but they are not as common as you think. Even many of the orthodox Jews have a level of racial acceptance (call it 'tolerance' if you wish) that puts you to shame. The secular crowd really doesn't give a shit about a person's race except where the Palistinians are concerned. The issue there is that most Palistinians are hostile to the Jews (with good reason), and because of that they are forced to acknowledge that almost all Palistinians and their supporters are Arabs. But if you travel the country a bit you will find Jews of just about every color. They don't care, so why should you? Because you are a racist.

What's worse is that you are using your religion to defend your racism. Just like any of these white-supremicist churches you hear about on the news. I'll bet you attend a white-supremicist synagogue.

I am not in Africa or Spain, so that is a non-issue. When I grew up, it was only acceptable to marry Russian Jews living in NY City. This is not much different than the last generation of Russian Jews.

I have no interest in white supremists. And no matter how they water it down, do not kid yourself into thinking they are otherwise. And when they talk about whites, they are talking about Christian whites. Stormfront, Skinheads, the KKK, and USA Hitler movements all hate Jews.

Sure Frankie,,,I can take it up in email, after you provide for several of your unanswered claims that have haunted you for years and contributed to the demise of your reputation on usenet. After all, they were your claims, unsolicited, and when you present a claim the burden of proof is on you. I understand your unyielding need to snip and cut all that pains you greatly, but they won't go away. Now, if you can handle proper communicative technique, you will understand that first inquiries (questions) posed to yourself based on your initiated and unsolicited claims are to be answered prior to your begging, demanding and foot stomping that another do what you ask. Of course, you can't comprehend this and never could, which, as we all know, stems from your simple but obvious communication deficit.

>I do not get upset about any CB law being >broken."...Frank Gilliland

>(Sparky@cet.com)

Hmmm,,I'll allow you a pass on that one, as all know, nothing (well, alost nothing...myself being the sole exception :) sends you into uncontrollable grief and spasms faster than a post concering or containing cb, freeband and amplifiers, despite the fact they are very much part of radio today.

>I work for an organization that is legaly >authorized to use the freeband. C. Frank

>Gilliland

Say it, don't spray it. The entire group is still howling with laughter over this little gem of ignorance you made in a drunken stupor.

>Everything I say is a lie.

>Frank Gilliland

Yea,,,now that was extracted from you during one of your more lucid moments.

>RF Pirates affect me directly in my work.

>C. Frank Gilliland.

As usual, another unsolicited claim concerning your "work", even though you have professed to haev three separate jobs on this group. Nevertheless, an unsolicited claim that is unsubstantiated by any other than the one who was forced to reckon with his lying ways, means nothing in any context.
My particular favorite,,,
You have claimed to be a US Marine, yet know nothing of Fire School, hilariously making the self-deprecating gaffe that it may be a "new" term...LMAO. It doesn't reqire an reply from you, Frankie-nad, it just makes me feel good to remind the group of your continual lies and subsequent begging of the group to believe anything, anything at all, you claim or post. You are not only a picture-erfect example of all that is detriment to hammie AND cb radio, but a disgusting, lowlife that claims to have been a US Marine. Nothing could ever be further from the truth, than your attitude combined with the low self-esteem you continually project and the need to claim something you are not, especially a Marine Then again, it's your life story in usenet.
What else?

Oh yes,,You have accused me of using mindspring, aol, earthlink, living in WV, being BOTH someone named Mike AND Dave residing in Fla, while simultaneously being a hammie named Roger Wiseman, writing for pop comm AND Monitoring Times, being Richard Cranium, and most recently, Baked Potato.LOL..I sure have you screwed up, Frankie. Your head sure is Twisted, Frankie. Who do you think I am today, Frankie-lad? Ah, never mind. This golden tidbit explains it all,,,
"I have admitted to lying in this newsgroup, and on more than one occasion."...Frank Gilliland
Once a liar always a liar, Frankie. You sure are coming apart at the seams lately, Frankie. Carry on, and try not to choke on the anger you are failing at containing. Carry on, my chubbed, angry man, carry on.

Very simple, go out a throw away the piece of crap of amp you have and buy a nice Alpha and your problems will be over! remember crap signal going in, even a worse signal coming out!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Over the last 8 years i've own this alpha i never a had flaw or problem with this amp.
If your serious about amateur radio like i am, please go out and buy yourself and nice equipment that you will be proud to own!

gud luck, metal guy.

First of all, there are almost no blacks living in Israel. Secondly, I have yet to see an American that used the legal right of return move to Israel with a black spouse. Never. And I am not saying there are not one or two that have done so, but it would be the rarest of occurances. In 40+ years, I have never seen a black at any synagogue I have attended. And I was in an Orthodox temple in Augusta, which must be at least 40% or 50% black, as well as temples in CT, NY, and most recently Marietta, GA.
So you can keep waving your Nazi flag and whining about Sammy Davis, Jr.; but I am not impressed.

I have never done anything that would contradict what you are labeling as racial tolerance, Herr Gilliland. All I have said is I would like my children to marry white Jews. Nothing wrong with that. I don't burn flags and I don't go to KKK meetings. Do you? Because I have heard you were quite active in the Nazi movement. Care to comment on why you have been to so many meetings?

Don't lecture me on Palestinians, dumbass. There is no such thing. Just Trans Jordanians looking for a free lunch. Middle East is over 99% Arab owned - do you see any of the other Arabs offering to take these Trans Jordanians?

Non sequitor, dumbass. Care to tell everyone about the Nazi meetings you attend?

Call me it all you want, Herr Gilliland. It is well known that you are anti-Semitic and just trying to cover your tracks.

Gee, Frankie,,,didn't know you were so overtly concerned,,,,he can ascertain your claim,,,he merely has to post from that direct access again.,

>He did.

Hahaha...Sure he did,,,,in May,,that was the last time, Since his disappearance, he has yet another access site.

>Which "direct access" do you mean?

Exactly. Hall claimed only one. Thanks for clarifying.

>posted from 209.120.201.77 (Yipes) on May >12 (Message-ID:

>3EBF8064.30BA@worldlynx.net)

Don't forget 209.120.200.73

>and from

>207.103.222.111 (Voicenet) a day later

>(Message-ID:

><3EC0D2BA.5C8C@worldlynx.net),

And don't forget 207.103.222.114

>which >means that he has access through both >services.

Indeed. Which contradicts N3CVj's claim of only one posting "access".
Again, I thank you. Dave lies as much as you..but I never thought you would be the one to loudly illustrate his intentional but incompetent lies.

>And you probably didn't notice that the

>Voicenet IP is fixed while the Yipes IP is >dynamically allocated (209.120.xxx.xxx). IOW, >his Voicenet access is probably DSL or cable,

Probably not, as I usually don't notice these things,,but when one makes a claim that only one access is available to them and people like you prove them wrong,,well, I can't help in pointing such things out, especially when said person was unprovoked and unruly in their manners and etiquette concerning simple communications to another for no reason.

>but he can access his account using dialup >through Yikes.

Illustrating he has a choice of how he accesses,,,,something he denied.

>Regardless, his email addy hasn't changed >and neither have the format of his headers,

Regardless, his claim wasn't about email, it was about his accesses. He lied, you busted him. And regarding his headers, sure they have changed ,,,better check with him before you start claiming such,,he isn't the one claiming his headers ahven't changed, so I have no need to dispell such with the truth.

>both of which are the best indicators that he is >still using the same ISP as before,

As before what?As before his claim that he used a villanova account only temporary?
You're falling Frankie, as always.

>and hasn't >been tossed by you or anyone else for ISP >violations.

Of course not,,,,you girls attribute way too much power to myself..I can toss no one,,I am not an ISP,,,I am not a webmaster, I am not a moderator,,those are your self-admitted, failed wet dreams.
,,you mentioned "ISP".

>...yeah? So?

Why are you bringing ISP's into this equation?

>Because that's what you are talking about.

No, I'm specifically speaking of access to this group....example: google allows one to post, but isn't an ISP.

>What do you think all those IP numbers >mean?

Google has them too,,,,,,,,,so why don't you explain the difference to yourself so you're not so cornfused and coming across like a heretic and forced to bust your lying azzed friends..LOL.....because I'm not really interested in what you say,,and going by the responses you have managed to garner in the group, you have effectively managed to alienate most,,,,,the only replies you receive are Lelnad, N8 and Geogre shills,oh, and of course your lowly self. I merely made the observation concerning Davie's claimed he had always accessed the group in the same manner,,my spamblock proved it false the first time and you just proved it false a second time. For that, I thank you.
Your imagined battle to which you refer this constant "losing" appears to have resulted in each and every one of the voobs named faves losing posing accesses. Strange coincidences from the aliens and their signals, eh, Frankie? Think I'll go back to "losing" more often. It's funny at times and at others, mildly amusing.

>Well, I'm certainly laughing at the fact that you >have been proven wrong yet again!

That was Hall the hypocrite you proved wrong yet again. And he hasn't posted using the other access since May,,,how do you figure that proves anything?,,,,But let's assume he can and will post from there again,,,,,it nullifies his post I held on to where he claims "I have always accessed the group in the same manner and have no reason to do otherwise",,,,we can also fish out his post in the same thread where I illustrated he accessed the group in several different manners, then turned around and claimed he doesn't know why his ISP routes his posts to several other accesses..either way it makes him a liar,,thanks for pointing such things out, Frankie mah boy!

>The only thing I pointed out was your >ignorance of ISP subcontracting.

LOL,,perhaps that was your intended, but with your magnificent incompetence, you managed to point out Davie's "ignorance". See, Frankiestein, it was Davie who claimed he had "no idea" of how his routing and ISP "subcontracting" and posting works, so, the only thing you managed, was the "pointing out" of the ignorance of n3cvj and his statements. If you forgot he made those claims, I would be more than happy to refresh your memory.

>Oh yeah, and the fact that he was never >tossed.

Perhaps,,,,perhaps not,,,,I believe the latter.
He still has yet to post from the old access site.,,but it seems to upset and bother you a great deal, Frankie.

"I do not get upset about any CB law being broken."...Frank Gilliland (Sparky@cet.com)

>I don't.

Hahha...sure you do Frankie,,you have a plethora of liquid-courage filled posts raving about the inhumanity, lawlessness, and "irresponsibility" of illegal cb operators. You have used the word "anti" and the made up word "keyclown" too many times for anyone to believe you simply "do not care"......you have defended the erratic and attacking behaviors of n8, Lelnad, wa3moj, and the other radio scum while calling others names simply for expressing their views..most recently, your self-example is your claim that you refuse to assist one with certain questions as you're in a cb room and the questions pertain to ampifiers and hammie radio,,,,,but if you didn' "care" like you attempt to ply when you're under the influence, there would be no issue,,,,LOL,,,,see, Frankie,,you really aren't sure of anything...just keep tossing the whoppers out there,,it makes for great drama....oh, along with your unquenchable thirst for hate..you also claimed ilegal cb was your "moral" duty to "fight" against in the same post,,,,,,,,you're really way in dep with the self-contradictions, Frankistein.

>Well, you sure got me there, Twist.

You got yourself with your lies, Frankie, as I'm not attempting to "get" you in any manner whatsoever, Frankie,,,you;re paranoia is doing this to yourself, Frankie.

>Do you need the reason explained to you a >fourth time?

Sure,,keep going,,,,you ilustrate what a lying lid N3CVJ Hall is with each post you refer to him.
Your explanations contradict your other posts. In one post you claim such things do not bother you, yet in another, you attempt to justify your anger, attacks, and erratic behavior by blaming it on cb and claiming it's somehow YOUR moral obligation and duty to do something about illegal cb....have you always exerted so much impotent energy on that of which you do not care about? Speaks volumes for your well-being and mental status..actually, it merely illustrates what a habitual and pathological liar you are, Frank.

>Who do you think I am -this- week, Twisty?

Now doesn't that beat Hall,,,er,,ALL,,LOL! Not concerned with who you are, Frankie,,the defeated ego and self-hatred dictates you fancy yourself a "somebody" illustrated by your self-claims of being a broadcast engineer..your ego needs a boost and you attempt to boost and soothe it through claims that you feel somehow mean somehting to another besides yourself. If that was the cxase, your hordes of posts wouldn't be ignored, for the most part....not one reg is replying to your posts, Frankie, except me, as I give back better than you dish out. You've done exceptionally well solidifying your reputation. And despite your cries that you somehow do not care about cb, your pathetic cries about rules and regs, coupled with your anger that you blame on others (abdicating all sense of personal responsibility) illustrates your repeated and involuntary lies.
You refer to yourself as "Frank", as that is your chosen internet name. Does your identity crisis, low self-esteem and self-hatred now dictate you retreat to the "guess-who-I-am" game, again,Frankie? You always run and hide your tailfeathers when your lies and self-contradictions are shared with the world. Does this somehow take away your flawed accusations that I use mindspring, aol, earthlink, live in WV, write for pop comm, am a hammie named "Roger", show headers to prove such, tell me I am now "Richard Cranium" in Rochester? LOL..Gee whiz, Frankie,,,,,,,,,to even the most green webtv layman, it appears you are the one professing internet ignorance when it ocmes to reading ISP headers,,,,,LOL.

them up,,,you never disappoint, as does the hypocrite N3CVJ Hall.

>What "other 3 'jobs'"?

That's what happens when one lies as you do,,youcan't recall which lies you told to who,, >hey, I forgot that you think I'm still active

>USMC, too.

Not surprising. A deficit in communication as great as yours makes it diffult for you to retain conversations as recent as last week. Nevertheless, you made a stand-alone claim of "I never retired" concerning the Corp.....nor did you attempt to qualify such claim when it was posted. "Never retired" would be construed as currently active by those not suffering from such deficits as yourself. Go on,,,ask around.

>Yeah, that's a lot of jobs to hold down, >don'tcha think?

Oh, heck yea,,,,,,think they would pay as much as Lelnad claims to make and still allow you both the free time you each put in here? In addition to YOUR statements concerning YOUR service in the military, YOU now are making yet more claims concerning YOUR job which, alas, is more than likely another lie, given your predilection and fondness for telling lies on the internet.. This illustrates your low self-esteem, self-hatred, whacked ego, need for acceptance, and incurable satiation concerning what others think of you. All the compete opposite of what you have claimed in the past..no surprise, eh Frankie.....

>I have, and I admitted it, "Like a man!"

Onca a liar always a liar.,

>Brilliant logic, Twist.

It is.
And a liar is not a man, a liar is a low life scumbag.
You realize such, as you slowly are becoming unglued realizing the way you are viewed by the majorty in rec.radio.cb, and more than likely on the hammie forums as well,.

>Let's see what happens to your brain when >confronted with this little classic paradox:

>Everything I say is a lie.

No paradox exists. Your scenario isn't plausible, let alone possible, even when applied to the world's foremost and most notorius liar. Try not to think so hard Frankie, you merely end up allowing your involuntary emotions that I control to dictate actions that illustrate your ignorance.
Besides,,you had no choice,,you were forced to admit your lies, as they were conveniently illustrated for all to see, otherwise, you'd still be self-contradicting yourself whenever the power of twist moves you......

>You have no choice but to bury your lies in >more lies.

>Your megalomania won't let you do anything >else.

Interesting how I'm accused of lies only when you or the voob's named faves come gunning for me unprovoked, eh, Frankie? LOL! Obfuscative techniques after you made a lying azz of N3CVJ won't work. Interesting how my "meglomania" only comes to fruition following a post directed toward myself by one of the big 4 losers,,,yourself, Lelnad, N8, and wa3moj.

>Any more stupid questions, Twist?

They weren't questions,,,,they were inquiries

>Uh huh, and Clinton never had sex with >Monica, right?

LOL..run, Frankie, run.
I told you once, Frankie, I don't dwell on yesterday and history such as yourself. Instead of living in the past and remaining angry over history and that of what you can not change, you ought try living in the present and try being less of a jerk.,,you know,,the golden rule and all that you refuse to practice.
If you didnt tell such whopper lies all the time on such a regular basis, there would be no room for such inquiries now, would there be, Frankie,,,,,.....if you really wish, we can grab tons of "stupid" questions in direct response to your lies and claims,,in the past week you have accused me of being all kinds of different people,,now I'm Cranium?
Ahhahahhahha..you're head sure is twisted,
Frankie,...and your rage is out of control,,you can no longer contain yourself.,,you're ate up over this identity crisis that ails you and your mental capacity is rapidly deteriorating, once again, over that of which you have no control, and it's eating away at you like a cancer.

>Your concern is noted.

As is your low self-esteem. Your arrogance is allowing your ignorance to mistake my congenial replies to your initiated threads as concern. You couldn't be more mistaken.

There has always been plenty you can't see. The reason for this is multi-fold. The obvious and self-apparent is your communication deficit, your inability to see things as the majority (read: educated and normal populace) do, and your self-imposed learning disability. Your lack of self-control, penchant for lies, jealousy, and anger all add to the soup.

Spoken like a stereotypical Jew.

Now don't start whining about antiSemitism -- if you are going to lump people yourself, and I'm just helping you achieve that goal.

Don't like it? Then don't do it.

No one considers Dogie N8WWM and Lelnad KC8LDO hammies except themselves. No wonder, Dogie is a criminal, being convicted for,,what was it..non-child -support and related items against children? What a scumbag. N3CVJ made a claim that he found the illegally monitoring and intercepting of teenages girls speaking of sex "juicy." These lowlife scumbags are well deserved of each other's company. Let 'em all rot in hell together. They deserve each other. Lowlives,,the lot of them.

>I represent no one but myself.

Your anger has you self-contradicting yourself. Need to see some posts where you claim you "represent" those on ten meter from being wrongfully intrudede upon by non-licensed truckers? So far, that's two lies in one post, Oxendine. Keep protesting your innocence by way of ignorance and I am certain I can illustrate how far from grace you have fallen from your earlier days, lid.
You know, you really shouldn't have participated in the behavior begat by the scumbags of hammie radio, but its too late for that, as you now come to find. Google bears out your transgressions quite nicely, no matter how loud you protest, no matter who you cry to.

>I am not part of any group, I DO NOT forge >people,

Again, you repeat your innocence regarding forging when none have accused you of such. Such vehement protesting has the opposite effect, and I am sure, given the amount of concern you give this idea, you are filthy dirty in this department, as well. You're no good, Oxendine, You're a troublmaking lid, and I'm gonna make certain the world of hammies know it.

>I don't get involved in people's arguments.

Responding to what you know are forges illustrate exactly what you "get involved in", Jerrkyo! Deying it only reinforces your guilt when your behavior is there for all to see.

>I have nothing to do with 'anti-keyclown' or >whatever the hell it is. Now, all I have to do to >post an innocuous piece of news and you fire >back with some nonsense yap crap about >damn forges.

Since you ignored my earlier inquiry of why you would reduce yourself to participate in such behavior when you maintain (read: lie) that you do not get involved in such, I believe the hammie world has the right to know what a lowlife lid you have become. In fact, you probably always were, but something I said recently rubbed you the wrong way and you just couldn't control yourself any longer. There have been a myriad of forgesof me over the years, and you have ignored them all, until recently. Just can't help yourself, Oxendine. You're a louse,

>Bud,

Let's get this straigh, scumbag, I ain't your "bud". You're a scumbag that plays to forges and you fit well with the likes of N8WWM and KC8LDO.

>I represent my SELF and no other.

Again, I would be more than happy to present posts where you claim you indeed represent others with your postings concerning ten meter "bandits". You're so beside yourself with denial and lies, you have taken to repeating yourself with false claims.

>If I want to say something, I WILL.

And when you step out of line and begin taking on characteristics reserved for my pound puppies of N8WWM, KC8LDO, N3CVJ, and N7VCF, you will be called on it. Speak all you want, but your nefarious behavior will not go unnoticed by those whose opinions I hold in high esteem. Something you and the other lids can't comprehend, is that there are MANY sandbaggers on this group who NEVER post. Or perhaps you lids don't even care about that, after all, you lids can't even muster self-respect, let alone respect for others.

>I can take care of my own damn self

You can't even take care of who you respond, let alone anything else.

>YOU tell >me what "antics" I've been up to?

Responding to forges you know are forges. Y'all can respond to them all the live long day, it's something I expect from the lowlifes of Dogie and Lelnad and Frank. From you, I never expected it. I now know better. You are exactly what legions of cbers AND hammies on this forum, and others, have claimed, only I was too trusting to believe it, based on past conversations we have had, both on the group and in email. You have since solidified your position as a lid and a scoundrel.

>Anything I say on any message board, I am >not ashamed of, and anyone that doesn't like it >can kiss my a$$.

Well, that is certainly the attitude all have come to expect from you, Oxendine. After all, it's not like you would have a problem with those who would play up to forges of yourself, should they suddenly appear, eh, big guy? Nevertheless, should someone wish to take you up on your offer of kissing your azz, you would need to mark the spot, Oxendine, as you have proved beyond a shadow of a doubt, you're ALL ass, Oxendine!

I suspect he would not have the finances to come to PA when DoW and I meet. Just likes to talk racist smack on the net. The Armenian judges gave this a 9.8 on the Olympic Troll-O-Meter, but they were over-ruled by the umpires in instant replay, who award it a 1.4.
The Armenian judges lodged a formal protest!
It was sufficiently trollish, of course, but way too obvious. It was poorly written, poorly executed, and was so incredibly lame as to lack the true drawing power of a really masterful troll.
Maybe as high as a 1.6 for the intense stupidity of the premise, but a 9.8? Never!
The Armenian judges tear their hair out, throw their balalaikas down in dismay, and perform the traditional Armenian Dismay Chant!
They demand a recount!

Nader: Iraq an Unconstitutional, Illegal War

Based on Five Falsehoods:
CONGRESS SHOULD BEGIN IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY OF BUSH AND CHENEY

"All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." -- George W. Bush, 1994.

Washington, DC:
Building on his call for the impeachment of President Bush and Vice President Cheney, Independent Presidential candidate Ralph Nader today is calling on Members of the House of Representatives to begin an impeachment inquiry to investigate two distinct impeachable offenses.

An Impeachment Inquiry is the first step toward considering Articles of Impeachment. During an Impeachment Inquiry the House would investigate whether there are potential impeachable offenses.

Impeachment Inquiry and the Process of Impeachment

While the Constitution is clear in granting the impeachment power to the House, it leaves the development of mechanisms for exercising the power to the House. As noted by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York in "The Law of Presidential Impeachment By the Committee on Federal Legislation" (see: http://www.abcny.org/presimpt.htm):

"A variety of methods have been employed to institute impeachment proceedings: Charges may be made orally on the floor by a Member of the House; a Member may submit a written statement of charges; one or more Members of the House may offer a resolution and place it in the legislative hopper; a presidential message to the House may initiate proceedings. The House has also received charges from a state legislature, from a territory, and from a grand jury. Finally, there may be a report of a committee of the House which may submit facts or charges that will lead to impeachment. Under the rules governing the order of business in the House a direct proposition to impeach is a matter of highest privilege and supersedes other business. Similar privileged treatment is given to propositions relating to a pending impeachment."

The purpose of the Impeachment Inquiry is to have a Committee develop a report for the House which then can be considered for the purpose of determining whether to proceed with impeachment proceedings. The House determines whether to impeach based on a majority vote. It is important to remember that impeachment does not mean conviction - that is left to the Senate. Impeachment is the equivalent of an indictment, making formal charges, which the Senate then considers. Conviction requires two-thirds of the Members present in the Senate to vote for conviction.

Two Potential Articles of Impeachment that Should be Part of an Impeachment Inquiry

The Impeachment Inquiry should focus on two areas involving President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney.

The unconstitutional war in Iraq.

"The Inquiry should examine whether President Bush and Vice President Cheney have gone beyond the bounds of the Constitution, defied the rule of law, and if so, whether impeachment is the appropriate constitutional punishment," said Nader. The United States Congress never voted for the Iraq war. Congress voted for a resolution in October 2002 which unlawfully transferred to the President the decision-making power of whether to launch a first-strike invasion of Iraq. The United States Constitution's War Powers Clause (Article 1, Section 8, Clause 11) vests the power of deciding whether to send the nation into war solely in the United States Congress. This can only be changed by a constitutional amendment.

"Our founders had seen what could occur when the power to declare war was vested in one person, a King or a Queen, so they took clear steps to ensure no one person could declare war for the United States. As James Madison wrote: "In no part of the constitution is more wisdom to be found, than in the clause which confides the question of war and peace to the legislature, and not to the executive department," noted Nader.

Five Falsehoods that Led to the Iraq Quagmire:

Making matters worse in this situation, the illegal first-strike invasion and occupation of Iraq was justified by five falsehoods. Nader calls for a second area for Impeachment Inquiry to examine: the "five falsehoods that led to war." In 1994 George W. Bush said: "All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." In 2000, he ran as the "responsibility " candidate. Manipulation or deliberate misuse of national security intelligence data, if proven, would be "a high crime" under the Constitution's impeachment clause. Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution provides: "The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."

WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION.

The weapons have still not been found. Nader emphasized, "Until the 1991 Gulf War, Saddam Hussein was our government's anti-communist ally in the Middle East. We also used him to keep Iran at bay. In so doing, in the 1980s under Reagan and the first Bush, corporations were licensed by the Department of Commerce to export the materials for chemical and biological weapons that President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney later accused him of having." Those weapons were destroyed after the Gulf War. President Bush's favorite chief weapons inspector, David Kay, after returning from Iraq and leading a large team of inspectors and spending nearly half a billion dollars told the president :We were wrong."

See: David Kay testimony before Senate Armed Services Committee, January 28, 2004.

IRAQ TIES TO AL QAEDA:

The White House made this claim even though the CIA and FBI repeatedly told the Administration that there was no tie between Saddam Hussein and Al Qaeda. They were mortal enemies - one secular, the other fundamentalist.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO THE UNITED STATES:

In fact, Saddam was a tottering dictator, with an antiquated, fractured army of low morale and with Kurdish enemies in Northern Iraq and Shiite adversaries in the South of Iraq. He did not even control the air space over most of Iraq.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO HIS NEIGHBORS:

In fact, Iraq was surrounded by countries with far superior military forces. Turkey, Iran and Israel were all capable of obliterating any aggressive move by the Iraqi dictator.

THE LIBERATION OF THE IRAQI PEOPLE:

There are brutal dictators throughout the world, many supported over the years by Washington, whose people need "liberation " from their leaders. This is not a persuasive argument since for Iraq, it's about oil. In fact, the occupation of Iraq by the United States is a magnet for increasing violence, anarchy and insurrection.

Nader urges the Congress to investigate the illegal nature of the war, and how the five falsehoods became part of the Bush Administration's drum beat for war, in a formal Inquiry of Impeachment.

I can cover your bet but not the transportation, so the point is moot. And it's clear that you didn't learn anything in our conversations on the topics of racism -or- violence. You just hear what you want to hear. Too bad. Now read again the rest of my post again.... you know, the part you snipped in your

You weren't afraid when you threatened me as 1mangang, so what has changed? Do you think I'll get you TOSsed? Or being traced? Use an anonymous account (like I would expect you to use anything else....LOL!). Poor old Twisty, still afraid to show his face in public, which is probably the smartest thing you can do at this point, although it's clear your decision is based on fear and not on intelligence. Hey, you and Road Warrior should hook up -- you two have a lot in common! And didn't he say he was in Georgia? Heck, that's right next door to you, Twist!

So do you have any more quotes from late-night television that you would like to use? Or was last night just an infrequent case of insomnia?

You are right, I do live in Washington. But I live in Spokane, the land of the potholes, on the other side of the state. And my name is Frank D. Gilliland. I am not a ham, nor am I N7VCF as Twisty would like you to believe. Actually, if you believe Twist, I am N7VCF, N8WWM, KC8LDO, KI5GY, >-AND-< KC7UIP.

You're in so far you can't help it. Not only are you projecting your corresponding with one of the same sex. That is most definitely homosexual related. Denying it won't change a thing.

You're always on the floor and underfoot. A good place for a coward like you that has self-esteem problems and sanity issues.

 but suppose he did take your advice. Given your penchant for speaking to other men concerning asses,

>No one is talking about mens asses except >you you stupid fuqqin assclown.

It is so ingrained upon you, we are faced with no other prospect but of you being homosexual. So be it. If you can't understand that repeated mentioning of asses when speaking with one of the same sex are Freudian slips (indicated by your admittance of not realizing you are doing it), you need reminded in each post you do it, that your homosexuality has no merit in my radio group. Ask the lawyer (read: college grad) in the family to explain to you who Freud was and why his works are adhered to by psychiatrists, psychologists, and therapists worldwide. His studies are the defining works by which those who have a repeated penchant for engaging such tallk into otherwise normal conversations are measured, studied, diagnosed, and then treated. Ask wack-job N3CVJ, as he claimed several times a kinship to knowledge of such scholars, and it's no wonder, since he was probably properly diagnosed with a similar malady, given HIS penchant for listenting to teen girls talk about sex by illegally intercepting their cordless phone conversations and referring to such conversations as "juicy". LOL,,,you really have a group there each and everytime you say "we". Allow me,,,,WE know exactly who you refer when you say "we". The two losers above, the criminal by definition of the state of Ohio N8WWM, and KC8LDO, the one who defends the criminal actions of N8WWM and in addition to Frank Gilliland, threatens innocent usenet users because he was never taught any better as a young thug. to have the most profound affect on yourself, Frankie.
Now, go back to the bottle and telling lies as all have come to expect.
I'm sure Davie-boy is sorry as hell you ever opened your mouth. It's bad

We all believe it Frank, as you have responded to posts directed toward him. You have held posts mentioning Frank (N7VCF) and Barbs phone numbers and incorrectly claimed I, among others, posted it Several times you haev went back and accused me of posting "your" phone number, when it was clear, the only number posted was N7VCF's.

Of course, as ALL your made-up claims, you can produce no post by me saying such. Of course, it is easy to guess that KC7UIP, and KI5GY, whoever they may be, are merely on your shitlist for one-upping you, as everyone appears to be doing and cleaning your clock these days.
Nevertheless, who I thought you were was nowhere near entertaining as you claiming I was Roger Wiseman (and even went as far as presenting forged headers in your drunken stupor to try and prove it..LOL), residing in West Virginia AND Florida as someone named Mike AND Dave, that I wrote for Pop Comm AND Monitoring Times, that I was Foghorn

Let's see.....it was shown that N8WWM was not only busted by the FCC for jamming the Toledo Amateur Club's Repeater, but is a criminal according to the state of Ohio for crimes against his own children. It was shown he was placed on community control for his behavior and crimes unbecoming of a human. He should have received prison time.
It was shown that KC8LDO is extrememely poor and lives in a crack rowhouse, despite his unsolicited hilarious claims of making a six figure income, effectively wiping out the stitch of credibility he had left. It was shown Lelnad claimed he was upgrading from nocode several years ago and failed the code test at least once.
Do you really want to ask these things on a public usenet group? We can go on.....long live the ARRL...well, certain members of it, anyways. As I stated before, there are many members and sandbaggers reading this group, Weep on, lids, weep on.

You never did explain what "fire school" is, Twist. I asked you to be more specific because terminology changes over the years, and what is currently called "fire school" might have been ITS when I was serving. But you never did clarify that, Twist. In fact, you demonstrated your ignorance of the basics of the US military saying that if I'm not retired that I must have been kicked out. It's understandable that you have never heard of an "Honorable Discharge" since it contains the word 'honorable', something you know nothing about.

yes its true it is horrible to see Twist go into a decline he used to keep this group hopping for weeks on end and now he cant even bait Frank with mention of marine fire school and he is dredging up that old shit about the phelps and villanova to try and stir you up its pathetic.

I welcome the opportunity to demonstrate that you are a fool and an idiot to any current or former military personel, be they active, active reserve, inactive reserve, retired, or discharged under any conditions.

Well? Or are you too chicken to do that, too?

Hello, Twist. I'd just like to see this group not be turned on its ear, it's exactly what they want. I offered a time-out to the repeated shit sling and hope Doug and Leland except.

George (wa3moj) is not adult enough to stop humping my leg. He's even taken his puppet show to the Nascar group that I sometimes post to.

Hopefully geo won't chicken out from the spar with Road Warrior, that is the only thing that may shut his childish mouth.

"Facts" have never been an important element in this newsgroup. So much of what is said here is unverifiable. The only thing we have to go on is credibility, and believability.

Some people will believe what they want to believe no matter how unlikely it is that the information is actually true.

There may actually be a market for converted UHF gear for CB. The key here is CB, NOT 11 METERS. Some countries in Europe have FM CB. I don't know what the frequencies are, but quite likely VHF or UHF.

Other than that, for anybody still reading this thread - ever hear of a non amateur UHF SSB radio?

In general, this thread is in the same line as converting old black/white TVs to color.

I need a little assistance. I am hooking up a PDC-256 frequency display to a TRC-458 radio.

The instrutions state that you have to solder the input coax connector to a 51 ohm 1/4 watt resistor, then solder the other end of the resistor to a 15pf disc ceramic cap, then solder the unconnected end of the cap to the VCO output transformer. Can someone help me out as to where this is soldered in the TRC-458? The board is a Uniden board with the 858PLL in it.

Next, the directions state that I should solder the shield of the coax to a ground point adjacent to the VCO output transformer. Again, can someone give me an idea of what a ground point would be in this area of the radio?

As far as the power goes, the black wire should be soldered to a "solid low impedence ground located near the modulation section of the circuit board" and the red power lead should be soldered to the "switched side of the 12 volt power switch". I just need someone to give me an idea of where these points would be.

Thanks in advance for your help.

Yes it's a troll post, but George by no means needs any help on embarrassing himself.
He's been a troll in Rec.Radio.CB for years now, using thousands of different screen nics and an AOL account, so he really doesn't need any help to embarrass himself.

Watch by his reply, you'll see either from his Comcast account or AOL account.

Well we know George won't that's a give me, but I wouldn't put too much faith into Doug either.

It applies to any side of the fence. But it especially applies to those who claim that such personal information "doesn't matter", but who then make a concerted effort to find out that very same information. It paints a very contradictory and hypocritical picture.

Some people have made efforts to find out personal information, and have made no bones about it, as they intend to use it to wield some sort of influence over the antics of other people. That's no secret. But if that's your intent, then say so. Don't tell the rest of us that it "doesn't matter" when clearly, to any of us with a little observational skills, that this is obviously not the case.

FYI as any one reading this can guess WA3MOJ, is being forged.. It is being done by a group of anonymous out law CBers from rec.radio.cb. Thier goal is to punish licensed hams who have spoken out against freeband, mod'ed radios, and, illegal power in that newsgroup. Operating outside the rules means a lot to these CBers. Anyone that disaproves of it is seen as a threat. A licensed ham who does not 'go along with the program" and is foolish enough to use his callsign in that group gets harrased. Recently, one, of the out law CBers rang door bells, left notes, and took photos at the residences of hams N8WWM and KC8LDO for the purpose of stalking them. This is now a court matter. Also these same CB out laws are so ignorant they get mixed up and latch on to call signs of hams who do not even post there which is the case with WA3MOJ, N7VCF, and, others. It may be best to let them forge away so that the ISPs involved can shut them down.

Do you have any idea how hard it is to come up with fresh ideas? Really?
One way is to go to places like alt.usenet.kooks and watch how those ghouls do it, but they can be brutal and are never on topic. Twist is trying to keep it fresh, but this group doesn't really give us anything new to work with. I was looking at old Herr Frank the Nazi posts from 2000 - 2003. It's like reading from yesterday. He calls folks racists and pokes at Landshark about transsexuals. If I didn't look at the dates in the posts, I would swear it was yesterday. What a fucking loser Fran k is - same exact lines for 4 years. I am beginning to think that perhaps trolling is "same-o same-o" all the time. I thought Steve driving to Doggie Howzah's was fucking great, even if you don't agree. All I could think was "there's something you don't see every day". He has balls the size of grapefruits - I bet less than 1 hundredth of 1 percent of flame wars end up going to RL (real life). Probably even less than that.

Jumping into threads to go OT and hump my leg is stalking. That's how it works. Compare it to RL - like how you park across the street from the girl you knew in 9th grade and stare at her bedroom window.

Do you want to be beat up? Are you into that sort of thing?

How much is a flight from Seattle to Philly? $200 on supersaver? If money is that tight, you need to earn more and/or spend less.

Nope. As soon as you became an idiot slinging 4th grade insults, I wrote you off as a village idiot.

No need. You made an anti-semitic remark and that stands on it's own. Better luck next time, Herr Frank.

Well, you were right about one thing. You are a guard at the gate of ignorance. Perhaps you should leave your post and do something more fruitful - the admission that you can't cough up $200 for a plane flight is concerning.

No you're statement about not allowing your kids to marry non whites beacsue they are statisticaly criminal was new. Many parent "wish" there kids will marry in there own race religion but the final decison is left to the son or daughter. but you forbid it on the basis of crime statistics that is crossing the line in to racism.

People mailing letter bombs to each other is not some thing you see every day but I would not think it is fucking great if it happened would you? I bring this up because it did happen in this NG once years ago and yes it was a solved murder.

if all partys involved agreed to show up for a cage match, i.e. tag teams. it would make a great pay per view. But if there is no consent from one party then you cant force the issue if you do you're commiting assault.

Koran forbids Muslims from marrying non-muslims. That makes 2.25B racists on this planet right there.

OK, well that's now. Now you have to tell the story.

I am not a cop, but I thought assault involved physical harm. Taking ghetto photos may not qualify.

I beg to differ. Hans has been most helpful. He has given a little comic

Care to cite some examples? Or are you just referring to where I found the TS posts that were made with Landshark's account? How about citing some of the many posts where I speak out -against- racism and homophobia? You found those posts too, didn't you? Or are you just ignoring them because they don't support your

The state should get a new mental health counselor. It's not working.

Wrong. Religion is a belief in God (or gods), or that system of belief. Unless your mother is part of that system, her religion has nothing to do with your's.

> So, if the mother is Jewish >you are Jewish. So I do not think you can have someone who is 50% Jewish.
>It's not like race.

Actually it is with Judiasm, and if you were Jewish you would know that. Their race and religion are fully integrated (part of their 'system'). But they don't exclude people outside their race from becoming Jews if they share the Jewish faith. In fact, there is even a special ceremony where a previously circumcised male is 'spiritually' circumcised before becoming a Jew. I can't believe you didn't know that.

Wrong again. I defined racism for you, but you ignored it like all the other facts I have shoved in your face.

What is your reference? What dictionary declares the ideal of racial superiority as a prerequisite for racism?

>Another facet of racism is intolerance.

Again, what is your reference? I will agree that racial intolerance is often found sleeping in the same bed as racism, just as I will agree that the ideal of racial superiority is common among racists. But what authority has declared these as requirements for a racist attitude?

Regardless, your preference for your children's spouses based upon race are indicative of a sense of racial superiority: You claimed that you want the best for them, and that the 'best' is a white Jew. This means you think white Jews are superior to any other race or religion. Even by your OWN definition you are a racist.

> I am not intolerant of other races.

Actually he didn't. In "Mein Kampf" he recognized the usefulness and necessity for the existance of inferior races for the simple reason that they serve to distinguish and validate his "Master Race". Again you are talking about things you know nothing about.

> I do not think there is a master race, nor do I think anyone should

Yet you discriminate against anyone that isn't a white Jew by not wanting them to marry into your family. You are a hypocrite -and- a racist.

I spend my money on things that matter. For example, I only pay $12.95/mo to my ISP, and the sig at the bottom of my posts is one reason why it's so cheap.
Those extra few dollars add up over time and are better spent elsewhere. But I'm not going to waste them on a trip to PA to watch what will probably turn out to be two stuttering idiots sitting in their cars at opposite sides of a parking lot each claiming victory while taking pictures of the other. If $200 doesn't mean much to you then by all means spend it to come up here. I'll take you on a tour of the station, show you my LF/VLF gear, then drop you off near Hayden Lake where the other racists hang out. Heck, if you're lucky you might even run into Mark Fuhrman!

Gee, that's clever. You say that you don't want your kids to marry blacks, hispanics, asians, christians or muslims, but when I hold a mirror to your racist mug you tell me that I'm -projecting-? Even Twisty comes up with better stuff than THAT!

BTW, did you know statistics show that asians have the best grades in school, practice the best work ethics, have higher paying jobs and save more money than any other ethnic group -- white Jews included? Better reconsider the marraige prospects for your kids!

Oh, but there IS a need. The alleged antiSemitic remark was used sarcastically to make a point which was explained by the part you snipped. You intentionally pulled the remark out of context. Let's see my remark IN CONTEXT:

See the difference? Or do you still have your blinders on? Everytime you pull my remarks out of context I am just going to put them back where they belong, each time proving that you are deliberately ignoring the facts. Don't like it? Then don't do it.

But I -AM- doing something fruitful. I am slamming ignorant attitudes that people like you are trying to propogate. I think that is VERY fruitful. And if $200 is so insignificant to you, then you come up here and prove me wrong. Otherwise you are just blowing Twis.... er, hot air.

He never did give a straight answer in one post he said he was in the street in another he said he rang the doorbell in another he stayed 8 to 10 feet away. Which is it Steve?

Hey Mopar on the lighter side of life.....................

Go to this site http://www.snopes.com/photos/commercials/sportka.asp check out the cat and bird clips, absolutely hilarious. Again, Hotmail doesn't like the large files, so the bounced back.

I just can't understand how a 50+ year old man can act like that? For that question, how can Doug continue to act like that? I mean how stupid can you be to get convicted of a felony? No voting, Answer yes of being a convicted felon on job apps, Get pulled over and have that blasted every time, plain stupid.

The memories of old conflicts are most difficult to overcome. I have lost more girlfriends that way....

3491. MRF 477 datasheet-documentation

Hallo group.
I am desperately looking for datasheet, documentation of MRF 477 transistor. I am working on amplifier which would replace it.
I almost finished but I still have some problems with impedance match. My problem is simple: - i do not know the input imedance the MRF has on 27Mhz frequency. I think in datasheet I could find such information. I would appreciate any help.

Adam Chochla.

That datasheet is almost as rare as the transistor. Even if you find it, it won't be much help. Series equivalent input impedance is dependent upon the load, and while the datasheet may include a Smith chart for input impedance, it will only be plotted for a specific load resistance, not a complex impedance as will be the case in reality due to the high collector capacitance. You will have to plug the transistor into a circuit and measure it.

And in case you don't have this info already:

Input power: 1.25 Watts
Output power: 40 Watts PEP/CW (10 Watts AM) Power gain: 15 dB min.
Case: TO-220

I don't know what you intend to replace it with, but the Motorola's preferred replacement is the MRF497 which is even more rare and expensive. You might consider a matched pair of 2SC1945's in parallel if you can figure out how to mount the second one without long leads.

3502. Any remote head/remote mount CB's?

Has anyone ever found a REAL remote head/remote mount CB? I'm not talking about the Cobra 75 style where the whole CB is in a handheld unit that plugs into the antenna. I'm talking about something along the lines of Motorola commercial radios and Ham radios that allow you to mount the head on your dash and you put the main part of the radio under the seat, in your trunk, or where ever. I've seen the Midland 79-290 with it's detachable face, but there's no remote mounting kit. It's strictly for "security", similar to a car stereo with removable face.

Hello, Jim. Agreeing with Frank doesn't change the validity of the post to which you responded, the way he has treated many on this group, his hatred of the golden rule and the manner in which he views such. Hell, even Hitler at certain points in his lifetime had certain world leaders agreeing with him on certain points, and he was practically the devil incarnate. Catch you on the freeband!

Gilliland not only professe nazi views, he begins to menstruate when the golden rule is mentioned. One can google "Golden Rule" in this group and find Frank making a host of

There you go again. Please keep your repeated homosexual comments concerning eveyone who you have a problem with and their "asses" to the homosexual groups. No one is interested in your queer compulsions and fantasies.

It's understandable now. Doug has a legitimate medical condition. He is Read again what I said: "Unless your mother is part of that system...". Is that too difficult to comprehend, "dumbass"?

Do you even own a dictionary or are you waiting for the movie to come out?
Ethnicity is not defined by a people's race -- it's about customs, languages, nationalities.... just about anything that sets one group of people apart from another. And the Jews do indeed consider themselves a race, or do you refuse to read the Torah, too?

Works for me. And it defines you very well. Yet I don't believe that the definitions you cited were complete.

>> Again, what is your reference? I will agree that racial intolerance

You said that "statistics speak for themselves" and that because of statistics you didn't want your children marrying African Americans. Now according to the definition of racism that -YOU- provided above, you are making a judgement about any prospective spouse for your children based upon race; or, more specifically, your interpretations of your statistics. In the scenario that the person is African American, you are judging him based upon those "statistics", and -not-upon the nature of the person. That is called "prejudice", and fits your own definition of racism quite nicely.

You posted the definition yourself. It still fits.

Cross burnings? Wow, you are really reaching, Mr. Warr... oh, that's right, you have reduced the level of this conversation to name-calling. I won't go there. And since you are posting anonymously, I just won't call you by any name at all. Just a nameless, racist Jew.

Royce made a radio that used a true control head. I have one head and its cable (still with the price sticker attached) but I don't know what radio it mates with. There were also those "one-handers" where all the controls were in the microphone. Radio Shaft had a couple of those, and I have one by Courier called the Nightrider 40DR. There were also in-dash CB's complete with AM/FM/Cassette and/or 8-track, and they also used "one-hander" mics. I have one made by Nissan, and I'm looking for an RCA Co-Pilot model 14T405 made for GM vehicles.

I suppose it is possible that they see different headers than I do. Or perhaps I cannot see it and other newsreaders list more of the header when you click on properties. Outlook is certainly not the best product; and most folks use Forte Agent. But I do know for a fact I have seen my IP address. And I just ran a test post from my prodigy account and the IP showed there. But you should not concern yourself with IP. I am 5 weeks away from assignment to Philly or DC, and if it's Philly you need to brush up on your sparring techniques. Did you find a YMCA with a 16' or 20' ring?

Nader: Iraq an Unconstitutional, Illegal War

Based on Five Falsehoods:
CONGRESS SHOULD BEGIN IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY OF BUSH AND CHENEY

"All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." -- George W. Bush, 1994.

Washington, DC:
Building on his call for the impeachment of President Bush and Vice President Cheney, Independent Presidential candidate Ralph Nader today is calling on Members of the House of Representatives to begin an impeachment inquiry to investigate two distinct impeachable offenses.

An Impeachment Inquiry is the first step toward considering Articles of Impeachment. During an Impeachment Inquiry the House would investigate whether there are potential impeachable offenses.

Impeachment Inquiry and the Process of Impeachment

While the Constitution is clear in granting the impeachment power to the House, it leaves the development of mechanisms for exercising the power to the House. As noted by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York in "The Law of Presidential Impeachment By the Committee on Federal Legislation" (see: http://www.abcny.org/presimpt.htm):

"A variety of methods have been employed to institute impeachment proceedings: Charges may be made orally on the floor by a Member of the House; a Member may submit a written statement of charges; one or more Members of the House may offer a resolution and place it in the legislative hopper; a presidential message to the House may initiate proceedings. The House has also received charges from a state legislature, from a territory, and from a grand jury. Finally, there may be a report of a committee of the House which may submit facts or charges that will lead to impeachment. Under the rules governing the order of business in the House a direct proposition to impeach is a matter of highest privilege and supersedes other business. Similar privileged treatment is given to propositions relating to a pending impeachment."

The purpose of the Impeachment Inquiry is to have a Committee develop a report for the House which then can be considered for the purpose of determining whether to proceed with impeachment proceedings. The House determines whether to impeach based on a majority vote. It is important to remember that impeachment does not mean conviction - that is left to the Senate. Impeachment is the equivalent of an indictment, making formal charges, which the Senate then considers. Conviction requires two-thirds of the Members present in the Senate to vote for conviction.

Two Potential Articles of Impeachment that Should be Part of an Impeachment Inquiry

The Impeachment Inquiry should focus on two areas involving President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney.

The unconstitutional war in Iraq.

"The Inquiry should examine whether President Bush and Vice President Cheney have gone beyond the bounds of the Constitution, defied the rule of law, and if so, whether impeachment is the appropriate constitutional punishment," said Nader. The United States Congress never voted for the Iraq war. Congress voted for a resolution in October 2002 which unlawfully transferred to the President the decision-making power of whether to launch a first-strike invasion of Iraq. The United States Constitution's War Powers Clause (Article 1, Section 8, Clause 11) vests the power of deciding whether to send the nation into war solely in the United States Congress. This can only be changed by a constitutional amendment.

"Our founders had seen what could occur when the power to declare war was vested in one person, a King or a Queen, so they took clear steps to ensure no one person could declare war for the United States. As James Madison wrote: "In no part of the constitution is more wisdom to be found, than in the clause which confides the question of war and peace to the legislature, and not to the executive department," noted Nader.

Five Falsehoods that Led to the Iraq Quagmire:

Making matters worse in this situation, the illegal first-strike invasion and occupation of Iraq was justified by five falsehoods. Nader calls for a second area for Impeachment Inquiry to examine: the "five falsehoods that led to war." In 1994 George W. Bush said: "All public policy should revolve around the principle that individuals are responsible for what they say and do." In 2000, he ran as the "responsibility " candidate. Manipulation or deliberate misuse of national security intelligence data, if proven, would be "a high crime" under the Constitution's impeachment clause. Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution provides: "The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."

WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION.

The weapons have still not been found. Nader emphasized, "Until the 1991 Gulf War, Saddam Hussein was our government's anti-communist ally in the Middle East. We also used him to keep Iran at bay. In so doing, in the 1980s under Reagan and the first Bush, corporations were licensed by the Department of Commerce to export the materials for chemical and biological weapons that President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney later accused him of having." Those weapons were destroyed after the Gulf War. President Bush's favorite chief weapons inspector, David Kay, after returning from Iraq and leading a large team of inspectors and spending nearly half a billion dollars told the president :We were wrong."

See: David Kay testimony before Senate Armed Services Committee, January 28, 2004.

IRAQ TIES TO AL QAEDA:

The White House made this claim even though the CIA and FBI repeatedly told the Administration that there was no tie between Saddam Hussein and Al Qaeda. They were mortal enemies - one secular, the other fundamentalist.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO THE UNITED STATES:

In fact, Saddam was a tottering dictator, with an antiquated, fractured army of low morale and with Kurdish enemies in Northern Iraq and Shiite adversaries in the South of Iraq. He did not even control the air space over most of Iraq.

SADDAM HUSSEIN WAS A THREAT TO HIS NEIGHBORS:

In fact, Iraq was surrounded by countries with far superior military forces. Turkey, Iran and Israel were all capable of obliterating any aggressive move by the Iraqi dictator.

THE LIBERATION OF THE IRAQI PEOPLE:

There are brutal dictators throughout the world, many supported over the years by Washington, whose people need "liberation " from their leaders. This is not a persuasive argument since for Iraq, it's about oil. In fact, the occupation of Iraq by the United States is a magnet for increasing violence, anarchy and insurrection.

Nader urges the Congress to investigate the illegal nature of the war, and how the five falsehoods became part of the Bush Administration's drum beat for war, in a formal Inquiry of Impeachment.

I don't pay $12.95/mo to TimeWarner, I pay it to Aim Communications here in Spokane. It's in the Peyton Building on Post right off of Riverside. Hang a left off the elevator (which ever one of the two that is working), all the way down the hall, turn right, and their office is all the way down -that- hall on the left. Would you like me to take pics the next time I go pay my bill? Actually, I think I will anyway because I want to get a couple pics of the falls while the river is still running strong.

By golly you really -are- good for something. While trying to find this group with your intentionally meager bit of information I inadvertently ran across the email of my Senior Drill Instructor. Thanks, Twist!

This is why you guys want peoples anmes and addreses to harass them. Yet the poster did not have enough balls to use thier own name.

This is the sort of thing Roger Wiseman, AB8MQ likes to pull. He has done this to others and he DOES like to hide behind "two or more anonymous remailing services" because he has lost previous ISP's for this sort of maliciousness.

Perhaps not as big a stretch as one might think. Granted, the little basement dweller is not in a position to gas 7 million folks, but he sure does hate Jews.

Your argument holds no water. Doug has brought ALL of this upon himself. When and if Dougs mental health becomes stable he may realize why his life is so miserable. He'll realize that it is foolish to harass people and justify it with the argument that he is just doing his civic duty. Until he wises up nothing will change.

Have a miserable day/life Doug.

Exactly. RW showed up in this NG trolling on behalf of Steveo which is bad enough then in a recent post anounces he is a Jew and forbids his family to marry with non whites because they are criminals and he has statistics to prove. now of course people get pissed at him so he imediately plays the race card and cries anti sematism. talk about a persecution complex.

I'm needing information about a Siltronix LA-150 Amplifier. I can't seem to find anything on the internet about this particular model linear. Anyone familiar with this Model? Any info would be appreciated.
Thanks

Linears are illegal for use with Citizen's Band radio. This is rec.radio.CB, as in 'Citizen's Band'. Try a ham newsgroup.

There's an interesting irony. You have internet access, which gives you all sorts of electronic resources, yet you still pay the bill in person.

That's almost as bad as hooking up a DSP filter to an old tube

What do you think about Asians marrying your offspring? You said that you base your decisions on statistics. I enlightened you to the REAL statistics, and you can verify those facts anytime you want. The truth is that Asians are the most physically healthy and financially stable of all the "ethnic" groups. What do your statistics say about the probability of an Asian becoming a murder victim? I checked myself and it's lower than a white Jew!

So would you let any of your kids marry an Asian?

>So where's the forum, Twist?

Probably the same place as your refusals to answer for your unsolicited claims, such as the company you allegedly work for that is permitted to transmit on the freeband. So where's that company?
Ah, don't bodder, Frank, we know you lied about it..
I told you, I am not the moderator...sitting their frittering away because you can't have what you want when you want it is quite entertaining.
I sent a request with your email. I have no control where the man is and when and if he replies to your email. Given your penchant for motives of why you want to join such a group coupled with your past transgressions of posting private emails meant for your eyes only in a public forum, you may have no choice but to continue and blame me for yor continual and ongoing failures and misery in life.

You're just beside yourself with angry again for being busted for claiming you pay 12.95 to TimeWarner, that you falsely claimed "farmed" out your access to the group through Colorado and Texas. Now, try not to slobber on yourself in your anger and be patient, chubby, and keep your word.

>I don't pay $12.95/mo to TimeWarner, I pay it >to Aim Communications here in Spokane.

Sure you do, Frank. But your claim that they outsource via Time Warner is bullshit. In several posts you attempt to explain your claim of "outsourcing", and how it worked, yet, as usual, when cornered and made to reckon with such, you reverse your position (lie). With your recent post, you claim you have no clue how such outsourcing works. Well, let me educate you,,,they don't "outsource" your access to Time Warner so you may access the group through Texas OR Colorado as you claimed. A simple email to Time Warner confirms this and I'd sure like to know the nic of the person you feel believes sucha claim..LOL. You just can't help yourself..you're a pathological liar whose sanity is frittering away. Your head sure is twisted.

Now, back to your blaming of me for your misery in life. We now resume our regular programming.

I don't pay $12.95/mo to TimeWarner, I pay it to Aim Communications here in Spokane. It's in the Peyton Building on Post right off of Riverside. Please excuse our ttle handicap we call Gillinad. He has problems with reality and doesn't understand all that encompasses radio related items, yet claims to be a broadcast engineer that works for a company permitted to transmit on the freeband. this was in addition to a claim he made saying he was going to contact business entities that are assigned freeband frequencies and was going to post the results concerning interference he claimed took place by freebanders. He achieved neither and turned nasty when questioned about why he was unable to provide for his claims.

Sure. It's SSgt. Kessler's group of VFW's. But it won't do you any good without an invite. Again, you have always demonstrated a problem with not getting what you want when you cry for it. Patience, chubby, chubby.

Channel 40 last night, lsb, was bringing in some great international stuff 'till the wee hours. Try again tonight. The big man in St. Pete just put up a shooting star with 1200 watts running through it via a Yaesu 840. He was really bringing in the dx.

Your statements against Judaism stand on their own, Naziboi. And my favorite Jewish related statement you made was your lie about living in Israel. That was priceless. You don't have $200 for a plane flight, but you lived in Israel. BWHAHAHA. First of all, dumbass; you can't use right of return unless you were Bar Mitzvah Orthodox or Conservative; and you have shown you don't know enough about my religion to be either. Secondly, you are a compulsive liar. I have family in Tel Aviv and Haifa; so I would love to hear your stories about exactly where you lived. I will check on it and further embarass you, liar. Refuting your lies are easier than shooting fish in a barrel. Remember the one where you didn't know the definition of "racist" and when I posted definitions from two or three major dictionaries your response was to say those were not real definitions. BWHAHAHA. Have you ever admitted being wrong once in your pathetic life, moron? Just once? Your mistake is having an IQ under 80 and trying to act like it is 140. You aren't pulling it off, Naziboi.

Frank Gilliland has major issues. If he does not have a good psychiatric clinic to assist him through those, he certainly needs them. And he seems to show paraniod persecution fears about someone named James. What is that about?

Even though you are a complete fucking idiot, I will leave you with a letter I wrote to a Christian friend on the subject about three years ago, after coming back from living in Israel. Do with it what you will, though I doubt you have the IQ to research and confirm 95% of what is in it. After you read it, don't even bother to respond, Naziboi. I am pretty much done with your idiocy for a while. But keep it. You are so completely wrong about Palestinians that you need to fix yourself, dumbass.

What is Israel?

Show me anywhere prior to the UN resolution 181 where Palestine was an actual country and there were actual Palestinians. You can generally tell me that "Palestine" is the region around Jerusalem; but I would contend that it is just TransJordan and Syria that are referred to when people like Eusebius use the word "Philistine Syria" - Eusebius could not use the word "Palestine", because it did not exist until it was created by Anglicans a thousand years later.

From the fifth century BC, following the historian Herodotus, Greeks called the eastern coast of the Mediterranean "the Philistine Syria" using the Greek language form of the name. In AD 135, after putting down the Bar Kochba revolt, the second major Jewish revolt against Rome, the Emperor Hadrian wanted to blot out the name of the Roman "Provincia Judaea" and so renamed it "Provincia Syria Palaestina", the Latin version of the Greek name and the first use of the name as an administrative unit. The name "Provincia Syria Palaestina" was later shortened to Palaestina, from which the modern, anglicized "Palestine" is derived.

There are no such people as Palestinians. They are Islamic Trans Jordanians. You could also point back 2,200 years and say there was a Palestine; but I would contend that it is Syria Palaestina or Philistine; or what we now call Syria and Jordan. If you look at this word Palestine, it is actually just some screwed up interpretation of the word Plesheth; which is actually all throughout the bible. I contend that Philistine is English; and that Palestine is not a real word; and can prove it with ancient scrolls. I can prove that to be true since we know there was a Philistine invasion in the area (from the Negev Desert to Galilee). The Philistines were neither Arab nor Semite; they were just Greeks from Asia Minor. As such, there is no way that the Philistines are the present day Palestinians. If there is no such thing as a Palestinian; then there is no such place as Palestine. If you think I am incorrect then go to www.onlinebible.org and download the Hebrew bible from 500 AD. You will ONLY find references to Plesheth. Palestine is a myth - no different than the bogus place called Atlantis. Also go to http://www.palestinefacts.org/ If you go there, it talks about either Plesheth or Philistine. The Palestinians want their own country. For argument sake, let's generally just agree that Palestine is just Syria Palaestina or Philistine Syria. Therefore Israel was called Palestine for two thousand years. Before the Israelis won the land in war (a war that Israel did not start - the Arabs conspired and attacked 2 weeks after the UN said Israel was a State) , Gaza was owned by Egypt, and there were no "Palestinians" then, and the West Bank was owned by Jordan, and there were no "Palestinians" then. As soon as the Jews took over and started growing oranges as big as basketballs, what do you know, say hello to the "Palestinians," weeping for their deep bond with their lost "land" and "nation." Instead, let's call them what they are: "Other Arabs From The Same General Area Who Are In Deep Denial About Never Being Able To Accomplish Anything In Life And Would Rather Wrap Themselves In The Seductive Melodrama Of Eternal Struggle And Death." I know that's a bit unwieldy to expect to see that on CNN! How about this, then: "Adjacent Jew-Haters."

some interesting quotes:

March 31, 1977, the Dutch newspaper Trouw published an interview with Palestine Liberation Organization executive committee member Zahir Muhsein. Here's what he said: "The Palestinian people does not exist. The creation of a Palestinian state is only a means for continuing our struggle against the state of Israel for our Arab unity. In reality today there is no difference between Jordanians, Palestinians, Syrians and Lebanese. Only for political and tactical reasons do we speak today about the existence of a Palestinian people, since Arab national interests demand that we posit the existence of a distinct "Palestinian people" to oppose Zionism."

On the same day Arafat signed the Declaration of Principles on the White House lawn in 1993, he explained his actions on Jordan TV. Here's what he said: "Since we cannot defeat Israel in war, we do this in stages. We take any and every territory that we can of Palestine, and establish a sovereignty there, and we use it as a springboard to take more. When the time comes, we can get the Arab nations to join us for the final blow against Israel."

"There is no such thing as a Palestinian people." --- Prime Minister Golda Meir

Before you cry "racist Jews", understand that Israel is more pro-Islam than any other Middle East country. They are a democracy that welcomes Islam. Israel uses a Parliament style government, like the British. They had the most familiarity with that; having been owned by Great Britain from 1917 until a few months before the UN made them a state in May of 1948. They call their Parliament the "Knesset". The Knesset members are voted on by the population of Israel.

http://www.factsofisrael.com/load.php?p=http://www.factsofisrael.com/en/democracy.shtml
To have political freedom is to be able to participate in elections or to be part of the ruling party. On 2/2002 Israel had 15 parties in the "Knesset", its parliament. Every Israeli citizen has the right to vote or to be a candidate, including its 980,000 Muslim citizens.

One of the 15 parties in the Knesset is called the United Arab List. It is the 6th largest of the 15 parties. the UAL is 100% Islamic Arab. The National Alliance Party is completely Arab as well.

You are correct. The most important thing to remember is what we all knew already. He has mental problems. The court would never order mental health counseling unless he has been diagnosed with the disorder.

WA3MOJ,

Where can I buy a new AMP? I need one for my CB but I don't want a used one. I know I could do a search google for one, but I'm a democrat and need to be spoon-fed everything. Thanks.

I don't look at it as a mundane task, but an opportunity to meet people face-to-face and press the flesh. It's not out of my way to stop there since I drive that route several times each month.

I'll toss out this analogy then give you the last word: You buy a home in a nice, quiet suburban neighborhood. Then some time later they build an airport less than a mile away and jets fly right over your house day and night. You complain but they tell you that it is -your- responsibility to sound-proof your home. Assuming the laws are in favor of the airport's position, how would that make you feel?

Yep. GySgt. G. Briones, Platoon 2051, Second Battalion, MCRD, San Diego, 1981. And what Road Warrior might find gratifying is that out of the four platoons in our series, our platoon honorman was also the series honorman and was a white man from Africa, while the other three platoon honormen were African Americans.

I didn't say that I "lived" in Israel. I said I have been there. It is one of the few ports where a ship the size of the Nassau can park at the dock. We spent a lot of time on liberty in Haifa, and I even took a few trips to different places in the interior such as Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Masada. It was in Haifa that our Batallion XO got hit by a taxi and was paralyzed.

> I have family in Tel Aviv and >Haifa; so I would love to hear your stories about exactly where you lived.

Ok, since I spent most of my time in Haifa I'll start there. How about that crooked tram that shuttles from lower to mid-town to upper town? I remember strolling around town one night and seeing an ancient stairway, but I couldn't find it the next day when I looked. There are (or were, as the case may be) lots of small bars and shops in the lower part of town near the docks, but mid-town is where the nicer shops are located. My buddy Russ Witt and I had a favorite restaurant in mid-town, and I believe he still stays in contact with the owner.
But it was funny when we ordered a glass of milk to go with our meals -- he looked at us like we were crazy! Anyway, upper-town is where the two big nightclubs were located. Just about a block down from Club 21 is a road that overlooks the town, and you could even see the ship from that point. The first time we arrived, the money-changers in lower town were offering 2000 sheckels for $20, and a few months later the rate was 6000 for 20. Nasty inflation rates.
I still have some coinage, -and- a couple phone tokens.

Go for it.

I said that they were not -complete- definitions, and they weren't. Regardless, all the definitions weren't that different, and you managed to qualify as a racist under all of them.

Many times. I even admit to having lied, which is something that neither you nor Twisty is capable of doing because you both seem to think that it's some sort of self-condemnation. It isn't, and I enjoy your attempts to discredit me with my own admissions!

> Your mistake is having an IQ under 80

Actually it's 139, but that was determined by the military, and we all know how accurate the military is with their intelligence.

You can generally tell me that "Palestine" is the region around Jerusalem; but I would contend that it is just TransJordan and Syria that are referred to when people like Eusebius use the word "Philistine Syria" - Eusebius could not use the word "Palestine", because it did not exist until it was created by Anglicans a thousand years later.
>From the fifth century BC, following the historian Herodotus, Greeks called the eastern coast of the Mediterranean "the Philistine Syria" using the Greek language form of the name. In AD 135, after putting down the Bar Kochba revolt, the second major Jewish revolt against Rome, the Emperor Hadrian wanted to blot out the name of the Roman "Provincia Judaea" and so renamed it "Provincia Syria Palaestina", the Latin version of the Greek name and the first use of the name as an administrative unit. The name "Provincia Syria Palaestina" was later shortened to Palaestina, from which the modern, anglicized "Palestine" is derived.
>There are no such people as Palestinians. They are Islamic Trans Jordanians. You could also point back 2,200 years and say there was a Palestine; but I would contend that it is Syria Palaestina or Philistine; or what we now call Syria and Jordan. If you look at this word Palestine, it is actually just some screwed up interpretation of the word Plesheth; which is actually all throughout the bible. I contend that Philistine is English; and that Palestine is not a real word; and can prove it with ancient scrolls. I can prove that to be true since we know there was a Philistine invasion in the area (from the Negev Desert to Galilee). The Philistines were neither Arab nor Semite; they were just Greeks from Asia

Minor. As such, there is no way that the Philistines are the present day Palestinians. If there is no such thing as a Palestinian; then there is no such place as Palestine. If you think I am incorrect then go to www.onlinebible.org and download the Hebrew bible >from 500 AD. You will ONLY find references to Plesheth. Palestine is a myth - no different than the bogus place called Atlantis. Also go to http://www.palestinefacts.org/ If you go there, it talks about either Plesheth or Philistine. The Palestinians want their own country. For argument sake, let's generally just agree that Palestine is just Syria Palaestina or Philistine Syria. Therefore Israel was called Palestine for two thousand years. Before the Israelis won the land in war (a war that Israel did not start - the Arabs conspired and attacked 2 weeks after the UN said Israel was a State) , Gaza was owned by Egypt, and there were no "Palestinians" then, and the West Bank was owned by Jordan, and there were no "Palestinians" then. As soon as the Jews took over and started growing oranges as big as basketballs, what do you know, say hello to the "Palestinians," weeping for their deep bond with their lost "land" and "nation." Instead, let's call them what they are:
>"Other Arabs From The Same General Area Who Are In Deep Denial About Never Being Able To Accomplish Anything In Life And Would Rather Wrap Themselves In The Seductive Melodrama Of Eternal Struggle And Death." I know that's a bit unwieldy to expect to see that on CNN! How about this, then: "Adjacent Jew-Haters."
>some interesting quotes:
>March 31, 1977, the Dutch newspaper Trouw published an interview with Palestine Liberation Organization executive committee member Zahir Muhsein. Here's what he said: "The Palestinian people does not exist. The creation of a Palestinian state is only a means for continuing our struggle against the state of Israel for our Arab unity. In reality today there is no difference between Jordanians, Palestinians, Syrians and Lebanese. Only for political and tactical reasons do we speak today about the existence of a Palestinian people, since Arab national interests demand that we posit the existence of a distinct "Palestinian people" to oppose Zionism."

Hi Folks,
Yes, the International Crystal 750-H was, and still is a cool radio... This tranceiver consisted of the following parts> The 750-H was the the transmitter-receiver, modulator and power supply in a box the size of a Heathkit monitor scope. The "control head" Model RMO Console 24-H was a box that actually consisted of the mixing crystals (plus range xtals) and an oscillator circuit to support the (as I recall) the 10 crystals in a mixing scheme that allowed 24 channels (including the illegal at the time channel 22A-WOW) pretty heady stuff for 1964.. The Control head isn't very big, and could be tucked easily under your dash. A matching speaker that was the same size as the control head was available, and could be mobile mounted next to the control head. The 750-H transmitter-receiver was usually mounted in the trunk, and the accompaning 12 foot embilical cord connected the control head to the 750-H transmitter-receiver. The 750-H could be run in a 6 volt, or 12 volt mobile, and uses a switching transistor scheme to produce the voltages needed to run the set. This radio could also be used on the base, all that was necessary was to change the the 12 foot embilical cord to the AC cord, which was the same length. Then, you could mount the 750H anywhere you wanted, and the neat thing about the control head was the "feet" were designed to fit into and on top of the corrasponding holes in the speaker console, making it a very pretty unit, with a small footprint, like mine.. The reason I know alot about this particular unit is, I have a mint one that works great, that my dad bought brand new back in 1964, as I recall.. Unfortunately, I only have the the AC embilical cord for base operation, and if I remember, if you wanted to use it in your car, the 6 or 12 volt cord was an accessory. Since the embilical cord connectors were the "Cinch Jones" type, if you didn't actually buy the two accessory cords way back when, you would have to rewire the embilical cord to suit your needs...(good luck finding them today!)
Anyway folks, my 2 cents, for whatever its worth... Best 73, Tony, WB8MLA

Dear Sirs,
Earlier today Geo, my little neutered love child, left the house quite angry. It seems some of you do not believe that my poor Turnip Head is not George (he is, but we just go along with him). He was mumbling and arguing with himself about "Women not knowing their place, how dare she talk to me like that, shut up fool you are the one that could not keep the socks correct". He also said something about several classmates laughing hysterically at him. If someone could please explain why my poor semi-vegetative sheep molester is so upset? He did not even abuse the gerbils today which is very unusual.
The bad news is, due to the schizophrenia the price for my gerbil ass packer is dropping dramatically. It appears we will not be renovating The Bordello and Crackhouse. Which means I will have to take the little perv out of the Rahway State Prison and Day Care Center. Bubba and the other conselors will be so disappointed.
So if you see little Turnip Head, do not approach, just call animal control and they will bring the tranquilzer gun to subdue which ever personality is in charge.

Thank You For Your Time,
Geo's Dad

I thought I was being quite nice (and accurate) after you called me 'dumbass' nearly a dozen times in that post. The facts are that you are a racist, you post anonymously, and you claim to be a Jew. You are therefore a nameless, racist Jew.

Which, of course, was a lie.

Whites are not allowed to get funding from United Negro College Fund, yet blacks are not turned away from any college grants due to race. What if there was a United White College Fund? How long would blacks tolerate that? What if there was a Million White Man March? How long would blacks tolerate that? Since blacks make up 13% of America, if you apply for a job where the employees are 50% black, why can't you demand affirmative action?

The only racists in America are the blacks and Naziboi's beloved skinhead movement.

Okay.... I don't normally post stuff like this, in public places. However, in the interest of fairness, and so some Anti-key twirp don't come in here about 6 months from now and say, I got latest scandal on Chuckie or something silly as such. I am announcing to the group that as of today. April 22, 2004, I have file for Chapter 7 Backruptcy, I am not going to lose everything. Unemployment, lots of debt that I just cannot pay for, and a lousy job outlook for myself, caused this. I don't see it as a admission of failure, I see it as a fresh start. My advice to anyone around the age of 18 or so... stay away from credit cards! Discover Especially! the radio business is basically in inactive status, so, I don't have to worry about that. Anyhow, just so you all know, Chuckie filed for backruptcy. another thing, Yes I still do live with my parents, I think God for them! If it were not for them, I tend to believe I'd be sleeping under a highway overpass or in a cardboard box somewhere. at least I have them and I'm quite greatful they never tossed me out. I did get my CDL-A, but due to an accident that happened because of some poor training and partly because of my inexpereince. I lost a job and it's been downhill ever since. I'm going to lose my truck, I just can't afford to keep it, this will render me without relible transportaion for a bit, hopefully, I can find some sort of a job, and save up and get some decent used wheels. Believe me, I try and keep a good attitude during all this. sometimes I get angry, but I figure, what's the point? getting mad or upset, isn't going to change things. I can only take it one day at a time. and sooner or later I'll find some gainful employment. and get some wheels again.

anyhow, I'll you all posted on things and hopefully sooner or later, I'll find a decent job.

-Chuck K8CPA

P.S. It don't pay to discover, I found this out, 6K later in credit card debt.

Interestingly, the genealogy of most (if not all) Jews from that region have ceased to exist; if in fact you refer to the original Hebrews of Israel. Sadly, all existing studies fail to compare modern Jewish populations' DNA to ancient Judean DNA and medieval Khazarian DNA. So, all I can do is say my family came here 120 years ago and were originally Ashkenazi Jews of European descent. The most profound proof of that is that my family still speaks Yiddish. If I was Jewish and black or Latino, I would be Sephardic. Sephardi hail from Spain and Morroco, as well as parts of Africa.

With regard to why you will have a hard time finding Jews that can trace back to Israel a thousand years ago, here is a list of how often they were overrun:

Israel Timeline

* In 1004 BC Hebrew King David conquered the land from the Jebusites.
* In 586 BC the Kingdom of Judah fell to Nebuchadnezzer, King of Babylon (who exiled the Jews to Babylon)
* In 539 BC the exiled Jews return, led by Ezra and Nehemia.
* In 350 BC the Persians conquered the area.
* In 332 BC Alexander the Great started the Hellenistic domination of the area.
* In 313 BC Ptolemy I of Egypt conquers Jerusalem and the surrounding area
* In 170 BC Antiochus Epiphanes, King of Syria, plundered the area.
* In 167 BC we have the Maccabean revolts throughout Philistine.
* In 63 BC the Roman invasion led by Pompei occurred.
* In 70 AD and 132 AD we have the Jewish revolts against the Romans.
* In 324 AD the area falls to the Byzantinians (Queen Helena).
* In 614 AD Jerusalem falls to Persians.
* In 629 AD the area is re-conquered by the Byzantinians .
* In 638 AD Caliph Omar Ben Hatav captures Jerusalem and places the area under Arab Muslim rule
* In 1077 AD the Turks conquer the area from the Muslims
* In 1096 AD the First Crusades captures Jerusalem and all areas around her.
* In 1099 AD the First Latin/Christian Kingdom established--led by Godfrey of Bouillon and most Jews and Moslems were slaughtered.
* In 1187 AD Saladin captures the area from the Crusaders
* In 1192 AD Richard the Lionheart fails in his bloody quest to conquer Jerusalem after slaughtering most of the remaining Jews.
* In 1244 AD Jerusalem and the surrounding area were sacked by Tartars.

* In 1259 AD Jerusalem and the surrounding area were sacked by Mongols.
* In 1260 AD the land becomes rule by the Mamelukes
* In 1516 AD Turkish Sultan Selim conquers Jerusalem and surrounding area for the Ottoman Empire.
* In 1831 AD the land is conquered by Mehemet Ali of Egypt
* In 1840 AD the land is conquered again by the Turks
* In 1917 AD The British Army conquered the land under General Allenby.
* In 1922 AD the Palestine Mandate is given to Britain by League of Nations
* In 1947 AD the British hand the land over to UN who puts forth a Partition Plan (181) calling for Jerusalem to be internationalized". .
* In 1948 AD the State of Israel is proclaimed.

Hebrews are. And they are all gone. Ashkenazi Jews most probably descended from the Khazars. The Old Testament is not empirical evidence of anything. You are best not to use it for your understanding of history.

You know absolutely nothing about Ashkenazi and Sephardi, quite obviously.

Anybody can go to their local public library to read about the history of Palestine, and therefore learn that you are a kook. Why are you ignoring my post about Haifa?

>Guess being a mop jockey on a ship did not help you much, eh Naziboi?

Everything I said about Haifa was true, wasn't it? That's because I was there, just like I said. But -you- haven't been there yourself. So are you waiting for your relatives in Haifa to return your email before addressing my post? Is that how you intended to "check on it and further embarass" me? Well guess what: You are just embarassing yourself. Enjoy.

Quite possibly, mop jockey. But being a Navy mop jockey with 6 hours of leave does not make you expert on Israel; and you have shown your ignorance repeatedly. Being anti-Semitic and blaming the current problems on USA's support of the current Israeli political entity is a perfect example of your ignorance, Naziboi.

And why are you so homophobic as to attack Landshark about things he most probably didn't even post, Naziboi?

BWHAHAHAHA. The Old Testament is Christian. You don't know shit about Judaism - just do yourself a favor and shut the fuck up. Our Rabbis study Tanakh (Torah, Nevi'im, and Ketuvim). Our Rabbis also study Tadmud, Midrashim, and Targumim.

Christian Old Testament has phony crap like Ester, Ezra, Daniel, Jeremiah and Chronicles; which is not devine.

You are the moron who's response to the article was "Posting examples of the racism of others ". They don't teach you much about complex thought in that Skinhead trailer park, do they; Naziboi? Still don't own a dictionary or any books about the history of Israel, eh mop jockey? Why are you no longer in the Navy? Hello, my name is Jess LaFleur and I have been experimenting with CB radio for the past few weeks now.

Ive owned a radio for a couple of years but I never got around to actually using it until recently.

My little set up is as follows:

a firestik antenna with magnetmount (on a little red wagon on my roof) a Radio Shack TRC-439 radio being powered by a computer powersupply using stock microphone (I plan on buying a power-mic)

I have a range of about 10km during the day (I did this earlier today)

I have some questions and such though,

I am rarely able to pick up anyone but people in mexico, and my spanish ends at "Hola, como esta" now, I'm not saying it's a problem, its sort of nice to be able to pick up people so far away (once I got someone from jamaica)

I rarely will get someone from the United States or Canada (where I live) so is this normal?
I know that signals can bounce of the ionosphere but its still odd that I only get people in mexico.

and another question, on the RX/TX display there is 4 LED's now, should I ever see any leds on when I am only hearing static (no transmission) or should it be completely blank.

And another question, how do I tune an antenna and how much do SWR meters cost?

Im not entirely a newbie to radios, I do have an aeronautical radio licence from my days at the airport.

Thanks a bunch,

~Jesse

Are you really so stupid that you need me to straighten you out again on this issue? Like I said before, if you want to throw away $200 on a plane ticket, come on up here and I'll explain it to you in person.

Being a Jew certainly does, mop jockey. As does doing an ERP impentation at the Academic College of Tel Aviv Yaffo for SAPlabs Israel. I lived there for well over a year, moron. I am also there every year for Sapphil. Being a Jarhead mop jockey tourist means nothing. You know exactly squat about the Trans Jordanians. And why can't you cought up $200 for a plane flight? So you CAN quote! Ok, we'll build on that success at a later post. I do indeed have the money but it is earmarked for more important things, like food, housing, clothing, fishing trips, boat and truck maintenence, or anything else on which I decide to spend it. But flying to PA to watch you get your ass

The Jews could have simply bought into a cooperative with some friendly government and declared independence. It's done all the time, even as recently as a couple years ago. And it would have been much more honorable than stealing land from it's rightful owners using broken treaties, massacres and terrorism. They must have learned their tactics by watching the US putting down the Native Americans. But then in your racist little world you probably think that they didn't exist, either.

Spokane. Seattle. Notice how these are two seperate and distinct places. They

You have to come up with your own reasons, Race Warrior. If $200 is insignificant then you don't need a good reason to come up here. I, on the other hand, -do- need a good reason to go to Atlanta. And I don't see any reason at What rightful owners would those be, Naziboi? Trans Jordanian squatters that stole the land that belonged to the Hebrews since 1004 BCE? You are an anti-Semitic piece of shit. No wonder you got nowhere with your life. People like you never get far.

Who was in the area first, Naziboi? Last I checked, King David took the area from the Jebusites in 1004 BCE, over 3,000 years ago. Were the Trans Jordanian squatters there over 3,000 years ago, Naziboi?

If you want it that complicated, so be it. I have no problem with quelling your foodstamp fears. Once you have the legal documents drafted, post them here and I will forward it to my legal team for review. Once you subsequently move the money into escrow, I will too. And then you can come to Atlanta and attempt to collect, princess.

If you want to keep your ham license my advise to you is not to make any conversions to 11 meters. CB radios still need FCC acceptance. If you want to undertake the task of getting the acceptance then disregard my previous advice. BTW the tests to obtain acceptance should only cost you 1 or 2 hundred thousand dollars if you are lucky.

You offered me money to perform a service on your ass. You said nothing about a wager. Gambling on the outcome would void any legal standing to collect on the escrow. But I'm sure you already knew that.

Isn't it getting kinda late in Atlanta? Don't you have a job to go to tomorrow?
An appointment at the welfare office? KKK rally? Oh, that's right, the KKK is a Christian hate group and you belong to a Jewish hate group.

BWAHAHHA. Coward.

Frank "Naziboi" Gilliland's top 10 excuses. ($1 David Letterman)

10) If I show up, you won't.
9) I don't have the $200 for the plane flight.
8) I need a lawyer and escrow account to fight you.
7) You won't have the money.
6) I don't want to win and be labeled a Jew Hater
5) The Marine Corp didn't teach me how to fight
4) Martial Arts is cheating.
3) You are not really in Atlanta
2) I am a peace-loving skinhead
1) If I lose, nobody in rec.radio.cb will like me anymore

i dont think the military Group exists at all and if it did, there is no way Twistinuts could sponsor Frank without his ID being nailed. Think of it suposedly the group is so exclusive that you need an OK from Twisty to get in LOL that should tell you right there something is up. I think Twisted will let this one fade away or he will make an excuse for not following through or he will just spin the facts into a twisted mess and blow smoke until no one knows head from tails. Last week you were standing on your soap box condemning felony assault, and now you're promoting this lame excuse for sarcasm. ...Fascinating.

How I FEEL would be irrelevant. If the operation was legal, then I guess I'd have to deal with it, or move.

That analogy reminds me of the yuppie wannabees who get a good deal on a new "executive" home development, which happens to be on the approach path to an existing airport. Then, after they've moved in, they have the nerve to bitch about the airport noise, and some actually try to have the airport closed down (Despite the fact that the airport was there first).

When you cut corners to save a few bucks, you shouldn't be surprised when this causes you problems later on. When those problems do occur, it's not the responsibility of the existing legal operation to band-aid your problems that you were too cheap to deal with on the onset.

You buy junk, you deal with the consequences.

A legally operating and spectrally clean ham station, by definition, cannot be "interfering" with broadcast transmissions, since his station is not radiating spurs on that frequency. The "interference" exists only within the poorly designed consumer electronic device. The ham is not actually "jamming" the broadcast frequency, the cheap electronic device is improperly receiving a signal it shouldn't be. A subtle, but very important distinction.

If a ham station IS operating outside the parameters of good, sound engineering practice and is spectrally dirty, that's one thing, and taking them to task for it, is perfectly appropriate. But if the ham station is clean, then leave them alone, and deal with the REAL problem.

My past dealings with the FCC, and their attitude WRT this issue, tends to mirror my sentiments.

And the humor of it all, is that this fucktard is announcing what move he will use. A move that is not actually associated with MA, but is a 10 step movie move.

What an idiot. If he shows, I will drop him with whatever simple standard moves I can based on his attack stance, size, etc. This moron lives in

RESTRUCTURING: FCC HOUSECLEANING AND THE BEGINNING OF ROUND TWO

The FCC says its time to begin restructuring the Amateur Service for the 21st century and it has handed the nations ham radio community a 71 page start. Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, has looked it over and has the rest of the story:

Actually, you might call this a bit of housecleaning because the bulk of the FCC's proposal stems from a number of petitions that have been sitting on desks and in drawers at the regulatory agency for months;
some up to three years.

And, we should say up-front that this Notice of Proposed Rulemaking is separate from the latest license restructuring proposal put out for comment by the FCC a few weeks ago.

CQ Magazine Editor Rich Moseson W2VU, is focusing on this new FCC proposal in his "Zero Bias" editorial column for the magazine's June issue.

He tells me the centerpiece is what's known as the American Radio Relay League's "Novice Refarming" petition.

"A couple of years ago, the League filed a petition with the FCC saying: 'You're not issuing new Novice licenses anymore and that these band segments are not being well used. Let's expand the phone bands using some of these frequencies,' " Moseson explains.

Basically, Moseson says, the plan would expand code and data privileges for Novices and Technicians.

"And what they propose, basically, is giving Novices and Technicians with code credit access to the General CW portion of each of these three bands - 80, 40 and 15 and 10 meters as well. But CW only for them on 80, 40 and 15 and RTTY and Data on 10 meters. And then to take part of each of those Novice bands on 80, 40, and 15 and use them to expand the phone bands."

And, Moseson says there are also some big changes proposed for General, Advanced and Extra-class license holders.

"The big winners here are going to be General class hams," Moseson says. "They are going to get an extra 50 khz of phone band on 75 meters and on 40 meters and an extra 25 khz on 15 meters. Advanced and Extra class hams will also get additional space, 25 khz each on 75 and 40.

"But they're going to lose some of the exclusive areas that they have now. The exclusive Advanced class bands are going to be shrunk down by 25 khz or so.

"Of course, since there are no new Advanced class licenses being issued and since a lot of people have upgraded to General since the code-speed requirement was dropped to 5-words-a-minute, this may, indeed, be the right thing to do."

Again, Moseson stresses, this doesn't address the A-R-R-L's proposal to revive a Novice class license that would be a "no-code" ticket with HF privileges. And, he says, it has nothing to do with the raft of petitions on file at the commission to change the code requirements or add an entry level class by some other name.

Another big change in the FCC document centers on a proposal to legalize the sale and use of amplifiers for frequencies in the range of 24 to 35 Mhz.

Moseson says back in the mid-1970s, when Citizen Band radio operators were at the heart of interference complaints due to excessive use of power, the FCC banned the manufacture and sale of the amps that could be used on a wide scale that included 27 Mhz.

Well, Moseson says, that decision hurt the ham community then and causes unnecessary restrictions now.

"It hasn't really had any impact on CB because those people who want to have illegal amplifiers have had no problem continuing to get them," Moseson says. "And the hams who want to abide by the rules have not been able to use the power that's permitted to them on 12 meters and 10 meters.

"So the commission is proposing to do away with those restrictions and once again allow commercial manufacturers to make amplifiers that will amplify on 12 meters and 10 meters and to let you build as many as you want."

And finally, among the major elements, one allowing remote-control access to an HF transceiver using the 2-meter band. It would essentially legalize Kenwood's "Sky Command" system.

"They are now proposing to allow auxiliary operation on 2 meters considering the fact that the loading of the band in terms of actual use of repeaters etcetera is considerably less that it was 5 to 10 years ago," Moseson says.

"So it's not as likely to create interference problems and it's something that could become very important with the advent of things like BPL and more and more antenna restrictions that people may want to have an HF transceiver in a remote location that they cannot operate from home for whatever reason either the environment is poor for it or it is restricted and that they can use their VHF/UHF handheld or mobile rig to communicate back and forth with that remote transceiver."

Moseson says you can find more on-line at the FCC's website. He says copies of the June CQ with more of an explanation will be available at Dayton and in your mailbox or on newstands by mid-May.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, in Philadelphia.

ENFORCEMENT: SELL THOSE AMPS AND MAYBE GO TO JAIL

While the FCC says that it may eventually change the rules regarding the current prohibition on the sale of R-F power amplifiers capable of 10 and 12 meter operation, as of today they are still illegal. Anything marketed must be FCC certified and the agency has told a Texas businessman that he could go to jail if he does not stop selling some that are not. The FCC's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, explains:

Duckworth: "A warning notice went to Donald Hewitt, of Tomball, Texas. It stated that continued sale of non certified equipment would submit him to fine or imprisonment.

This case dates back to the Dayton Hamvention in 1999 involving the sale of WM-300 and WM-600 power amplifiers. We note that at his website these units are again for sale and that he has presented them for sale in the parking lot of the Houston Amateur Radio Supply and at the Smithville, Texas, hamfest this year."

By way of background, Hewitt was issued an Official Notice of Violation of violation of Section 2.815 of the Commission's rules regarding manufacturing and marketing external radio frequency power amplifiers that operated below 144 Mhz. This, after he showed them at the 1999 Dayton Hamvention. He subsequently agreed to stop and the matter was dropped until it was brought to the FCC's attention that he again had them for sale. Now the FCC says that Hewitt had better cease offering the units or he could face time behind prison bars. (FCC, RAIN)

THE BPL FIGHT: NC POWER COMPANY SAYS ITS LICKED INTERFERENCE

I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, with late word on the B-P-L front where a North Carolina power company says that its licked the interference problem. Well almost.

In a letter to the FCC, Progress Energy claims it has solved almost all of the problems to the ham bands created by its test installation near the city of Raleigh. The company says that what remains is interference near the band edges that only affects mobile operators. It also says its still working to resolve this aspect.

Are the hams in the area satisfied? We will find out next week in a special in-depth report by Gay Pearce, KN4AQ. (ARNewsline(tm), KN4AQ)

RADIO RULES: A WIN FOR RFID IN THE 70 CM BAND

The FCC has adopted a somewhat limited proposal to permit deployment of RF Identification or R-F-I-D tags on the 70-cm band. This, at much greater duty cycles than current Part 15 rules permit for such devices.

According to an ARRL bulletin, the Third Report and Order in ET Docket 01-278 which was approved April 15th follows a 2000 petition by SAVI Technology. This, to revise FCC Part 15 rules to accommodate such devices in the band from 433.5 to 434.5 Mhz, instead of the 425 to 435 Mhz SAVI originally asked for. It also prohibits operation of RFID tag systems within about 25 miles of five government radar sites and manufacturers of 433 Mhz R-F I-D systems would have to register the locations of their system base stations to aid in interference resolution.

The ARRL had opposed these changes but the FCC has gone along with it based mainly on national security reasons. Ed Thomas who is the Chief of the FCC's Office of Engineering and Technology said that these devices are designed to increase homeland security at ports, rail yards and warehouses. (ARRL)

RADIO LAW: FCC EXPLORES RULES FOR DIGITAL AUDIO BROADCASTING

The Federal Communications Commission has taken another step toward bringing digital radio services or D-A-B to American consumers. This, as it releases a Further Notice of Proposed Rule Making and companion Notice of Inquiry into changing the rules as part of the broader digital migration that is underway across all media.

Docket No. 99-325 released April 15th and its companion N-O-I seek comments on several topics relevant to D-A-B, including what changes and amendments to the FCC's technical rules are necessary to further its introduction. Specifically, sought are comments on proposals to allow AM nighttime digital service. The FCC also asks questions concerning digital's affect on FM translators. Questions regarding interference are also raised for comment.

Looking at the business side of radio, the FCC wants to know what types of digital services the it should permit stations to offer. Should a broadcaster be allowed to offer a high definition service, a multiplexed service, a datacasting service, or a combination of all of these possibilities? Comment is also sought on whether a radio station should be permitted to offer subscription services.

Comments on Docket No. 99-325 are due by June 16th and reply comments must be dated no later than July 16th. The FCC says that Digital audio broadcasting technology offers the possibility for enhanced sound quality, improved reception, and will offer the public new services such as datacasting along with music and news. ENFORCEMENT: IGNORING THE FCC BRINGS $11,000 N-A-L

A Southern California ham who repeatedly ignored FCC warnings has now been told that he owes the government $11,000. Newsline's David Black, KB4KCH is here with more:

The FCC slaps Daniel Granda, KA6VHC, with an 11-thousand dollar fine for what it says is willful and repeated interference. The Commission says it sent a warning notice by certified and regular mail to Granda in December, 2002 ... but the notice was later returned as unclaimed. The Commission says the letter it sent via regular mail was not returned.

Twice during January, 2003, the Commission sent follow-up warning notices, again, using certified and regular mail. Each of those times, the FCC says the certified mail was returned as unclaimed, while the notice sent by regular mail was not returned.

The fine goes back to a series of events beginning in November, 2002. That's when the Commission says it received a complaint that Granda was causing deliberate interference to two southern California repeaters. But the Commission and Granda had many more encounters. On March 6th, 2003, an FCC agent determined that Granda was retransmitting communications from 223-point-275 MHz onto the input of a repeater operating on 223-point-840 MHz. Just over two weeks later, authorities again caught Granda's station interfering with the same repeater.

The Commission's complaint cites more than half a dozen encounters with Granda. At times, investigators said Granda's station was transmitting signals from various 2 meter frequencies on to the 220 MHz repeater's input channel. In one incident agents using mobile direction finding techniques identified Granda's home as the source of an unidentified unmodulated carrier.

On April 15, 2003, the FCC says agents inspected Granda's equipment at his home in Whittier. The Commission says Granda orally admitted that he received several warning notices from the FCC. Investigators say Granda stated he was trying to prevent anyone from using quote--his--frequency by retransmitting other signals to keep the channel occupied.

Granda's ham license could be in jeopardy. That's because he's in trouble not just for alleged interference, but also for not responding to the FCC. The Commission notes that on three separate occasions, it sent notices to Granda, requiring responses, and that all three times, he failed to answer. That could set the way for the FCC to eventually order Granda to show cause why he shouldn't lose his amateur radio license.

From the Southeastern Bureau in Birmingham Alabama, I'm David Black, KB4KCH.

Granda was given the normal 30 days to pay the fine or to file an appeal. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: TO MANY CALL CHANGES

The FCC wants to know why a Maryland ham keeps changing his call sign. Again, the agency's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W:

Duckworth: "Fredrick Davis, N3BO, of Emmetsburg Maryland has been asked about changing his call twelve times in nine different combinations nince November of 1999. In as much as each time a call sign is relinquished it is unavailable to anyone else for two years, these applications raise questions about apparent abuse of the licensing system."

The FCC gave Davis the usual time to respond and he was not alone. A similar notice went out to Thomas Eifert of Greendale, Wisconsin, concerning his switching between NI7V and N9IX. Also hearing from the FCC was William Mc Doniel of Garden Grove, California, was told to explain the six applications he has filed applications involving call sign switches between N6BM and N4EA. (FCC, RAIN)

ENFORCEMENT: CHICAGO DJ SUES LISTENER OVER COMPLAINTS

The Chicago Sun-Times reports a new twist to the indecent language war that's pitting air talent against the FCC, and now, against listeners as well. According to the paper, WKQX morning host Mancow Muller is suing David Edward Smith for complaining about him to the regulatory agency.

According to Muller's complaint, Smith has filed numerous complaints against the jock. This has resulted in $42,000 worth of files being issued by the FCC.

Muller's $3 million lawsuit charges Smith and the watch-dog group Citizens for Community Values with business interference and filing "spurious complaints" that are "repetitive, malicious, untrue and designed merely for the purpose of harassment."

So far, Smith has filed 66 complaints against Muller. If he should win his suit, Muller says that any profit will be donated to the Boy Scouts of America and various other charities. (Published news reports)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: HIGH SPEED INTERNET ACCESS GROWING

Two in five Internet users in the United States now have high-speed Internet access at home. This, as telephone companies slash prices to better compete with cable broadband services, a study says.

A report by the Pew Internet and American Life Project says that most of the growth has been since November from D-S-L phone connections. They now make up 42 percent of the entire home broadband market. That's up from 28 percent in March 2003.

Cable modems still have the lead. Their market share is 54 percent, but they no longer enjoy a 2-to-1 edge.

Although dial-up remains a lot less expensive than high speed access, John Horrigan, Pew's senior research specialist, said Americans are increasingly making a time is money" calculation. If they are spending more time online, they find savings from high-speed connections even if they must pay a little more.

According to the study, 36 percent of home broadband users said they switched because their dial-up connection was too slow or frustrating. Twenty-one percent said they wanted to download files faster, and 10 percent needed it for job-related tasks.

Pew places the adult residential broadband population at 48 million, or one-quarter of all adult Americans. Among college educated adults age 35 and younger, broadband penetration has now reached 52 percent. (Press release)

HAMVENTION 2004: AWARDS WITH PRIZES ON SUNDAY

The planners of the 2004 Dayton Hamvention say that they have a unique new way to present this years Hamvention awards. This, as part of an expanded prize drawing on Sunday afternoon, May 16th.

As in years past, at the close of business hours on Sunday attendees will be directed to the 7000 seats in the grandstands in the main arena for the drawing of the remaining hourly prizes and the big grand prizes. But before the first numbers get pulled the crowd will get a chance to meet the three Hamvention award winners, find out why they were chosen and get to be a part of this very special award presentation ceremony.

As previously reported, this years winners are Barry Sanderson, KB9VAK, whose getting the "Technical Excellence Award," George Wilson, W4OYI, who is the "Special Achievement Award" winner and David Kopacz, KY1V, named as "Radio Amateur of the Year." They will be joined by the President of the Dayton Amateur Radio Association and members of the Hamvention planning committee to make this a special afternoon for the winners and everyone else on hand. (Hamvention(r))

NEW PUBLICATIONS: HAM RADIO FOR DUMMIES

We've all seen those great yellow covered books that have been introducing the public to the world of computers for close to two decades. Books like DOS For Dummies, Windows For Dummies, Excel For Dummies and the rest. And how often have you wished out loud for a book titled Ham Radio For Dummies. You know. A book that you could hand to the next guy who confuses your 70 foot tower and Tri-Bander with a C-B set to talk to Smokey and the Bandit.

Well now you can, but you may want to read it first because author Ward Silver, N0ZAX, has come up with what may well be the best explanation of the hobby ever written:

Silver: "I get a lot of people who come up and say -- `hey I bet you get goof TV reception' -- or that sort of thing. So I go into my 5 minute spiel about what ham radio is. And at some point you can sense that they are kind of glazing over a little bit.

But the familiar yellow and black cover and the brand helps to take the mystique out of buying the book. It makes something that they are familiar with so that they are comfortable in giving it a try."

the experts expert: Joe Moell, KO0V:

Last time I told you about foxhunting -- that's tracking radio transmitters for sport with direction-finding equipment -- and the upcoming USA Championships of foxhunting, which will take place in southern California beginning June 16. Perhaps you would like to attend, but you want to get some practice first. And wouldn't it be great if there were more foxhunting activity in your home town? Well, that's why you should get your local ham club involved in this fantastic form of radio competition, and the National Foxhunting Weekend is the time to do it.

CQ Magazine sponsors the National Foxhunting Weekend each spring. The seventh annual event will be May 8 and 9, 2004. The rules are very loose. Actually, there really aren't any rules, just the suggestion that your club hold some kind of foxhunt on that weekend, or close to it. An on-foot event in the park, perhaps with a barbecue at the end, would be great fun for families. Or you could hold a more traditional kind of hunt, with the competitors in their cars and the hider in an unlikely spot, miles away. Scoring on a mobile hunt can be by time -- who finds it first -- or by least odometer mileage, making it more like a road rallye.

If your club isn't already planning a National Foxhunting Weekend hunt, it's up to YOU to start the fun. Get some ideas by reading the tales of last years hunts in the April issue of CQ Magazine. Report forms and more information can be found at my Web site, www.homingin.com. That's HomingIn, as one word, homingin.com. See you on the hunt! From southern California, this is Joe Moell Kay-Zero-Oscar-Victor for Amateur Radio Newsline.

Radio Fox Hunts are a lot of fun and many of the Newsline staffers around the world enjoy taking part in them.

Great. You know where I am. If you need to fight me to release your rage and make yourself feel superior then just drop me an email notifying me of your

There's a difference between accepting a challenge and galavanting around the

What's taking so long, Twist? Let me guess: You just created a Yahoo group and are busy making up characters and forging messages so it will look like a legitimate forum. That shouldn't be too hard -- just draft some of your sock-puppets from this group, pin a few imaginary medals on them, inject them with your ignorance of the US military, and PRESTO!..... instant military group!
Just add water. Some assembly required. Batteries not included. For children ages 12 years or younger......

But of course. I'm certain they would be better off doing like yourself, illegally intercepting private telephone calls between minors speaking of sex and finding it "juicy", as you have told us. Although you attribute great feats unto myself, I must digress and allow you another self-defeat...I have no idea what you mean by "where". The group is accessible by invitation only and is hosted on a private (I believe) server. I don't post in the group,,,well, I did once or twice when I first joined many years ago, but never since. I sandbag and watch for reunions and related happenings and folks wishing to locate others. However, there is a link from the IRC page taking one directly to my email.

Becoming obsessively redundant and repeating your question will not change the answer. The email you beg of me to exchange pleasantries with yourself was submitted to the group moderator. Other folks have lives, Sparkles, and not many are like yourself. Coming apart on usenet because you are denied your immediate gratification serves only to support the much-pitied illustration you have created of yourself. Of course, your errant behavior and current manic psychosis regarding memememe isn't healthy, Sparkles. Go back to back-pedaling about your claim concerning your "AIMCOM" ISP "farming" out your access to the group via TX and CO,,it's much more easier to digest,,after all, it's that type of behavior for which I permit you to be as popular as I choose in rec.radio.cb. LOL..sure we do....it's the same military that claimed we first needed to "liberate" the Iraqis' by war, which none bought, then claimed it was because of WMDS that were never found and now widely accepted to have never existed, the same military that will not allow pictures of our returning dead heros to be published (much to the chagrin of the soldier's families). the same military that lied and claimed we had satellite pics of Iraqi troop buildup on the border (which didn't exist), the same military led by a straight "C" student who can't pronounce his words correctly and is ignoring North Korea's production of nuclear devices that will be completed by election time. Yup,,that's the intelligence we come to expect you to define yourself with, Sparkles...lies and incompetence.

Another homosexual connotation. That you not realize what you speak is troubling. Please refrain from speaking of "ass" in all your conversations with other men, no matter how strong your compulsion. I am certain if you attempted, you could find groups that cater to your thoughts that reveal your blatant homosexuality. However, this is not it.

I welcome proper shielding. It would prevent scum like yourself from illegally monitoring teenage girls telephone calls talking about sex and then coming here and posting that you considered such behavior "juicy". That's pretty funny. According to many state and federal references, the illegally monitoring of teenage girls speaking of sex on a private line and finding it "juicy" and more entertaining than "Melrose Place" is not only illegal, but reeks of pedophilia-like behavior. It would appear, from your own admittance, this "obsession" you attribute to myself, is benign compared to the one which you offered.

From: pokechow@sympatico.ca (Jess LaFleur)
Hello, my name is Jess LaFleur and I have been experimenting with CB radio for the past few weeks now.
Ive owned a radio for a couple of years but I never got around to actually using it until recently.
My little set up is as follows:
a firestik antenna with magnetmount (on a little red wagon on my roof) a Radio Shack TRC-439 radio being powered by a computer powersupply using stock microphone (I plan on buying a power-mic)
I have a range of about 10km during the day (I did this earlier today)
I have some questions and such though,
I am rarely able to pick up anyone but people in mexico, and my spanish ends at "Hola, como esta" now, I'm not saying it's a problem, its sort of nice to be able to pick up people so far away
(once I got someone from jamaica)
I rarely will get someone from the United States or Canada (where I live) so is this normal?

>At this time of year and with the current solar<

>"skip" cycle in decline..yes. From which state<

>are you transmitting?<

I know that signals can bounce off the ionosphere but its still odd that I only get people in mexico.
and another question, on the RX/TX display there is 4 LED's now, should I ever see any leds on when I am only hearing static (no transmission) or should it be completely blank.

>Nah,,this is your ground noise level and what< > you are experiencing is normal. The higher<

> the noise level, the more bars will be lit.<

And another question, how do I tune an antenna and how much do SWR meters cost?

>You answered your own question,,sort of.<

>An SWR meter is necessary, and instructions< >come with each. The cost can begin >releatively cheap such as can be had at Rat

>Shack. My personal fave, which I was turned< >on to by a fellow rec.radio.cber, is the Autek<

Im not entirely a newbie to radios, I do have an aeronautical radio licence from my days at the airport.
Thanks a bunch,
~Jesse

The better (and bigger, when applying to cb) the antenna, the further you will receive and transmit.

Yes and his world is getting closer to him now. He has the chance to say truce now.. not later.

Would you like to call a truce yet, geo? <last call>

What email was that? I have sent you no email in recent years. And who is the

I don't think there -is- such a group, Twist. I think you picked the name SSgt Kessler by glancing over at your bookcase full of conspiracy theories and paranoid propaganda. This group of your's is just another lie -- one more chapter from "The Sins of the Twistedhed".

Nobody has 'clued me in' about this "fire school", not even you. I have offered to clue -you- in if there has been a change in terminology since I was in boot camp, but you have refused to describe what this "fire school" is about. Care to

In the upper third of town there are very few restaurants. Just a couple fancy clubs and expensive hotels. The restaurants in the lower third aren't really restaurants per se, but more like open-front market delis. And why are you asking, Twist? Did Race Warrior pay you to defend him? What's your excuse for not coming up here to kick -my- ass, which is what you want to do, isn't it? So what's the problem? Lack of money? Oh, that's right, you said you make thousands of dollars a day. No time? You certainly have plenty of time to troll the newsgroups (which makes me wonder how you make your money!). So what's -your- excuse, Race Warrior?

fishing is still lacking due to water temps in the low 40's but just a drive to see how the winter storms ate the beach.

Trying to spin it, Naziboi? I offered you cash on the spot to come here, and your yellow spine kicked in and you chickened out. Now you are just trying to project. Do you need me to post the original conversation, Naziboi? And all the excuses you had for not coming here, Naziboi?
Again -why are you just a yellow bellied coward?

You are a liar. You already admitted it. I was in the ANG, and even I know what DoD Fire School is. So now you said there is no such thing as Fire School. Priceless. Only from a yellow bellied Naziboi can this stuff be expected. And if you were in the USMC, lying yellow bellied Naziboi; you can take a military hop from Seatac to Dobbins here near me for $20. Or don't you have $20, either?

On 29 Sep 1995, the first class with USMC fire fighters began.

You mean he aspires to be a shitbird. He has no idea what he is. But I sure hope someone will tend his wounds when he gets back to his dad's basement.

Not at all, geo. Please don't get mad at me simply because the AKC has been

Is that why you get so incensed when someone attacks him?

Re: The 4th of July !
Date: 2001-07-04 20:45:45
Newsgroups: rec.radio.cb

Today we celebrate our right to overthrow the government.

There is no pussyfooting around this fact. It is the central meaning of Independence Day.

Today's firecrackers are reminders of the bloody war we were willing to fight against the British to win freedom. Bang.

We can try to rename today's holiday the more innocuous "Fourth of July." We can outlaw firecrackers on the grounds of nuisance and fire hazard and you'll-put-somebody's-eye-out.
But so far nobody has been able to rewrite the Declaration of Independence itself, and the words of that document are crystal clear. Today is a spiritual, passionate, angry, violent holiday for a modern society that is squeamish about every one of those adjectives.

If you get a chance today, you should read the actual words of the Declaration. Read the whole thing. It's even better out loud. Imagine you are really fed up while you're reading it. When you get to the list of abuses by King George III, you will get angrier and angrier. I still do.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.
Endowed by their Creator! Were the Framers deftly sidestepping the word "God," or in their day did they simply assume that one word was synonymous with the other? Either way is fine -- the point is that we have inherent rights that can never be taken away.

That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.
There's the Big Idea. Government gets its authority from the consent of the people. It is one of the most important political things anybody ever said, except maybe for the next sentence ...

That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government...

And that is the gist of it. The people give the government its power. If the government becomes tyrannical, the people have the right to cast it off.

This does not mean that the Framers intended us to start a revolution every time we got ticked off. It does not bestow any moral authority on kooks and extremists. In fact, Jefferson and his editors stressed just the opposite: government should not be changed for "light and transient causes."

But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.

Legally speaking, do you know how much weight the Declaration of Independence carries today? None. Zippo. The Constitution is the sole basis of our government. Yet the Constitution would not have been possible without the Declaration -- it is the "new Guard."

An opinion survey this week said 66 percent of us do not believe Americans would be as willing to call for a revolution today as they were 225 years ago.

But are we really so puny? We have glorified the Revolution over the past two and a quarter centuries. The truth is it was a controversial and divisive time. A lot of colonists wanted the King to win. They were willing to live under tyranny for a little extra security.

Do you think they magically grew a better crop of human beings in the 1700s? Or did Americans of that era rise to the occasion, just as they did in a Civil War, in a terrible Depression, in two 20th-century wars against global evil?

In our modern life we are fat and happy and safe and selfish. The question for today is whether in that comfort and selfishness, an essential American idea has been extinguished, or is just sleeping.

An outstanding piece written by Tampa Bay's own Howard Troxler in today's local. Sparky knows the paper.

Wrong again, Race Warrior. I said to Twisty the same thing I say to you now: that terminology may have changed, and that what is now called "fire school" may have been called something else when I was in. If you care to explain what "fire school" is I can probably tell you what it was called in my day. But Twisty doesn't seem to be able to do that, which is not suprising since he's such a paranoid, anti-government, antisocial idiot that he would -never- get in -any-branch of the US military. They even took Lee Harvey Oswald and Tim McVeigh, but they won't take Twisty. However, if you were in the ANG then -you- should be able to succeed where Twistedhed has failed. Care to give it a try?

ROTFLMMFAO!!!!! I was in 1981-85!!! And that school is for FIRE FIGHTERS, which is a specialized MOS just as I suspected! Congratulations, you just demonstrated Coward. Yellow bellied Naziboi. Any real man would have taken the offer to come to Atlanta. You on the other hand ran from the offer just as soon as I tolk you I would meet all your sissy conditions (lawyers, escrow of money, etc.). Coward. Pathetic little coward. HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!!! Good boy, Race Warrior! You completely avoided the issue of "fire school", which not only demonstrates your ignorance but is also proof that Twisty is not only willing to hide the truth when it will expose him as the pathological liar he is, but that he (as well as yourself) are TOTALLY INCAPABLE of admitting your lies when the truth is no longer avoidable! And what's even better is that you walked RIGHT INTO IT!!!

And Twisty said that Truth was his friend..... maybe a troll that goes by the name of "Truth", but certainly not truth as in REALITY!!! HAHAHAHAHAHA!!!

Are you so stupid that you can't see your provokations aren't working? Again, what's your excuse for not coming up here? Because of your intense spinning to Another spin. This is getting boring. It appears that you don't have any money, but you don't even have enough brains to come up with a good lie to use for an excuse. You are more pathetic as the leech-boy that won't get a job and move out

That's why he only posts during working hours -- she's away from the computer because she's busy making a living to support his lazy ass. I figured that out after I caught him quoting a late night movie that was aired the night before.
When his mommy is away he trolls the newsgroups as different sock-puppets, and when she's home he watches TV until she leaves again. What a pathetic life.

I do not need lies and spin, like you do, Naziboi. I offered for you to come to GA weeks ago. I even sweetened the pot by offering you a few grand if you could take it from me. You came up with a dozen excuses and spun around in a kookdance. I also find it laughable that you would question my finances, when you said you were flat broke. Google has all your idiotic statements on file, naziboi. So what is it, yellow bellied coward - you going to run from my offer to come to GA or PA? Cluck cluck, chicken.

It came from an unverified AOL account that can't be found anywhere on the net. Gee, what a suprise. If the account is fake then the email was a forgery. If the addy is valid then either Twisty forged my email (which is the only way this "auto-response" reply would have landed in my box), or he recently started the account to manufacture false evidence in support of his lies. I'm waiting to see what AOL says about this....

All too often that is the mark of a "collectible". They sold zillions of them becuase they were cheap so there is a lot of nostalgia money to be found in the marketplace.
Swan 350 was an atrocious drifter by todays standards, well by 70's standards too. People plonk down collector bux for junk rigs like the National NCX-3, the Swan Cygnets 270/260 but that has no correlation as to how good/bad the rig was. A $5000 Atwater-Kent breadboard set is hardly a stellar performer but i wouldn't sell it for 10 bucks because that is what it is "worth" as a receiver.

I would rather keep my integrity and spend the rest of my life in poverty than be a nameless, gutless, lying, shit-talking, racist hypocrite like yourself.
People like you, sock-puppet or not, are the reason this world is so screwed up, but you are too ignorant and afraid to look in the mirror and see the truth for yourself. I've got a mirror for you right here but you don't have the belly to make up even a -lame- excuse let alone a -legitimate- one.

Pack up your anonymous nic and hit the road already -- you don't even make the cut as a troll.

I don't need an excuse, bitch. Long before you ever invited me to WA, I asked you to come to GA or PA and talk your anti-Semitic crap. You came up with dozens of bullshit excuses, yellow bellied naziboi.

Not me, but I know who did. My 847 is much more of a radio than the 840. The 840 is an entry level HF only rig, no V/UHF weak signal ability which I wanted for sat' work.

Let's see now..... I have worked you for the past few days, forcing you to expose your racial prejudices, hateful demeanor and hypocritical opinions. You lied repeatedly in order to defend your position, but each time I put the truth in your face you jumped to a different topic. You defined racism and you fit your own definitions perfectly. You claimed that your decisions about racial discrimination were based on statistics, yet the statistics don't agree with your conclusions. You even stated that interracial marriages result in "freak-show children". I shoved your racism back in your face and you whined about antiSemitism. You claim that Palestinians do not exist and have no right to land because Israel had it first, yet totally ignore the fact that Israel
-didn't- have it first, that they conquered the area through the extermination of the Canaanites. And that's AFTER you whined about how Hitler tried to exterminate the Jews. When you challenged me about the history of Israel I met your challenge and you slithered into another topic. You begged me to give you details about Haifa, and when I did your silence proved that you lied and that you haven't been there at all. Then you followed Twisty by the nose and got it jammed in the door when I demonstrated that I had indeed been in the Marine Corps. I have reduced you to randomly accusing me of various ills with no supporting evidence, including excessive drinking, stalking, being a nazi, antiSemitism, homophobia, cowardice and of being financially destitute. You hit rock bottom by claiming I said, "everyone that died during 9-11 deserved it."
All you are permitted to do now is beg for me to come to Georgia after I have already refused your kind offer......

......and you claim that I don't have a fucking clue?

Sorry, Buck

There are noise quieting devices in radios that can be fairly efficient at eliminating short duration pulses such as ignition noise. I'm just not familiar with the various radios and their capabilities in this department.

Best regards from Rochester, NY

The one with the power switch set to off.

But seriously, most radios made now days have very ineffective noise blankers and are very susceptible to engine/fuel pump noise. You would be ahead of the game to look for notes issued by the manufacturer of your vehicle concerning RF noise. There really is a lot of information to be gained here that a lot of folks tend to overlook.

Swan--the touchiest transmitter tuning but it does kick butt on SSB. Also has the smoooooothest tuning with that dual speed knob. As you can tell, I'm

I have a D104 that i am trying to wire up, and I need to know what the E & R indications that are labeled on the switch of the mic stand for.

This is the one that has the amplifacation option in it

Thanks Zach

From what I've read, the Magnum 257 has one of the quietest receivers when it comes to ignition noise. It needs to be modified to work on CB, but it's a very easy mod. I had one a while ago, but got rid of it because of a new car. Someone mentioned in the other replies about eliminating noise, not covering it up, but some of us just aren't that inclined to start hooking up ground wires all over the undercarriage and engine compartment of our vehicles.

Rec.Radio.Cb Fear factor (Second Round)

Announcer: Ok, just a recap, we are down to two contestants. Frank bowed out after having an Anxiety attack and hunger pains. Now on with the next challenge, contestants are you ready?

Aaron: Yes, but I still didn't get that person name and address on channel six so I can send him a copy of Part 95 of the FCC rule & Regulations.

Announcer: That's ok Aaron, maybe after the show.

Aaron: I also wanted to turn him into the FCC for swearing, using an amp on the Citizens band Radio.

Announcer: (sounding like Dr evil) Right!

George: Shut the F#!k up Aaron, you flaming fag Homo, c!*ksucker.

Announcer: Calm yourself George. Ok your next challenge scenario will be like this: There will be a Listening station exactly 5 miles apart from each of you, your challenge will be to try to talk to the station at the same time. You each will have the exact same radio, a Galaxy 99. Same antenna array. The person That is able to talk the longest in a 5-minute period move on to the final challenge.

Aaron: I can't use that radio, it's an export radio and I have made a promise to God & my family too never use that type of radio.

Announcer: If you don't, George wins.

George: F*%king pussy boy, don't do it, yeah I'll win.

Aaron: Well ok, but I'm doing it under duress, and wish it to be duly noted so I don't get in trouble. daddy's sorry Ludmila.

Announcer: ok, gentlemen to your stations.(the sounds of both contestants heading to their posts.) Now
What both contestants don't know yet is the person manning the listening post is none other than Moparholic and to through a another factor in, we have Pain Killer sitting the exact same distance away with 5 kw. Gentlemen, start your transmissions!

Aaron: Break 19, break channel 19 please.

George: Hey, all you stinky smelly c*&k sucking trucker shut the f%$k up, I'm talking here.

Aaron: again, break channel 19, break please.

Pain: I'm sorry the number you have reached has been disconnected, please hang up and try again (Snickering & laughing in the back ground)

Mopar: I can't hear youooooooooo! Go sterling, go.

George, hey who is that saying the # has been disconnected?

Pain: PainKiller in the 5K mobile.

George: Ah you piece of Homo queer Texas dog S$#t, shut the F*&k Up before I find where you are and attempt to kick your ass!

Aaron: Break 19, break channel 19 please.

Mopar: I still can't hear you two, pump it up.

Aaron: Pain, you are in violation to Part 95, sub paragraph blah blah blah. As a ham
You should know that.

Announcer: Stick to the challenge Aaron.

Aaron: I can't there is a violator on the airwaves and I must try to turn him in.

Pain: BBBBWWWWAAAaaaaaa HHHHHHHhHaaaaaaaaaa, you guys are a joke.

George: That's it, I'm going to get into my Pacer and find your faggot Texas ass.

Announcer: George if you do that you will lose.

George: F*&king faggot announcer.

Mopar: BUUUUZZZZzzzzzzzzz times up, we have no clear winner.

Announcer: No clear winner, they both advance to the next round

George: What the F$#k you mean no clear winner, I beat that pussy Viking bitch ass.

Mopar Keys the mic: You are right about that George, he is a bitch (Laughing in back ground)

Aaron whimpering: I can't believe I used an export radio and still couldn't get out (insistent crying) I'll be ok, I just need to troll the newsgroups and I'll be ok.

George: Quit you crying you faggot Homo queer Viking.

Announcer: well folks it look as though it's going to come down to the last round.
Stay tuned, we will have an exciting final round for you to veiw.

(Back ground noise) Mother F&%king Pacer won't start, must have built

The subject line of this thread is incorrect, amps were never legal on cb and still aren't. This FCC ruling applies only to amateur radio, nothing changes for cb.

Walking up to the counter at 7-11 George handed the clerk a $100.00 bill.

Looking incredulously at the bill, the cashier, in a snappy tone, exclaimed "I can't break this! I need exact change."

"Come on buddy." George pleaded, "Can't you give me a break, just this once?"
"Nope. Sorry. Exact change!" Answered the cashier.

"While thumbing through the change in his pocket George asked the cashier, "Do you really like this job?"

"Well it's not the best job that I've ever had, but it pays the bills," replied the cashier. "what do you do for a living?" he asked.

Still counting change and without looking up George said, "I'm a rectum stretcher."

"A what?" asked the cashier.
"A rectum stretcher." George replied, giving the cashier a slideways glance.

"What does a rectum stretcher do?" The cashier asked.
"Well just as the name implies, I stretch rectums." George explained setting aside a nickle.

"Wow, is there much call for that kind of work?" The cashier asked.
"Oh you'd be surprised. It's real popular with the upper crust, the high society people, the jet set. It's the new trend." George said.

Pausing for a moment the cashier then asked, "Well if you don't mind me asking, I mean if it's not too personal, how big do you, well you know...?"

"...How big do I stretch them?" George interupted. "Most of them, not too big," He continued, "but I have stretched some up to six feet."

"SIX FEET!" The cashier exclaimed eyes wide, and jaw slack. "Six Feet. What is someone going to do with a six foot asshole?"

George, having counted out the exact change, handed the change to the cashier. Looking him in the eye, George answered, "Give it a computer, let it post to the rec.radio.cb calling itself the A.K.C."

Correct, JJ

They have admitted, in essence, that all they have done is made it more difficult for amateur amplifier vendors and licensed amateurs (with proof of license, they send you the info to add 10 meters - which information is likely all over the internet anyways).

I have an older Midland CB (model 77-225A) which was modified by J&M for use on a motorcycle. After several days of use, I hear intermittent static in my headset.

I did a google search on this newsgroup but didn't find much that helped. Are there any suggestions as to what might be the cause, and cure?

Appreciate the help!

FREE!!

For advanced techs and serious radio hobbyists, we're now offering a FREE copy of our previously published "CB EPROM DATA BOOK" by Martin Pickering. (EPROM = Erasable Programmable Read Only Memory.) We sold it for many years but it's now out of print. This little manual of 60 illustrated pages is an absolute GEM of CB technical knowledge you'll just never find anywhere else. And it's yours for FREE from our Web site.

This book reveals the secrets of advanced channel programming, and picks up where our "CB PLL DATA BOOK" (www.cbcintl.com/pllbook.htm) leaves off. You'll get a thorough background in how these amazing programmable chips can be used to modify many popular CB PLL circuits for expanded frequency coverage. Covers the basic programming techniques, and even includes real PC board artwork for making EPROM circuits. Sample artwork includes EPROM boards for the popular MB8719, PLL02A, ï¿½PD2824, and ï¿½PD858 PLL circuits.

Best of all, the price is right! Download your FREE copy of "THE CB EPROM DATA BOOK" (948 KB Adobe PDF) at:

This is also one of the areas where FM wins over AM.
No noise blanker is needed, as the receiver has limiters that stop most amplitude modulated noise. With UK CBs, engine noise is rather rare.

No "swing" debate, either... just the idiots who think you can get 20KHz of deviation in 10KHz spacing, and the ones who think that the more echo you have, the better you sound.

No system is perfect... or idiot proof.

Regards.

Peter.

Does this happen only when you are in motion, or when you're parked as well? If the former, see if jiggling the headset plug slightly clears it up. Since it's an older radio, the Ext Spkr/headphone jack may not be making a firm contact with the plug. You could temporarily shim it (maybe with a paper match or something else that will fit), but the permanent fix is to have the jack replaced.

Wrong again, as usual, Frankie. He proved that you have admitted to being a liar, and that's much more important than your lame question about semantics. Liars have no credibility. You have placed yourself in a special class, accompanied by the alleged Georgie-girl, DouGay Adair, and the nonexistent Anal Aaron. How exclusive. Congrats!

That's not totally true... It would make it even easier for a CB operator to acquire one... Doesn't change the legality, just makes it easier...

Then again, if they were running quality amps with real output filters, maybe there would be less problems.. Still illegal as all hell, but cleaner anyway.

Care to explaine just what about my statement is not true? Were external amps ever legal on cb? Are they now? Does this ruling apply to cb? Part 97 of the FCC rules, which this ruling comes under, applies to amateur radio not cb. Do you see anything in the ruling about part 95, which does apply to cb? Do you see anything in the ruling that states these amps will now be legal on cb?

You need some perspective. When I was "into" cordless phones, it was the early 1980's. I was in my early 20's at that time, and the subjects I was listening to were in their late teens judging from the content of their conversations (mentioning of driving, jobs, senior year etc.). Would dating a girl, who was 4 or 5 years your junior, make you a "pervert"? I didn't think so.....

What;s the matter Twist, the Villanova angle not paying off, so you you return to the Phelps, or will you once again insist that, in spite

Fred,

There is also the possibility of a component with a bad solder joint. With the radio on (but not the bike), rap on the radio (no, not to break it, but to see if the static starts). It could be a loose connection on the circuit board of the radio (or loose connection to the mic/headset jack/plug).

Lame? Not even. It was VERY important to understand the meaning of the term "fire school" when the entire foundation of the argument against me rested upon my lack of understanding of the term. As soon as the "semantics" had been clarified by my accusers, the argument backfired right in their faces. That's not lame, Clyde -- that's poetic justice!

I don't place myself in -any- class of people, Clyde. But you categorizing me in with other people that don't like you only supports the "sour grapes" theory of demoralizing influences in our society.

I don;t know about AOL, but Webtv users can't forge. It's impossible. Anyone can contact their abuse department and be told the same thing, but that doesn't stop idiosos like yourself from sharing your ignorance with the world. You're beside yourself with stupidity, chubby. You begged and moaned like the ng whore to be permitted into the group of my choosing to allegedly "show" me something and now that you were contacted by those who actually served in the military, your fear and cowardly ways took over and you have nothing left to do but cry and renegue on your word.
Tis a shame, as I was looking forward to watching you place your foot in your trenchmouth in front of real military men, not those who lie,,,you know,,,, scumbags like yourself who claimed they served in the military when they didn't.
You're crying crocodile tears because your ignorance will not permit you to find anything "on the web" concerning myself or the moderator..hahahhahahah!

Your cowardice ways are ever-present. Whatever compels you to deliberately misattribute such words to others is but part of the reason I forced you to google. That you're a bonafide liar with severe emotional problems encompassing self-loathing is your problem. Again,, the word "secret" and now your entrance of the words "private server" serve only to illustrate your incredibly low self-esteem. Try some honesty instead of lying each time. I welcome proper shielding. It would prevent scum like yourself from

If it isn't secret then post the page or email me the link. Or get someone else to pass it to me via email if you are really paranoid. After all, if you signed me up with the intention of getting me into the group then I would know the URL eventually, right? And if I can't post in the group without membership then the URL won't do me any good -- or the group any harm. So what's the big secret, Twist? Or do you need another week to type up a website for your fake group?

That's pretty funny. According to many state and federal references, the illegally monitoring of teenage girls speaking of sex on a private line and finding it "juicy" and more entertaining than "Melrose Place" is not only illegal, but reeks of pedophilia-like behavior. It would appear, from your own admittance, this "obsession" you attribute to myself, is benign compared to the one which you offered.

>It's hard to make a case for pedophilia, when Speaking from experience, I'm sure. Nevertheless, the age has nothing to do with you, pervert. Illegally monitoring the sex talk of teen girls and then claiming you find it "juicy" is not behavior which a healthy grown man participates, pervert. It reeks of pedophilia and of course, pedophiles claim their innocence and look for excuses to "lessen" their offense in their mind, "allowing" them to commit such atrocities again and again. Such only works in the mind of a pedophile, as the majority of society, (something you have demonstrated time and time again which you have nothing in common) holds such behavior as sick, demented, and perverted. Only the scumbag perpetrators see nothing wrong with their behavior, pervert.

Before the Federal Communications Commission
Washington, D.C. 20554

In the Matter of)
)
Gambler's C.B. & Ham Radio Sales & Service) File No.
EB-04-DT-225
Pinconning, Michigan) Citation No.
C20043236004)

CITATION
Released: April 13, 2004

By the Enforcement Bureau, Detroit Office:

1. This is an official Citation issued pursuant to Section 503((5) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (``Act''),1 to Gambler's C.B. & Ham Radio Sales & Service (``Gambler's'') for violation of Section 302(of the Act,2 and Sections 2.803(a)(1) and 2.815(of the Commission's Rules (``Rules'').3

2. On April 9, 2004, Gambler's offered for sale at their store located at 4671 North Huron Road, Pinconning, Michigan, the following non-certified Citizens Band (``CB'') transceivers:

NAME MODEL COST
Ranger RCI 2970 DX
$449.95
Ranger RCI 2980 WX

Ranger RCI 2985 DX
$479.95
Ranger RCI 6300 F
$329.95
Galaxy DX33HML $198.95
Galaxy DX48T
$419.95
Galaxy DX66V
$279.95

According to the Commission's records, these devices have not received an FCC equipment authorization which is required for Citizens Band transmitters marketed in the United States.

3. Section 302(of the Act provides ``No person shall manufacture, import, sell, offer for sale, or ship devices or home electronic equipment and systems, or use devices, which fail to comply with regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.'' Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Rules provides that ``... no person shall sell or lease, or offer for sale or lease (including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any radio frequency device unless: (1) In the case of a device subject to certification, such device has been authorized by the Commission in accordance with the rules in this chapter and is properly identified and labeled....'' Gambler's offer for sale of these devices violates both sections.

4. Gambler's marketed these devices as amateur transceivers. The Commission has evaluated radiofrequency devices similar to those listed in paragraph 2 and concluded that the devices at issue are not only amateur radios but can easily be altered for use as CB devices as well. A CB transmitter is a transmitter that operates or is intended to operate at a station authorized for the CB service, and it must be certificated by the FCC prior to marketing or importation.4 The Commission has further concluded that these devices fall within the definition of a CB transmitter and therefore cannot legally be imported or marketed in the United States. See Response from the Commission's General Counsel to U.S. Customs Service dated May 17, 1999, 14 FCC Rcd 7797 (1999).

5. Additionally, dual use CB and amateur radios of the kind at issue here may not be certificated under the Commission's rules. Section 95.655(a) of the Rules5 states ``....([CB] Transmitters with frequency capability for the Amateur Radio Services....will not be certificated.'' See also FCC 88-256, 1988 WL488084 (August 17, 1988). This clarification was added to explicitly foreclose the possibility of certification of dual use CB and amateur radios, see id., and thereby deter use by CB operators of frequencies allocated for amateur radio use.

6. Furthermore, the Commission has revised Section 2.1204(a)(5) of its Rules6 to prohibit all marketing and/or offering for sale in the United States of such devices even when the purchaser(s) had provided assurances that the transceivers are being bought solely for export. ALL DOMESTIC MARKETING OF SUCH DEVICES VIOLATES THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934, AS AMENDED, AND THE COMMISSION'S RULES.

7. In addition to the marketing of the non-certified transceivers addressed above, Gambler's also offered for sale on April 9, 2004, the following CB external radio frequency power amplifiers (``linears''):

NAME MODEL COST
Palomar Skipper
$349.95
Palomar 225 $119.95
Palomar 250 $159.95
Palomar Skipper 350
$179.95
Palomar 650 Magnum
$348.95

8. The linear amplifiers indicated above are not only illegal to sell but also illegal to advertise for sale. Section 302(of the Act provides ``No person shall manufacture, import, sell, offer for sale, or ship devices or home electronic equipment and systems, or use devices, which fail to comply with regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.'' Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Rules provides that ``... no person shall sell or lease, or offer for sale or lease (including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any radio frequency device unless: (1) In the case of a device subject to certification, such device has been authorized by the Commission in accordance with the rules in this chapter and is properly identified and labeled...'' Section 2.815(of the Rules states: ``... no person shall manufacture, sell ... any external radio frequency power amplifier or amplifier kit capable of operation on any frequencies between 24 and 35 MHz.'' Gambler's offer for sale of these devices violates these sections.

9. Subsequent violations of the Communications Act and/or the Commission's Rules may subject the violator to substantial monetary forfeitures not to exceed $11,000 for each such violation or each day of a continuing violation,7 seizure of equipment through in rem forfeiture action, and criminal sanctions including imprisonment.8

10. Gambler's may request a personal interview at the Commission's Field Office nearest your place of business. The nearest office is the Detroit Office, 24897 Hathaway Street, Farmington Hills, Michigan 48335-1552, which you may contact by telephone at (248) 471-5661. You must schedule this interview to take place within fourteen (14) days of the date of this Citation. Alternatively, you may submit a written statement to the above address within fourteen (14) days of the date of this Citation. Any written statement should specify what actions have been taken to correct the violations outlined above. Please reference case number EB-04-DT-225 when corresponding with the Detroit Office.

11. This Citation shall be sent First Class U.S. Mail and, Certified Mail, Return Receipt Requested, to Gambler's C.B. & Ham Radio Sales & Service, 4671 North Huron Road, Pinconning, Michigan 48650.

12. The Privacy Act of 19749 requires that we advise you that the Commission will use all relevant material information before it, including any information disclosed in your reply, to determine what, if any, enforcement action is required to ensure compliance. Any false statement made knowingly and willfully in reply to this Citation is punishable by fine or imprisonment under Title 18 of the U.S. Code.10 Please be advised that if you choose not to respond to this Citation and a forfeiture is issued, your unresponsiveness will be considered in our assessment of a forfeiture amount.

Hmmmm..... You beg for me to prove my military service by conversing with vets on a group that you can't produce, claim to have screwed up entering my email address, blame your dysfunction on ME, yet say that >I'M< the fool?

ROTFLMMFAO!!!!!

So did your mommy take a job as a beer-wench after getting fired from her day job? Or is she that wrinkled and sagging old nag spinning around the big brass pole on the stage? When are you going to get a job so she doesn't have to pay your way through life?

The latest NPRM would allow low-drive linears and linears that cover 10m without mods to be certified. About time, as the rules only hurt hams and didn't make much difference to those who want to run illegal power on CB.

Sure it does. A 22 year old man who is attracted to an 18 year old girl would be considered sexually normal in today's society. Nothing perverted about it.

> Illegally monitoring the sex talk of teen girls

It was not illegal in 1983.

A matter of opinion. I don't find that guys who spend hundreds of dollars on phone sex calls to be healthy either. But who are either of us to pass judgement? Read your bible, with respect to judgement.

> It reeks of pedophilia and of course,

A pedophile seeks sexual gratification with children. An 18 year old is considered an adult in most states. So once again you miss your mark. Ask anyone if they consider a 23 year old hooking up with an 18 year old to be either symptomatic of "pedophilia", or "perverted".

Time to move on to the Phelps. you've blown your load once again......

I have figured out twisty's "game" out quite a while ago. He is simply an attention seeker, and will use contrived factoids that he feels will provoke a response from other people. It's all part of his anti-social personality disorder. It's fun to drop a little bomb and watch him respond in his scripted, unimaginative, and predicable fashion.

April 24,2004
The 12th Air Command 254 S. 12th St.
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Bar door swings open; George walks in wearing his tightest leather pants.

Frank: Hi George! How is it hanging!

George: Pretty good, check it out.
(George drops his pants, revealing his pink g-string)

Frank: Not bad big guy. I get to see more later, right?

George: You will have to ask I Am Not George, I promised him first crack at it.
Is that a new tattoo on our arm?

Frank: Yes, just got it last week.
(Franks rolls his sleeve the rest of the way up to reveal a swastika)

George: Why did you get that?

Frank: I am tired of people thinking I am a wimp, call it intimidation.

George: Did you stop buy and pick up the Videos for the get together tonight?

Frank: I picked up Dougs favorite, deep anal slam.

George: Speaking of Doug, he was supposed to be here.

Frank: He called me earlier, he had to go to some kind of parole hearing.

George: I told him not to involved with women, we could treat him better than any women ever thought of doing.

Frank: Hey look, I Am Not George just walked in.

George: I just love it when he wears his bare midriff shirt.

I Am Not George: Hi guys, whats up?

Frank: Waiting for you and Doug.

I Am Not George: He was just driving in the parking lot when I came in.

Doug: Hi Guys, I finally made it.

George: How did your hearing go?

Doug: Bad, they actually expect you take care of your kids and support them.

I Am Not George: See, we told you about women.

Doug: I know, I know. I'm done with them.

George: What's in the bag?

Doug: I was hungry, stopped of at Coney express and picked up a "dog" (Doug opens the bag and pulls out a foot long hot dog, which falls on the floor and rolls under the table)

George: It's mine, I saw it first (George and I Am Not George start wrestling for it, I Am Not George trying to bite it, George trying to stick it up his butt)

I Am Not George: NO, It's mine.

Doug: Here, cut it in half, then you will both be happy.

Frank: I can't believe you two, it's all covered with dirt.

George: Reminds me of the time Doug and I went to the beach.

Doug: Yeah, I remember that time, took me a week to heal up.

I Am Not George: Doug, what's the deal with that picture that Steve took of you?
You looked terrible, did you just roll out of bed?

Doug: No, I was in the middle of something.

George: Middle of what?

Doug: Jamming a repeater. Guess that will teach them to make fun of me because of my no-code status.

Frank: Don't you ever learn? You have already been spanked for that.

Doug: Speaking of spanking, are we ready to leave yet? George's G-string is really turning me on.

I Am Not George: Think his is cute, check this out.
(Drops pants to reveal an "elephant trunk"
G-string.

Doug: My God! Lets go, elephants do like nuts don't they?
(Doug Giggles and heads for the door)

I Am Not George, George and Frank follow him out the door.

>Are you REALLY that dense? When re-telling

You can use whatever "references" you wish, only you aren't believed by anyone. Your perversions are defended only by yourself, much in the way pedophiles make their behavior "ok" with themselves and think their behavior is somehow permissable under the "right" circumstances. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The truth is that you are a mental case and a pervert who was in the cb business with another person that had sexual deviance problems (your own words).
Perverts gravitate toward each other and make their behaviors "ok" with each other. A simple concept beyond perverts comprehension.

So what! The band "Steely Dan" was taken from the same place (a Burroughs novel) and they make great music. Only a certain kind of man is threatened by such things, then again, it's why you're in the dark.

Only in your peanut-sized mind. Hardly "VERY important"; it was nit-picking, the same thing lawyers do, looking for a hairline crack in the veneer rather than Right or Wrong. And that's LAME, Frankie.
You should spend more time taking care of your failing business than you spend TROLLing the UseNet picking arguements over stupid things.
Then maybe you wouldn't have to vent your bitterness and sour grapes here.

You have admitted lying in this newsgroup more than once. Your

HAHAHAHAHA! Sidestep all you want, Frankie; you don't have to say anything, your actions place you in that low class of people. So does the fact that you participate in their TROLLing.

But I agree: You, DouGay Adair, and "Georgie-girl" are certainly demoralizing influences in our society.

I have here, a Penetrator HB-200 "Amateur Bi-Linear" Amp. It isn't working at present - some one buggered it up. Does "anyone" have any info on this thing? I'm not even sure of the bands it is supposed to work on. It is set to do AM/SSB from what the switches are labeled for. Does anyone have a schematic, know the bands it was supposed to work on, etc? Any clue as to the "Finals" that belong in here? They're gone! Completely out of the box. Any help appreciated. Not sure whether I'm going to repair it to keep or to sell or maybe sell as is. Would it even be worth my time and effort? TIA
MNS

Electronic and Relay referring to how the radio is switched from receive to transmit. As for what it switches internally, I can't remember. Hope this helps.

Noise can get into the radio through the power wiring as well as the antenna. Power directly from the battery is best but also keep your ground wire as short as possible. It sometimes helps to ground the chassis also, especially with magnetic mount antennas.

You quoted Dick's post out of the context and order of the thread and without the headers (i.e, the 'References:' line) which shows that he was merely responding to -YOUR- accusation of Leland forging. Still can't handle the facts, can you, Twist?

Seems to me that it was -YOU- that was begging for me to come to a military group of your choosing so that you could "watch your yellow tail get forced between your legs".

But it -IS-! Have you forgotten so soon what you wrote: "I''ll go to email, if you come to the armed forces group of my choosing." I can't go there if I don't know where to go. I don't know where to go because you refuse to provide that information. You refuse to provide that information because.....why? You said that I should go there so "we can all watch your yellow tail get forced between your legs. You aren't afraid of that, are you Frankie?" Nope, I'm not afraid at all, and that's why -YOU- are afraid to disclose your chosen group.

On the contrary, Twist, your credibility is the issue here. You have been posting your opinions about this email respose as if I had not been accepted, even going so far as to provide a 'possible' excuses for the rejection. If I was rejected, why would SSgt. Kessler request personal information from me, as I stated earlier?

I didn't have time to get pics of the falls, but I did get a few others. When I walked out of the building this is what I saw:

A couple examples of Spokane Architecture (sp?):

http://www.aimcomm.net/sparky/000_0233.jpg

And while I was driving home I drove past a popular nightclub on 1st where some little blonde cutie from KXLY was doing a story (I later found out) on local tryouts for the TV shows 'Bachelor' and 'Bachelorette'. I was stopped at the light and had to point the camera behind me where I couldn't see, but anywayz....:

He won't because he -doesn't- want me to go there. He doesn't want me to go there because he doesn't want to live up to the other end of the deal -- he would have to email me, and his greatest fear is facing me without the immoral support of his sock-puppet cheerleaders, outside of public view where he can at least -try- and distort the facts to his advantage. If that group really exists you won't hear about it from Twisty, because Twisty doesn't deal in facts!

well, after reading the thread, and all the proposals put forth by the FCC I have this to say:

The original subject title is still incorrect. the only things the FCC is doing is allowing manufacture and production of CERTIFIED AMATEUR Amplifiers. in no way to they mention anything about the class D citizens band other than its still in violation of part 97 (relivant subsections) to possess one or use one if you are not licensed. Since they do not issue licenses for 11 meters anymore, that pretty much means you are out of luck.

note this last sentence (as I satted above in my top posting)

They proposed, but then, they reversed themselves on the certification portion elsewhere. it is better to have certified equipment in any case.
that certification is a warranty against poor quality or shoddy equipment that can cause real problems. I think all they want to do is to clarify the rules to make them more specific.

I'm not running for office, or from Texas. Anyway you don't respect anybody anyway, including yourself most of all.

LOL!!! I haven't talked about you or towards you, but yet you are so enamored with me you try to harrass me.
I ask again, STOP changing your screen nic to by pass filters. I do not wish to see your foul, vulgar language posts.

If you are tired of this person using his account to troll, by pass filters to harrass, post vulgar language, racist, anti Jewish comments, please forward all posts, including headers to:

To whom it may concern,
I and I'm sure numerous others have complained about this individual, with his constant harassing, foul language, false accusations and off topic posts and now his comments about the Jewish religion. Now you might say kill file him, you can't! He is always changing his screen address to purposely by pass kill file filters, as is evident with the proof I am including.
I have asked him very very politely to please stop changing his screen nic, but to no avail.
This person has changed his screen address some in just the past month alone, how much more evidence do you need for this to stop?
I ask that you have this person refrain from doing these things, they are a clear violation of your Terms of Service agreement and as such, he's obligated, as I am to follow them.

Might not. I went to "Three Dishes" tonight. The cops showed up with some lame excuse that they were looking for someone. They threatened the bartender, saying that if a fight breaks out that they were going to put the bartender behind bars. What a crock of shit. Welcome to Spokane.

How could that be? Your not him? You said that wa3moj@aol.com wasn't your aol account, but yet when I was using it as a screen nic to prevent Spam, I was warned by SBC it was a valid users account.

> your admittance of how you > lied to your isp regarding that,

See above, already warned that I used "YOUR" aol account.

> your constant harrasment of me,

Really? You mean posting that you had an aol account, reposting that Dick McCollum said you were wa3moj, that's harassment?
LOL!!

> the repost of google, the repost of my nics,

That will be a good one. Sirs, I have used thousands of screen nics to by pass filters and this person has reposted them to warn people about my use of screen nics to by pass filters.

> the repost of the lehigh valley info,

What? You mean how one can call, write or go to most any county entity and request property information? You don't live there remember? I have that post to refute that, hell you even just made that statement to Mopar.

> your Frenchy Posts,

Ah yes, the one post I made from that account ..... Test.
That will surly win you favor with them.

Consider it done. All you have to do is stay with "ONE" screen nic, make all the foul language, vulgar, racist, anti Semitic posts you want, you will be in my fill file. If other want to report you to Comcast, so be it. I won't if you stuck with "ONE" screen nic.

Landshark

Another for the file..................

Why should I have stated it? It was of no relevance to the context of the story I was telling at the time.

I didn't know EXACTLY how old they were, but by the process of deductive reasoning, based on the clues that they had contributed, I was able to determine that they were:

A: older than 16 as they both had driver's licenses.
B: talked about the Prom and colleges which would make them seniors.
C: A typical high school senior is at least 17.

The charge was officially "disturbing the peace". And it DID happen.
Absence of evidence on your part is not evidence of absence on his.

"friend" is a little strong. He was a CB'er whom I was acquainted with. I never even knew his last name, which is why YOU can't find it.
